Invasion Bridgehead Extended as Palmi Falls to British 8th

By EDWARD KENNEDY.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The British Eighth Army extended its invasion bridgehead in Italy to a width of at least 60 miles today with the capture of Palmi in a 10-mile advance, while great fleets of Allied bombers struck by day and night at the Naples area in a concerted effort to wither the enemy's war effort in southern Italy.

Deepening their inland thrust on the Calabrian peninsula, the British and Canadian troops pushed another 10 miles in the Santo Stefano wedge to seize Delianuova. The village is 15 miles due east of Scilla on the Aspromonte mountain spine of the peninsula.

Axis assertions that all southern Calabria had been abandoned seemed confirmed by the scant opposition. Extensive demolitions to roads, bridges and tunnels and the extreme ruggedness of the terrain made progress slow. The invaders were some distance east of Melito in their drive east along a southern coastal road beside the Ionian sea.

Palmi, whose fall the Allied command announced today, is 10 miles northeast of Bagnara along a tortuous road skirting precipices which run down almost to the sea. The town had a normal population of 18,000. A low plateau covered with vineyards and olive, orange and lemon groves surrounds the town.

A Berlin broadcast said the British advancing north of Palmi had been engaged twice by German rearguards near Gioia Tauro, eight miles north of Palmi. The British on the Ionian sea were said to have failed to crack a Nazi hedgehog position leading east around the Italian toe from Reggio Calabria.

Headquarters reports indicated the enemy force in Calabria was quite small. Allied fighters and bombers which constantly patrolled the combat area reported substantial enemy troop movements.

Reinforcements poured across the Messina straits. Headquarters disclosed that Allied tanks and artillery now were operating in continental Italy and that supply

SHE'S NOT AFRAID—Orson Welles may have made the rest of the nation shudder (with that radio scare, of course), but he seems to arouse tremors of an entirely different emotion in the bosom of lovely Rita Hayworth. Cooling Off Era Between War, Peace Indicated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The American government was said on high authority today to favor a "cooling off" period of at least several months between the cessation of hostilities and the post-war writing of the peace treaties.

This was disclosed on a day which also brought these other developments in the field of foreign affairs:

1. President Roosevelt hinted that a meeting attended by Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin and himself may not be far off. He told his press-radio conference that progress toward such a meeting had been made since his Quebec talks with Mr. Churchill, and that he hoped for additional progress in the next 24 to 48 hours.

2. The President, also at his press conference, developed the thought that nations receiving lend-lease aid from this country will be under post-war obligation to repay as far as possible, but made clear that this did not mean payment would be expected in money. Mr. Roosevelt did not go so far himself, but a possible projection of his remarks was that lend-lease might well be remembered when the United States advances its ideas for a post-war world.

3. The Mediterranean commission, which it was disclosed Saturday is being formed and will have Soviet representation, was described authoritatively as being for the purpose of bringing peace to the Mediterranean area.

The idea of a waiting period between the end of the fighting and the writing of the peace treaties is one which former President Hoover has advocated. In an address at Minneapolis last week, he suggested that this period might well be several years.

The high authority who said the administration was inclining toward this thought spoke, however, of a wait of only months. The government's attitude was summed up about like this:

When the fighting ends, most of the world will be somewhat shell-shocked—a good part of it already is—and for the good of humanity there ought to be a period during which everyone can catch his breath before the writing of the peace.

This means, it was explained, that for a time the victors will have to maintain the peace and during this transition period the United States and Great Britain would continue their combined chiefs of staff in operation—a move which Prime Minister Churchill suggested in his address at Harvard University yesterday. The system of maintaining combined chiefs of staff might even work so well, the American authority suggested, that it would be continued indefinitely.

Chief of Staff Gives Dramatic History of United States at War

By WILLIAM F. FRYE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the Army, reported today that the war has entered its final phase, with the Allies mounting a series of offensives which will end only with the absolute defeat of the Axis.

Avoiding any prediction of how long the war will last, but "with complete assurance of the final victory to come," he submitted to Secretary of War Stimson his biennial report, sketching dramatically the nation's transition from perilous unpreparedness in the summer of 1941 to unprecedented military power certain of triumph.

GENERAL MARSHALL.

In the midst of victories on every front and sweeping plans for great new offensives, the chief of the mightiest army this country has ever known—an army created, equipped and trained under his leadership — discloses that two years ago he watched the ominous aggressions of the Japanese, never in doubt of their purpose, but helpless to reinforce the Philippines because the soldiers and the machines did not exist.

Marshall says that two years ago he feared disintegration of his Army of 1,500,000 men, had to plead for extension of the selective service period beyond a single year. Today, commander of an Army of nearly 8,000,000 which has proved itself in battle, he can report that the enemy has lost the initiative in every theater, is being inexorably crushed by the tightening rings of Allied air, land and sea strength.

"Strategically the enemy in Europe has been reduced to the defensive and the blockade is complete," Marshall writes.

"In the Pacific the Japanese are being steadily ejected, or rather eliminated, from their conquered territory. . . .

"Brief, the strength of the enemy is steadily declining while the combined power of the United Nations is rapidly increasing, more rapidly with each succeeding month. There can be but one result, and every resource we possess is being employed to hasten the hour of victory without undue sacrifice of the lives of our men."

Constantly Increasing Blows Coming

The war has entered its final phase, says Marshall—a phase which "involves the launching of Allied military power against our enemies in a series of constantly increasing offensive blows until they are beaten into complete submission."

He leaves no doubt that the plans are drawn and eventual success certain for this series of offensive blows. Without so much as a hint at the nature of these plans, he writes that decisions reached as long ago as the Casablanca conference still cannot be disclosed—presumably because the operations have not yet occurred.

Concerning Russian demands for a second land front in western Europe, Marshall has nothing to say specifically, but he asserts that the combined British-American bomber offensive against the continent "gives promise of being a decisive factor in the ultimate destruction of the German citadel."

By July 1 this year, he writes, the Eighth Air Force had more than 1,000 heavy bombers based in Britain. Missions were averaging better than 300 bombers each, and the greatest tribute to the heavy bomber was "the enemy's recognition of its importance." The attacks, says Marshall, forced Germany to increase fighter production at the expense of bombers, to allocate new production largely to the western front, to withdraw experienced pilots from the Russian and Mediterranean fronts, and to withdraw even fighter planes from Russia."

Germans Unable To Attack

"The net result," he adds, "was that the Germans were unable to conduct any sustained offensives this summer in Russia, or build up sufficient strength in the central Mediterranean to oppose the Allied offensive."

The report, covering the period between July 1, 1941, and June 30, 1943, contains 58 pages plus 38 pages of footnotes, and maps and charts. It includes Marshall's summary of the events comprising the last three of five phases into which he divides the war.

The first two he treated in a previous report—first phase, the fall of France and the period of national uncertainty of the war's effect on the United States; second phase—beginning with the Battle of Britain, and marked in this country by limited peacetime mobilization of the Army, large ap-

420,000 German Troops Killed In Russian Army Summer Drive

By JAMES M. LONG.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Russians announced in a special official statement last night that more than 420,000 Germans had been killed, at least 1,080,000 wounded and 38,600 captured in the first two months of the Red Army's big summer offensive, which swept on today unchecked along a 600-mile front.

The Red army also took a great toll in material from the retreating Germans, including 5,729 planes, 8,400 tanks, 5,192 guns and more than 28,000 trucks, Moscow's announcement said.

Nazi Retreat in Haste.

Indicating perhaps the haste of the German retreat as well as its extent, the Moscow statement listed among the captured material 1,041 tanks, 2,018 guns, 5,382 machineguns and 7,953 trucks.

Unofficial calculations based on the Russian advances as recorded in the daily communiques show that the Red army in the offensive begun last July 12 has recovered approximately 30,000 square miles of territory from the Nazis.

6,000 Nazis Killed.

A total of nearly 6,000 Germans were listed as killed on the various fronts in Tuesday's fighting alone. Both Berlin and Moscow in their accounts of the day's fighting stressed the ferocity of the battles, the Russians emphasizing the Germans' "desperate resistance" and reporting Nazi counter-attacks launched with large forces of tanks.

Moscow's special announcement on the two months of summer warfare was issued over the signature of the Soviet information bureau and was recorded here by the Soviet monitor.

Russian losses were not mentioned in the statement which covered the period from July 5 to September 5. It was on July 5 that the Germans launched the summer's heavy fighting with a drive in the Orel-Belgorod-Kursk area. This blow was absorbed by the Russians, who just a week later opened their own offensive, a steam-roller drive still under way, now pushing the Germans back upon the Dnieper river defense line.

Last night's daily communique recorded continuing gains on four active fronts—the Donets basin, the northern Ukraine, the Bryansk front, and south of Kharkov—with advances of up to 12 miles and the recapturing of approximately 300 towns and villages.

The Russians raced across the coal-laden Donets basin to capture Ovcherikino, 20 miles northwest of Stalino, steel capital and long Hitler's southern front headquarters, the fall of which was expected momentarily.

The Russians already were fighting in the outskirts of Stalino, from which the Nazis may have withdrawn the bulk of their defending forces in their fall-back toward the Dnieper. If they had not done so, their forces were threatened with entrapment, especially in the light of the lunge to the northwest represented by tonight's announcement of the fall of Ovcherikino.

Lend-Lease Aid For Argentina Refused by Hull

By WADE WERNER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Secretary Hull brusquely turned down tonight an Argentine bid for lend-lease aid, on the ground that Argentina has failed to do its share in protecting the New World from aggression.

In a note delivered to Foreign Minister Segundo Storni in Buenos Aires Hull bluntly pointed out that the United States is at war and must allocate military supplies where they will be used most effectively for the defense of the Western Hemisphere. The attitude of the government of President Pedro Ramirez, he suggested, "has indicated clearly that the Argentine armed forces will not under present conditions be used in a manner designed to forward the security of the New World."

Hull based his refusal on the failure of the Argentine government to fulfill its commitments to break relations with the Axis and sever all financial and commercial dealings with Axis countries, and pointed out that Argentine by this failure also was excluding herself from participation in vital post-war plans affecting the Western Hemisphere.

He stressed that Argentina, alone among all the American republics, had failed to sever trade and diplomatic relations with the Axis in accordance with the resolution unanimously adopted at Rio de Janeiro last year; that it was "notorious that Axis agents in Argentina have been and are engaging in systematic espionage

Bands, Guns To Hail Stars, War Heroes

Blaring bands and rumbling guns will parade through downtown Atlanta at 2:30 p. m. today when the War Finance Committee heralds the arrival of combat heroes and film stars to open the Third War Loan drive.

The heroes and stars will appear in person at a bond premiere at Loew's Grand theater at 3 p. m. today, and again tomorrow at a "Hero's Dinner" to be held at the Ansley hotel at 7 p. m.

Atlanta will be the first stop on a nation-wide air tour for the military and screen celebrities who are on loan from the fighting forces and Hollywood during the campaign.

The "airmada," transported in Army and Navy planes, will arrive at Atlanta airport at 2 p. m., and in a long processional of military equipment headed by the Fort McPherson band, will be escorted through the business section to the Biltmore hotel where heroes and stars will make their headquarters during their two-day stay.

The processional will stop briefly in front of Loew's for a band concert and program calling attention to the tanks, guns and other equipment which War Bonds buy—an exhibit which will be on display in front of the theater throughout the day.

Heading the Hollywood delegation will be the luscious Annabella, wife of Tyrone Power and star of 20th Century-Fox Films, who with Shirley Patterson and Lynn Carver, two other cinema beauties, will act as mistresses of ceremonies in presenting the valiant fighting men at the premiere and the dinner.

Georgia Hero.

One of the heroes is a Georgian—Seaman First Class Lester E. Scarborough, of Sandersville, wearer of the Purple Heart for wounds received in the sinking of his ship, the U. S. S. Vincennes, in the fight for Guadalcanal. Another hero of the Guadalcanal engagement is Bosun's Mate Raymond S. White, of Chincateague, Va., whose ship, the Alchiba, beached and burned after being struck by three torpedoes. Others in the delegation of combat veterans are Sergeant Vincent E. Boothe, who lost a leg in the Tunisian campaign when he stepped on a German land mind while evacuating wounded under fire; Ensign Thomas Leonard, of the Merchant Marine, torpedoed twice while hauling supplies to U. S. invasion forces in Africa, and Marine Sergeant Carl T. Hickman, decorated for heroism in the Solomons.

Greeting the celebrities will be Charles A. Stair, state chairman of the War Finance Commitete; Charles Currie, head of the Fifth District committee; William K. Jenkins, state chairman of the War Activities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry; R. W. Schilling, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Charles Kessnich of MGM.

Admission by Bond.

Admission to the premiere tonight to the Junior Chamber Heroes' dinner tomorrow night is by war bond only. Tickets to theater premiere may be obtained by the purchase of a bond at the booths in the Fox and Loew's Grand theaters, and tickets to the dinner are available with the purchase of a war bond at the bond booths at High's, Davison's, Rich's, Muse's and Sears-Roebuck.

Arrival of the stars at the airport will be broadcast this afternoon over station WGST and station WAGA will broadcast the premiere program beginning with star interviews in front of the theater at 7:30 p. m. The Fort McPherson band will play outside the theater from 7:30 to 8 p. m.

All the fanfare of parades, premiere and dinner is a prelude to the down-to-earth month-long bond selling which begins Thursday as 7,000 civilian defense workers begin a house-to-house canvass to sell a total of $65,000,000 in bonds in the Fifth district during September.

France's Underground Voted Seats in Assembly

ALGIERS, Sept. 7. — (AP) — The French Committee of National Liberation voted today to allocate half of the seats in the provisional consultative assembly, scheduled to convene here for the first time November 3, to the resistance movements within France. Among these delegates will be men who have already escaped from France and others who are to be brought out as special representatives.

The other half of the approximately 80-member assembly will come from resistance movements outside of the homeland and former deputies who are definitely known to have had no connection with the Vichy regime.

Marshall, King To Get Legion Medals

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The American Legion will award its Distinguished Service Medal to the Army's chief of staff and commander in chief of the United States fleet at the 25th national Legion convention in Omaha September 21-23.

This was disclosed today by the Legion's national executive committee, which said both General George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest J. King have accepted invitations to appear in person to receive medals from National Commander Roane Waring. Both will address the convention.

General Douglas MacArthur was presented the Legion's Distinguished Service Medal in absentia at the convention in Kansas City last year, first time in 12 years it had been presented to anyone.

General Marshall's presentation will take place on the opening day of the convention and Admiral King will appear on closing day.

Higher Tax Refusal Hinted by Knutson

By ALEX H. SINGLETON.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—A strong hint that congress may refuse to levy new and higher taxes this year was dropped tonight by Representative Knutson, Republican, Minnesota, Republican tax strategist, while Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee conceded that "confusion" surrounded the search for more revenue.

Asserting that the American people "now pay the highest per capita tax in the world," Knutson declared that the nation's lawmakers would be "most reluctant to impose any additional taxes," but qualified his statement by saying that "war needs may drive us to it."

Doughton said that the Treasury had not as yet furnished him with a "blueprint" of its recommendations on where to find the additional $12,000,000,000 sought by the administration, and declared that "there seems to be a great deal of confusion as to what might be presented."

Their views were expressed as the committee prepared to meet tomorrow to arrange for public hearings on the new revenue bill and on a review of the present law authorizing renegotiation of war contracts by the government to recapture "excessive" profits.

Meanwhile, it was learned that a hot controversy between Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and the joint congressional tax staff had been settled—at least temporarily. Doughton said that Morgenthau had informed Colin Stam, head of the staff, of the Treasury's "desire and willingness" to co-operate in its work.

The quarrel developed when the congressional staff sought information from Treasury officials on the Treasury revenue program without first consulting the secretary. He was reported to regard that quest, when it was under way, as a "fishing expedition."

Knutson, a ranking minority member of the Ways and Means Committee, said that if war needs made necessary a new source of revenue, he would "prefer" a manufacturers' sales tax to a general retail sales tax "because of its greater simplicity and ease of administration.

He held that there was little chance of congress writing a measure providing for compulsory savings, declared that there would be no boost in individual levies "as far as I am concerned," and said "I would hate to see any increase in the rates on corporations."

Enemy Arming Subs To Battle Aerial Menace

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The airplane won this summer's Allied battle against submarines, and as a result German U-boats apparently are being equipped with more antiaircraft guns preliminary to a new challenge for control of the Atlantic sea—lanes.

This appraisal of the enemy's intentions was given today by Secretary of the Navy Knox and was supplemented by figures released by the naval high command.

The great part played by the airplane in the antisubmarine campaign's success was disclosed in the naval report summarizing operations during May, June and July. During this period the Allies sank 90 U-boats and pretty well scotched, at least for the time being, the threats to their transatlantic supply routes.

The Navy said American forces alone sank at least 29 enemy submarines in those three months. Of these, 26 were destroyed by aircraft alone and airplanes had a part in the destruction of one of the three bagged by naval surface forces.

Knox told a press conference that there is reason to believe that the Germans are calling in their U-boats to put antiaircraft guns on them, and he was emphatic that the battle of the Atlantic has not been ended.

"It's as sure as sunrise that they will be back in there again," he said. "There is no reason to believe that we have disposed of the submarine menace."

Until recently, there had been no reports of submarines attempting to stand and fight it out with aircraft spotting them, rather than resorting to the customary evasion tactics.

Several weeks ago, however, the Navy told of a blimp being shot down by a U-boat.

As a result of this development and the addition of antiaircraft guns to submarine weapons, Knox said, it appears that the usefulness of blimps and helicopters in the fight against U-boats has been sharply circumscribed.

AS OF YORE—Evelyn Harris, former city editor of The Constitution, sat at the city desk yesterday as he reminisced of days gone by. Harris will retire October 1 as assistant vice president of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Evelyn Harris Is To Retire From Bell Job

Evelyn Harris, assistant vice president of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, laughingly asserted yesterday when his retirement was announced that, as city editor of The Atlanta Constitution, he had discouraged his reporters from using the telephone.

"I used to tell them they could do better by talking to the person face to face about a story," the former reporter and city editor said. "Of course, the telephone then was nothing like it is today—from 1896 to 1906—when I was on the paper. Most of them cranked up, and there weren't many."

Harris, whose retirement October 1 was announced at a party given by the company in his honor at the Capital City Club, saw other changes in the city room, too.

"There wasn't a woman working in the editorial department," he said while glancing around at the many girls. "I remember the first one in the editorial department. She was going to report society news and we wondered about having a woman work for the news department.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris, the telephone company executive was born in Canada in 1876. He became a reporter on The Constitution in 1896 and was city editor in 1906 when he went with the telephone company as special agent to handle public relations.

First editor of Southern Telephone News, he later became general publicity manager, assistant to the president and assistant to the vice president in charge of public relations.

Macon Man's Death Laid to Natural Causes

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Detective Inspector E. L. Acosta reported today Julian Stevens, 21-year-old Free French sailor, found dead in an alley here Saturday night, was killed in a fall from a building.

Police first had suspected Stevens was killed by an assailant, but Acosta said the sailor had climbed a waterpipe outside the building, and them fell to his death.

Authorities also reported, after a week-end of investigation, that Robert Emmett Agee, of Macon, Ga., died from natural causes and not from knife wounds he said were inflicted while he sat in a downtown park. Agee claimed before his death that he was stabbed by an unknown assailant, but state Attorney Inman Crutchfield said superficial knife wounds on Agee's face and neck did not cause his death.

Two Arrested in Mobile After Kilby Prison Break

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Police Chief Dudley McFayden announced today the recapture of two of five convicts who fled Kilby state prison August 26 in a spectacular break.

The police official said the men were arrested in a Mobile cafe yesterday but that he withheld announcement in hopes of rounding up the other three.

The two were identified as Robert Owen Narramore, 27, serving five years on a burglary conviction in Mobile county, and James Daniel Russell, 30, serving 20 years on robbery convictions in Jefferson county.

The convicts escaped from the Kilby tuberculosis hospital after knocking unconscious one guard and forcing another to yield his keys.

Southern Bell Asks Dismissal Of Rate Case

Asking the Georgia Public Service Commission to dismiss a rule nisi seeking to lower intrastate long distance rates in conformity with interstate rates, the Southern Bell Telephone Company yesterday declared that:

1. Its profits are dangerously low and steadily declining despite big "temporary" war-time increases in business.

2. The war effort might be seriously impeded if experienced telephone people were taken off war jobs to prepare data for the rate inquiry. Also, long distance calls would be increased by the lower rates at a time when the war effort requires less civilian phone use.

3. Lowering the long distance toll rates would benefit only a few big business firms, while it would cause the local exchange rates to be hiked against the majority of the subscribers to offset this loss of revenue.

Dismissal Asked.

Attorneys for the company spent two and one-half hours before the public service commission, asking dismissal of a rule nisi to show cause why its intrastate long distance rates in Georgia should not be reduced.

If the rule nisi should not be rescinded, the company asked a 10 months' delay in the hearing, stating it would take this long to prepare necessary evidence under present emergency conditions.

The hearing on the rule nisi will be continued at 10 a. m. today.

A number of independent telephone company representatives in Georgia were present when Bell company lawyers objected to the commission taking immediate steps to prescribe the basis of division of toll rates between Bell and independent companies. It contended it and independent companies should be permitted to continue working out their own agreements.

The company said Georgia subscribers, who have the lowest local exchange rate in the southeast, will save an estimated $600,000 on long-distance rate reductions already granted this year. Further reductions would mean confiscation of the company's property, it said.

Rates Pointed Out.

In its citation, the Public Service Commission pointed out that long-distance rates in Georgia are 10 cents higher for each mileage block between 40 and 145 miles than the concurrently interstate rate, and is 15 cents higher above 145 miles.

Replying to this charge, the company said it is justified by a difference in conditions involved in rendering interstate and intrastate service, as well as by a long-established practice of the Georgia commission to use intrastate toll earnings to lower local exchange service rates. The Federal Communications Commission established the interstate rates on nation-wide factors, without consideration of the cost of rendering intrastate toll service in Georgia, it said.

Southern Bell states its net return on investment in Georgia decreased from 4.38 per cent in 1939 to 4.12 in 1942; that salary and wage payments to Georgia employes increased from $4,283,000 in 1939 to an estimated $7,849,000 this year, and that operating taxes applicable to Georgia business alone would be nearly a million dollars more this year than they were in 1942.

The company said its post-war plans for expanding rural service and other improvements also would be endangered by any rate reduction.

Heavy Lae Losses Admitted by Japs

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Tokyo radio, in broadcasts reported to the Office of War Information, told the people of Japan today that the "development of the war situation hereafter warrants absolutely no optimism."

One Tokyo domestic broadcast, the OWI said, admitted that the Japanese had suffered "costly" losses in the operations around Lae, New Guinea, and cautioned that the Allies would "continue such persistent movements." The commentator insisted, however, that the Japanese had struck "annihilating blows" at those Allied forces which had landed near Lae.

A Japanese naval war correspondent who recently returned to Tokyo from the South Pacific broadcast an impressive picture of American strength in that war theater, the OWI added.

Civilian Shoe Outlook 'Not Good,' OPA Says

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The outlook for a continued supply of shoes for civilians, W. W. Stephenson, of Washington, chief of the shoe ration branch of OPA, said today "was not so good."

He said the production this year was approximately 480,000,000 pairs of all types of shoes compared with 485,000,000 a year ago. The flow of rationed shoes to civilians is 25,000,000 pairs a month, Stephenson added.

The OPA official said there was a shortage of leather and much of the available supply was being used by the military and lend-lease for purposes other than shoe making.

PIPE CLEANERS FROM THE PACIFIC—As result of a story in The Constitution's "Dear Buddy" letter, which mentioned the plight of Thomas K. Glenn (right), veteran pipe smoker hard hit by the pipe cleaner shortage, Joe Vining, Atlantan now in the South Pacific, sent a pack of the scarce items to the paper for forwarding to Glenn. Jane Noland, who writes "Dear Buddy," delivered them.

'Dear Buddy' Letter Brings Pipe Cleaners to T. K. Glenn

By JANE NOLAND.

The Constitution's globe-trotting "Dear Buddy" letter—a summary of the week's news printed each Sunday for the benefit of Atlanta's service men, now far from Peachtree street—netted a package of pipe cleaners from the South Pacific for Thomas K. Glenn, dean of Atlanta's pipe smokers, yesterday.

A while back—around the first of July, to be exact—Glenn wrote a letter to The Constitution bemoaning the pipe cleaner shortage, charging that "a union of wives" had talked pipe cleaner manufacturers out of manufacturing same.

Duly reprinted in "Dear Buddy," the story reached Joe Vining, former Atlanta filling station operator, now in the Seabees on a South Pacific island and who wrote to The Constitution, with a pack of pipe cleaners enclosed.

"Tonight after chow and two bottles of beer, I lay back on my bunk, comfortable, snug and at peace with my cramped and tiny world. The bowl of my pipe aglow, I was experiencing that bliss and contentment that only an after-dinner pipe can bring as I read the "Dear Buddy" column for July 4 which had just reached me.

"I read with mingled amusement and sympathy the dire predicament of T. K. Glenn. Indeed, 'tis a tough spot to be in when a pipe smoker finds himself without cleaners.

"'Joe Vining,' said I to myself, 'even though you have been out here with the Seabees for a year, you can do an old customer of yours a good turn, can't you? Your wife and all your pals at home have been taxing their ingenuity for a whole year to keep me happy. Here's your chance to bolster the morale on the home front.'

"So it's pipe cleaners for Mr. Glenn, from a Seabee over in the Pacific. Won't you please forward them to him with my compliments."

3RD WAR LOAN DRIVE
--FOR INVASION
● Put a circle around the date—Thursday, September 9th. For that's the day the 3rd War Loan Drive starts.
On that day, you will be asked to go the limit to back our valiant fighting men. You will be asked to do your share in the greatest invasion the world has ever seen. Answer your country's roll call!
Your part is to back this invasion by investing in at least one EXTRA $100 War Bond in September. That's in addition to your regular War Bond purchases. Invest more than $100—a lot more—if you possibly can.
The job is big. Everyone must do his full share if we are to put this drive over the top.
War Bonds are the safest investment in the world. For your own sake, for your Country's sake, put every spare dime and dollar in War Bonds during the 3rd War Loan Drive.

Governor Out of Office So—Prison Commission Holds Data

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

Georgia's three-man prison commission stayed in its tent yesterday without delivering to Governor Arnall reports on investigation of the Cartersville prison scandal.

"We can't find the Governor," said Chairman Clem Rainey.

"Have you tried walking down to his office, two floors below yours?" Rainey was asked.

"Yes, but the Governor wasn't in," persisted Rainey.

"He was in Monday and he was in Tuesday," Rainey was told, "and besides, all other state officials usually leave their reports with the Governor's secretary."

Personal Report.

But, persisted Rainey, from his fourth floor capitol headquarters with the other members of the commission, Royal K. Mann and Judge Vivian Stanley, "we want to deliver this report in person."

The prison commission is the reason why Governor Arnall must move cautiously in his efforts to reform Georgia's worst-of-all prison systems.

Rainey, Mann and Stanley were elected by the people.

Governor Arnall's only hope is to appoint a prison director by executive order until the state legislature meets next year. Then, with Rainey, Mann and Stanley sitting aside, the Governor can ask the legislature to make his new set-up permanent.

Other Recourse.

The only other recourse would be to ask the voters to refuse to re-elect Rainey, Mann or Stanley as they come up for re-election.

Stanley will be up for re-election next year.

Mann will be up three years from now.

Stanley five years from now.

Capitol observers feel that nothing but direct action will make possible a reform: ion of Georgia's prison syst n before the three present commissioners can be put aside or replaced or voted out of office. The prison commission is sitting tight. The Governor is determined to straighten out the prison system.

Allied Secrecy Has Germans In Cold Sweat

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Germans strove with nervous persistence today to break an enigma that stirred the imagination of the whole western world—the question of the exact whereabouts and designs of hidden Allied armies of the Mediterranean theater.

The mystery revolved particularly around the American Seventh Army of Lieutenant General George S. Patton Jr., which had taken a long rest since its Sicilian victory, and the American Fifth Army of Lieutenant General Mark V. Clark, long trained in the Mediterranean theater and hungry for action.

Whatever the plans of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander in the Mediterranean, he already had put the enemy in great strategic distress; it was perhaps the most superb example of the art of the war of nerves yet seen in any theater.

Berlin's wheel of anxious speculation had taken almost a full turn in the four days elapsing since British and Canadian troops of the Eighth Army landed on the Italian toe.

Yesterday the Nazis appeared to favor southern France as a likely avenue among all the great routes open to the Allied command for the next spring against the continent, but today they spoke in their broadcasts of the "justified" assumption of an Allied landing farther up the coast of Italy.

Seldom in martial history had such an immense and fateful riddle been posed for a command on the defensive. Parts or all of seven Allied armies cast their menacing shadows, the Nazis knew not where. These were units of the British Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and First and the American Fifth and Seventh armies, and the newly-equipped French forces of Generals Giraud and de Gaulle.

The arena of possible invasion was as tremendous as the issue yet hanging.

There was a widespread feeling here that despite the absence of any new evidence, Italy would be out of the war soon. The Italian news agency Stefani reported that the Papal Secretary of State Cardinal Maglione saw Pope Pius in audience today.

School Bells Toll Finish To Vacations

Something like that seemed to be the thoughts of Spot as he guarded mitt and bat deserted by a young master who, with 100,000 other "school-agers," yesterday trudged their forlorn way to the doors of schools in the Atlanta area systems.

The number of pupils enrolling in Atlanta's public schools yesterday was 43,018, a decrease of 699 from last year's figure, Jarvis Barnes, statistician of the city system, reported. The decrease was in enrollments at high and Negro schools, while enrollment at white elementary schools was up 616. There was a total drop of 321 in the number of white pupils and a drop of 378 in the number of Negro pupils.

With figures from only 35 out of 56 white schools on hand, Superintendent Jere A. Wells reported total enrollment in the county system to be 11,401 against 11,243 last year. The R. L. Hope school showed the biggest increase, with 656 pupils against 568 last year.

Enrollment at North Fulton High school was down 50 to a total of 1,210. That at Russell High was off one to a total of 1,175, while West Fulton reported 782 as against 811 last year.

Elementary schools of the Atlanta system opened yesterday at 9 a. m., while junior and senior high schools began classes at 9:30 a. m. in line with the staggered hours program designed to cause less strap-hanging in Atlanta buses and trolleys.

Fulton schools opened at 9 a. m. and students reported at the same time to schools in the Decatur system.

DeKalb county schools opened at different times, beginning at 8:30 a. m. and varied to meet local conditions.

However, Spot can offer himself one consolation. The schools opened a week earlier this year in order to allow for a full two weeks' recess at Christmas time when football is at its peak.

Major, Nurse Married At New Guinea Rites

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Sept. 7.—(AP)—There is still time for matrimony in New Guinea during this business of war against Japan.

In a brief army Protestant ceremony in the small office of a chaplain today, the marriage of Major Louis S. Green, of Kansas City, Mo., and Army Nurse Second Lieutenant Mary E. Chaplin, of Falling Spring, Va., was solemnized with all the seriousness of a Fifth avenue wedding.

The honeymoon will take the newlyweds on a brief trip to Sydney.

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—As result of an official inspection of public eating places in the vicinity of the Marietta Army Air Field, one drive-in restaurant has been closed and two others in the city of Marietta will be recommended to the provost marshal for classification as "out of bounds" for military personnel if not improved to the satisfaction of the Army by the middle of the month, Sanitation Officer Lieutenant Roy Thomas revealed yesterday.

Lieutenant Thomas said "the general appearance of the kitchens in question is dirty, even nasty."

"If either of these eating places is declared out of bounds by the Army, the city will revoke its operating license," Chief of Police Harold Griggs added.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 7.—(AP) Dr. William J. Martin, 74, president Emeritus of Davidson College and former president of the Presbyterian Training School here, died at a Richmond hospital this afternoon.

The body will be taken to Davidson, where funeral services will be held.

Dr. Martin was brought to Richmond yesterday for treatment, after an illness of several months.

"Singing Sweethearts" Parted As Death Claims Frank Crumit

By SIGRID ARNE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Frank Crumit had fun any day. Labor Day was more of the same. He strolled to the Players' Club for lunch, and for some tall tale telling with cronies of the theater.

At 3 p. m. he and his wife, Julia Sanderson (holding hands as they always did), sang and wise-cracked into the microphone for their regular five-a-week program. They trailed out through the studio, still humming and holding hands, and across town, a few blocks, to their home at the Hotel Gotham.

In the early morning hours Crumit died of heart failure.

At the same hour his friends of the theater and radio will meet for a memorial service in New York in the theater of the Lambs Club, with Rev. Randolph Ray, of the Little Church Around the Corner, officiating.

Friend to Sing.

It's uncertain what will happen to their "Singing Sweethearts" program. They had earned that title. Crumit's sudden death, just before his 54th birthday, has been a severe shock to Miss Sanderson. But their first absence from the air in many years was to be filled by an old friend from their theatrical days, Irene Beazeley, who planned to sing "Sweet Lady," a song Crumit wrote for his wife.

He'd written many. He'd sung some 10,000 since he started out in 1910 in vaudeville, strumming one of the first ukuleles. His record of "Abdul the Bulbul Ameer" with "Frankie and Johnnie" on the reverse side, sold 2,000,000 copies. So did his "Gay Caballero."

He'd been a four-letter man at his hometown high school in Jackson, Ohio. He graduated in electrical engineering at Ohio State University—and then he became one of the best loved performers of the stage.

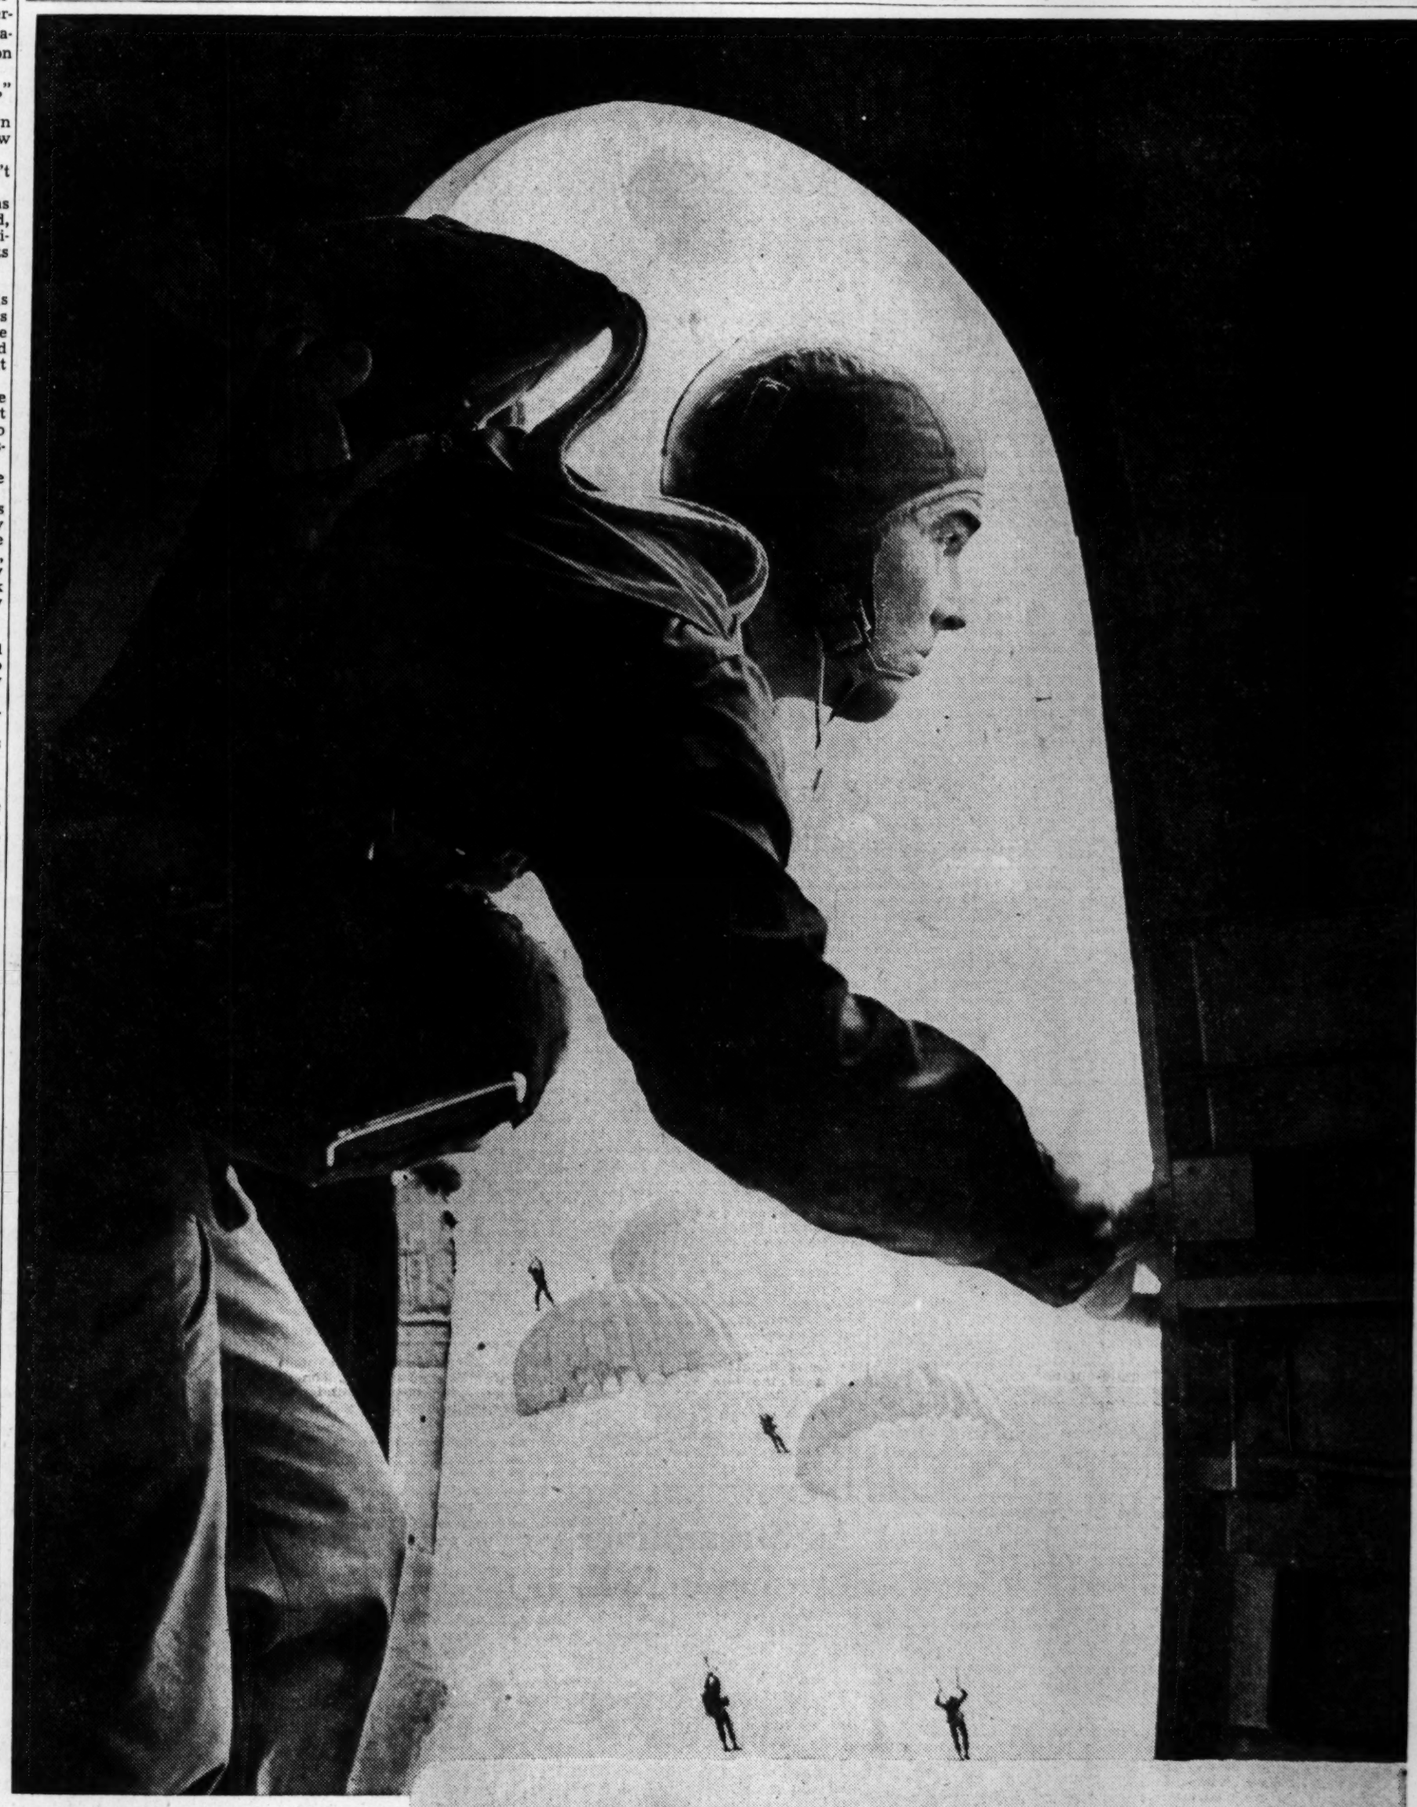

Met in "Tangerine."

In 1922 he met Miss Sanderson in "Tangerine." She walked out of rehearsal when she first saw her new leading man. But she married him in 1928.

They bought a home at Springfield and named it "Dunrovin" because they thought they were. But they wanted just one try at that "new fangled radio." His jovial kidding and her laughter caught on. They couldn't leave the air.

Crumit was known for singing the old favorites. But he never lost his ability to pick winners. He and Miss Sanderson introduced "Deep in the Heart of Texas" and "Jingle, Jangle, Jingle."

His last song over the air was "It's So Peaceful in the Country."

Suppose HE stopped now when the news is good

Suppose the paratroopers don't keep jumping. Suppose the convoys stop sailing. Suppose the tanks slow their advance. Suppose the guns become silent. Luckily for us here at home they won't! Unless . . . and victory itself may hang on that word . . . unless We stop them. The headlines are good. Optimism hangs over us like a rosy cloud. But our President warns . . . "It will be a long, hard war". We can not, we dare not let complacency slow our steps, optimism bog us down. Since the news has been brighter, the Blood Bank reports fewer contributions, the Red Cross fewer workers, the Treasury fewer War Bond purchases. Now we are asked for 15 billion dollars for the Third War Loan. Let's put it over the way our boys over there are putting it over. Let's buy until it means real sacrifice. Let that be our way of telling the soldiers . . . "We'll stick with you to the last ditch, to the last Nazi, the last Jap." If we should fail, maybe the war won't be over soon. Maybe it won't be over.

Nazis Holding France Said 'Young, Weary'

By EDWARD KENNEDY.

ALGIERS, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Since last spring the Germans have moved many of their best troops out of France to Italy and the Russian front, Francois Dementhon, new commissioner of justice of the French Committee of National Liberation, said today.

TOURS WAR PLANTS—James T. Howington, member of the Smaller War Plants Corporation national board of directors, of Washington, will tour Atlanta war plants today, in a region-wide survey being made to see if facilities are being utilized to capacity.

Dementhon, who started the resistance movement, "Liberte," in the south of France and later became a member of the council of resistance formed last spring with the merger of all underground organizations, escaped from France a month ago.

"The German army we have in France today is not the same German army we knew in 1940," Der enthon said. "It has many very young soldiers, many soldiers wearied by the Russian campaigns, and it has been reduced."

He said the Germans had, however, built extensive fortifications along the channel and Atlantic coast. The Todt labor organization, which built the Siegfried line, constructed them, and their efficacy is a subject of considerable speculation among the French.

Council of 16.

The council of resistance has 16 members, he said, eight representing regional underground movements which have merged. One represents the general labor federation and one the Catholic labor federation, and one each represents the following political groups: The Socialist committee of action, a reconstituted radical Socialist party, the popular democratic party, the democratic alliance, the republican federation and the Communist party.

"Its authority is recognized by all the French underground," he said.

As to the extent of the French resistance movement, Dementhon said there are 150,000 "militants" fully organized.

"I would say 60 to 70 per cent of the Frenchmen are De Gaullists, 20 per cent follow Communist directives, and 10 to 15 per cent too compromised with Vichy or Germany to change their position now."

Meat Once a Week.

He said food conditions in France had not changed much in the past year, with workers of the big cities having the hardest time. Official rationing allows only enough meat for one meat meal weekly and only 10 grams of fats daily.

The mortality rate of persons over 60 is very high and there is a big increase in tuberculosis among adolescents.

Labor deportations are France's worst grief, Dementhon said.

"Men are pulled from their homes by Vichy police, handcuffed, dragged through the streets and put on trains for Germany. Families are broken up. Two hundred thousand men have gone into hiding to escape deportation."

As commissioner of justice, Dementhon will supervise the liberation committee's purge program, and he made it plain that he is for an all-out purge of collaborationists.

Official Here To View Small Plant Capacity

James T. Howington, member of the Smaller War Plants Corporation national board of directors, of Washington, will be in Atlanta today to inspect a number of Atlanta's smaller war plants in a regional survey being made.

Howington will tour a selected number of plants holding war contracts in a survey to determine if the smaller industries are receiving as many contracts as they are equipped to handle satisfactorily.

He also will hold a conference with a group of manufacturers and businessmen from this area to discuss the possibilities of increasing the number of contracts in this region through conversion of more plants to war production.

An assistant to Brigadier General Robert Johnson, national director of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, Howington is a native of Nashville, Tenn., and former manager of a plant in Louisville, Ky., engaged in manufacturing clay products.

Following his inspection here he will go to New Orleans to tour war plants in that area.

Aubrey Williams Quits As Boss of Fading NYA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today the resignation of Aubrey Williams as administrator of the National Youth Administration which is to go out of existence next January 1.

Williams' resignation is effective September 10.

The White House made public an exchange of letters in which Mr. Roosevelt told Williams that he regretted "the termination of this great activity for American youth."

"Nevertheless, while congress brought an end to the NYA's existence, nothing can end the long results of its usefulness," Mr. Roosevelt added.

Germans Fortify Paris For Desperate Defense

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 7.—(AP)—A Paris dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve said today that construction of a chain of fortifications in Paris and its outskirts confirms German intentions to defend the city street by street in the event of Allied invasion.

The dispatch said the populace had wondered whether, in the event of invasion, Paris would be declared an open city as in 1940, but that this had been dispelled by workers of the Todt labor organization building an entire system of defenses within the city and a protective belt of forts in the suburbs.

Atlantan's Sister Missing In Rail Wreck

An eight-year-old lad in a hospital in far-away Philadelphia and an uncle in Atlanta were near distraction last night as search at the scene of Monday's disastrous passenger train wreck failed to uncover trace of the boy's mother and the Atlantan's sister.

Lewis Verry, of 1344 Peachtree street, told The Constitution of repeated efforts to locate his sister, Mrs. Marian McCauley, of New York city, and reports from Northeast hospital in Philadelphia said the little boy, Ian McCauley, continually asked, "Is that mummie?" every time attendants at the hospital opened the door of his room.

A city-wide check had not located Mrs. McCauley, who, with the boy, was en route to their home after a visit with Mrs. Caroline Talmey, of North Beach, Md., Mrs. McCauley's sister.

Ian's 10-year-old sister, Carol, visiting the uncle here, sobbed as hours passed with no trace of her mother reported.

"I was eating candy," he said. "The train jumped the track; I wasn't scared, but I couldn't find mummie."

CANASTOTA, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Three crewmen died today as the 20th Century Limited, streamlined luxury train, slewed crazily over four tracks when its locomotive boiler blew up as the train hurtled along at 80 miles an hour. A railroad official termed the escape of 173 passengers "miraculous."

Three men in the cab were killed and seven others injured, none believed seriously, when the eastbound Chicago-New York queen of the rails left the tracks at 4:34 a. m. (EWT) two miles east of here and 20 miles east of Syracuse.

It was the second fatal train wreck in New York in eight days—28 being killed in a Lackawanna Limited passenger accident August 30 at Wayland, near Rochester—and the state's third rail accident today. Two crewmen were burned in a derailment on the Erie line near Port Jervis and four women injured in another at Hempstead, L. I.

The dead in the 20th Century wreck were: Engineer George Pierce, 63, Bridgeport, N. Y.; Fireman John C. Larsen, Syracuse, N. Y.; and Charles M. Wriker, 32, Albany, N. Y., traveling fireman.

As Interstate Commerce Commission and FBI officials began an investigation into the accident to the 18-car rail liner which left Chicago at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, Philip C. Agan, superintendent of the New York Central's Syracuse division, said:

"Something let loose; I don't know just what happened. Maybe we can tell when we take the boiler apart. Whether it was due to low water or what, the investigation may show."

The force of the blast blew the body of one of the crewman 60 feet into a field. Officials surmised that the explosion caused the derailment, not a collision of any sort.

The train hurtled down the tracks a half mile before coming to a halt. There, what was left of the locomotive, the tender and the mail coach toppled over. Breaking loose, the first passenger car ploughed down an embankment, whipping nine other cars off the tracks.

Pennsylvania Rail Toll Now Stands at 78

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—(AP) Seventy-eight bodies lay in the Philadelphia morgue tonight—victims of the nation's worst railroad disaster since 1918, the wreck of the Pennsylvania railroad's crack Congressional Limited in the northeastern section of the city last night.

There were 48 women, 24 men, three boys and three girls. Twenty-seven still were unidentified.

The last body was believed to have been removed from the wreck by 8 p. m., but several may still be buried in debris at the edge of the tracks.

A total of 123 were in hospitals and many were reported near death.

Meanwhile, John F. Sears, district FBI agent in charge, announced that he had taken possession, for examination and tests, of a burned-out axle journal that transformed the Washington-to-New York express into a mass of tattered metal as it headed into a curve last night.

The FBI Washington office announced earlier today that sabotage had been ruled out as a possible cause.

The railroad company said at 6 p. m. (EWT) that the last bodies had been removed from the wreckage. Nearly a score had spilled to the ground during the day as giant cranes lifted the ruins of two of the most smashed coaches.

The task of identifying dead proceeded tonight in a brightly lighted room in the city morgue. An orderly, restrained crowd of relatives filled an outer room, waiting their turn to file past the rows in the inner rooms. The scene contrasted sharply with hysteria and sobbing evidenced during the day.

Many bodies were so badly smashed or dismembered that identification could be established only by rings or tattered remnants of clothing.

Separate investigations into the cause of the wreck were started by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Public Utility Commission, city police and the coroner's office. Railroad investigators and ICC representatives arranged to visit the scene tomorrow and also to conduct a closed meeting.

Chennault Confused, Not Japs, As Operator Sends Wrong Code

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The be-medalled sergeant chuckled today as he hopped out of a plane at the 36th street airport and told how he caused Major General Claire L. Chennault and his staff and some Chinese generals and dignitaries to turn out at a Chinese air base to greet 13 enlisted men and two lieutenants of the U. S. Army.

"It was the biggest boner in the air transport command," ruefully admitted Sergeant Ralph J. Galanti Jr., an ATC radio operator from Lackawanna, N. Y., credited with more than 600 hours of combat flying "over the hump" from India to China. He wears the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal.

Galanti, flying his second run over the Himalya mountains as radio operator, wasn't sure of the code used to confuse the Japanese. So when the pilot instructed him to radio for reservations for two lieutenants and 13 enlisted men aboard, Galanti did the best he could. "I worked in a couple of Santa Clauses and some Betty Grables, but I wasn't sure," he said.

When the plane reached the base Galanti opened the door and looked out upon "all the gold braid and brass in that section of China." By that time the enlisted men were piling out, and Galanti was last on the ground, to be met by an irate colonel who asked: "Did you send the message that two generals and 13 high-ranking officials were arriving on this plane?"

"He was mad," Galanti said. "I could see myself getting permanent Chinese garbage detail when he explained what I had done getting all of those generals and important men out to the airfield to meet us, and having the whole base tidied up for inspection.

"The colonel marched me over to General Chennault and the Chinese generals and told Chennault what I had done. The general was pretty interested.

"But I'll be damned if he didn't start laughing and saying it was the damndest thing he'd seen in China, and he said let .. e go."

Galanti didn't waste any time learning the code, though.

Child Is Critically Hurt In Fall From Window

Toppling head-first through a second story bedroom window and landing on a concrete driveway, Jo Ann Reynolds, 4, daughter of Mrs. Dorris Reynolds, of 39 Maddox drive, Monday suffered a fractured skull, Grady hospital reports said yesterday.

The child was reported to be in a critical condition. She was playing alone in the bedroom and members of her family were unable to ascertain how she fell out of the window, hospital officials were told.

HARRIS, Inc. TEA ROOMS

MEMBER ATLANTA ASSOCIATION OF BETTER RESTAURANTS

Today ::: many motorists have satisfying proof of the excellent forethought they displayed when they bought LEE DeLuxe Tires. They congratulate themselves as their speedometers record tire mileage they never before thought possible.

Thousands more say . . . :

"I'M GLAD I LEARNED TO DRIVE AT 25!"

Back in January, 1942, LEE advertising urged: "Learn to drive at 25 miles per hour! . . . If you are a 65 mile per hour driver and have 10,000 miles left in your tires, you can stretch that mileage to 40,000 by slowing down to 25 miles per hour. SLOW DOWN AND SAVE RUBBER."

That was LEE's advice when the war started. Today . . . that advice is backed up by the results of a 2,000,000 mile test made by the Engineering Experiment Station of Iowa State College and the Public Roads Administration. This test proves:

1. The rate of tire wear on concrete pavements at a nominal speed of 65 m.p.h. is four times that at a nominal speed of 25 m.p.h.

2. Wheels out of line create a continuous braking effect which in extreme cases will cause tires to wear at ten times the normal rate.

3. The switching of all tires, including that on the spare wheel, every 2,000 miles, is recommended as a means of equalizing tire wear.

4. Tests of tires with recapped treads made of 95 per cent reclaimed rubber, indicate a life after recapping of 14,000 miles if speed is restricted to 35 m.p.h.

5. Strict compliance with the tire conservation program is necessary to keep the wheels of essential traffic rolling. The major items in this program include a national speed limit of 35 m.p.h., recapping of tires at the proper time, mileage rationing for essential travel, and periodic inspection of tires. Other measures recommended are: Start and stop slowly, reduce speed on sharp curves and steep hills, check tire inflation each week, and keep loads within the rated capacities of the tires.

LEE DeLuxe Tires and LEE advice have both been proved good. The vacation season is over for most people. Driving from now on will tend to fall more and more into the essential classification. See the LEE dealer! Get his advice and assistance in making the tires you now have last as long as possible!

When buying new tires your first choice, of course, will be LEE DeLuxe!

LEE tires are sold and serviced nationally . . . from Coast to Coast. LEE Tire Dealers will gladly check and inflate your tires and help you in every way possible to make your present tires last longer.

Houston Hotel Fire Takes Lives of 45

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Fire sweeping a small ancient hotel trapped and burned the life out of 45 screaming, terrified men today.

Forty-three of them never got out of the three-story Gulf hotel at Preston and Louisiana streets in midtown Houston.

They died fighting to get down the one fire escape not blocked off by the flames. Two died in hospitals. Thirty-two were injured, several probably fatally. Sixteen men were released after hospital treatment.

It was Houston's most deadly fire and the costliest disaster in the state since the New London schoolhouse explosion which took 294 lives March 18, 1937.

"It was the most horrible thing that I have ever seen in my career," said Assistant Fire Chief George Richardson, 50 years a fireman.

Lloyd Brown, an eyewitness, said he heard men scream in agony.

"I saw men crawling down the fire escape," he related. "Some of them didn't have clothes on. I saw others run down the stairway and out into the street. Many of those were unclothed also."

City Detective H. R. Blanchard told of a man leaping from the second floor to land on an awning and pitch out onto the sidewalk. "He was burned and crushed," Blanchard said.

The old building had many wooden partitions, accounting for the fact that it burned so quickly, said H. L. Matthews, deputy city fire marshal.

Cause of the blaze had not been determined.

The hotel, located on the second and third floors of the three-story building, was used mostly by transients but a number of regular tenants also were registered there. Some were old men, some were cripples.

Few of the dead men had been identified.

Rita Hayworth Is Wed to Orson Welles

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 7. (AP)—Orson Welles and Rita Hayworth were married today by Superior Court Judge Orlando Rhodes.

Welles, radio and screen actor and producer, and Miss Hayworth, screen actress, took time off from their work for a few hours and planned to be back on the job again tomorrow.

Welles, who became a Shakespearian actor and branched into a movie producer, is currently operating under a big tent a "wonder show" in which he performs feats of legerdemain.

It is the second marriage for both. Miss Hayworth recently was divorced from former Oklahoma oil broker Edward Charles Judson, and Welles' first marriage ended in the Reno divorce court three years ago when the former Virginia Nicholson obtained the decree on grounds of cruelty.

State Board To Visit Clarkesville NYA Unit

CLARKESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 7. (AP)—The State Board of Education, which has been offered the former NYA poject to operate as a war production training center, will visit the plant next Thursday to determine the feasibility of such an undertaking.

In Atlanta, State Superintendent M. D. Collins said most of the board members had indicated they would make the trip. The board's vocational training committee will make a recommendation on whether the project should be undertaken at the September session of the education body September 24.

State Invests Over 2 Million In War Bonds

The state of Georgia has led the way in the Third War Loan by the purchase of $2,500,000 in war bonds, it was formally announced yesterday by Governor Arnall and George B. Hamilton, state treasurer.

"We are proud that the state's finances permit us to take this profitable and patriotic step," said the Governor, "and we hope also that other units of government will follow suit."

The bond purchase was equally divided between the First National Bank of Atlanta and the Fulton National Bank and the securities will be held in custody of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta during the period the state holds them, said Hamilton.

Bonds Allotted to Counties.

The purchase has been allocated to the 159 counties of Georgia on a basis proportionate with the quota alloted each county in the Third War Loan, in which the state is expected to raise a total of $137,000,000 as its share in the national objective of $15,000,000,000, the largest sum ever attempted in a similar campaign. Charles A. Stair, Georgia state chairman of the war finance committee, officially accepted the state check.

Of the $2,500,000 total war bond purchase, $1,125,000 has been alloted to Fulton county and $47,500 to DeKalb county, to help swell the total of $64,500,000 which is the goal of the combined drive of these two counties for the Greater Atlanta area. This phase of the campaign is under the general chairmanship of Charles J. Currie, of Atlanta.

Hamilton pointed out that the bonds were a desirable purchase for the state because (1) they were a safe investment and paid a good rate of interest and (2) because they met the specification of speedy liquidation.

Good Investment.

"They are a good investment," said Governor Arnall, "and it is a fine thing that we are thus able to help the federal government at a time when the money is so badly needed. Our ability to do this has been made possible by the fact that we have inaugurated sound business practices throughout the state government—practices which have been followed out all down the line by every individual in the state's employ.

"It is my earnest wish that many of the counties and towns in the state will find it possible to make similar purchases in cases where funds are available for the purpose. It is also my hope that other states in the Union will do the same."

Hamilton said that the bonds were purchased with funds which had been accumulated to retire bonded indebtedness of the state, but which will not be due until 1945.

Argentina

which has cost the United Nations ships and lives;" that "vicious propaganda" against the United Nations is published in Argentina; that such publications not only are subsidized from Axis sources but are enabled by government decree to obtain newsprint supplies at favorable prices; that Argentina alone, of all the American republics, still permits radiotelephone and radiotelegraph communications with Axis countries.

The State Department made public an exchange of letters between Hull and Storni.

The refusal was contained in an exchange of letters with Foreign Minister Segundo Storni, of the South American republic, made public tonight at the State Department.

Storni in the letter opening the exchange assured the secretary of state that Argentine sentiment is "firmly opposed to totalitarian regimes" and that "Axis countries have nothing to hope for from our government."

The Argentine foreign minister, writing under the date of August 5, said his comments had the full approval of President Ramires.

He wrote that he thought it desirable to make direct contact with "your friendly government" coincident with the trip of Ambassador Norman Armour to the United States, and to "set forth confidentially . . . the situation of the new Argentine government established as the result of the military movement of June 4."

Storni said the "evolution" of the Argentine people toward the side of the United Nations would be more rapid and effective if President Roosevelt "should make a gesture of genuine friendship toward our people" such as providing urgently needed airplanes, spare parts, armaments and machinery.

Replying on August 30, Hull wrote that "it is with regret that my government and the people of the United States have been forced to the conclusion that the undoubted sentiments of the Argentine people have not been implemented by the action called for by the commitments freely entered into by their government in common with the governments of the other 20 American republics."

Hull bluntly pointed out that the United States is at war and must allocate war materials where they will be used most effectively for the defense of the hemisphere against aggression. He added:

"Since Argentina, both by its words and its actions, has indicated clearly that the Argentine armed forces will not under present conditions be used in a manner designed to forward the cause of the security of the new world, and thereby the vital war interests of the United States, it would be impossible for the President of the United States to enter into an agreement to furnish arms and munitions to Argentina under the lend-lease act."

Military Equilibrium.

Hull emphasized, moreover, that "questions of military and naval equilibrium as between American republics are surely inconsistent with the inter-American doctrine of the peaceful settlement of international disputes to which so many practical contributions have been made by Argentine statesmen."

Reports from South America in recent months have told of growing uneasiness in Argentina over the mounting military strength of Brazil, a recipient of lend-lease war supplies.

Storni frankly was attempting to explain and justify the general foreign policy of his government, and in particular the failure of Argentina to break relations with the Axis. Such a movement had been expected from the Ramirez government when it first came into power. Argentina is the only American nation maintaining diplomatic relations with the Axis powers.

Prejudicial Atmosphere.

"Due to lack of adequate information," Storni wrote, "or to other causes the origin of which I do not know, there has been created with respect to the situation of neutrality of the Argentine republic an atmosphere which is prejudicial to good relations with the countries of America and especially with that great friendly nation (the United States). Thus the rumor has spread that General Ramirez, the armed forces, and the men who form the new government profess a markedly totalitarian ideology or, at the least, that we look upon the Axis powers with great sympathy.

"I can affirm, and I beg that you Mr. Secretary, accept this affirmation as the word of a man of honor, that such assumptions are absolutely false. The Argentine nation, its armed forces, and the men in its government, base their acts on the firmest democratic convictions. . . .

"The situation of neutrality that the Argentine republic has had to observe up to now, has not been understood."

Air Forces Depend On Land, Sea Arms

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—General George C. Marshall today read a lesson in the dependence of air forces on ground and sea arms.

Air Wrecking Of Axis Morale Is Explained

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—General George C. Marshall said today he expects the air assault on Axis Europe "to be a decisive factor in the ultimate destruction of the German citadel."

"It has for its objectives," he reported to Secretary of War Stimson, "the reduction of German air combat strength to a virtual impotence; the disruption of vital elements of the enemy's line of communications; the progressive destruction and dislocation of the German military, industrial and economic system, and by the resultant psychological impact on the German people, the undermining of their morale and their willingness to continue to support the war effort.

"Thus the objective of the combined bomber offensive is the elimination of both the German ability and will to continue to wage war."

Overreached At Kasserine, 'Ike' Admitted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower acknowledged that he may have overreached himself once in the Tunisian campaign.

General George C. Marshall's war report included this radioed comment from the field commander on the Axis breakthrough at Kasserine Pass which threatened the Allied position in central Tunisia in February:

"Our present tactical difficulties resulted from my attempt to do possibly too much, coupled with the deterioration of resistance on the central mountainous area which began about January 17."

It took Eisenhower just two days to organize a "concentrated attack by our ground forces powerfully assisted by the entire Allied Air Force in North Africa," which threw back the enemy threat and laid the groundwork for the final successful sweep of Allied arms.

DETECTIVE EXONERATED.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7.—(AP) The Orleans parish grand jury exonerated City Detective Joseph Vigurie today by returning a "no true bill" in connection with Vigurie's killing last Wednesday of William Stevens, 36, confessed attacker of five little girls here. Vigurie was among 16 witnesses summoned in a grand jury investigation opened today.

The loss of Wake island, he reported to the secretary of war, forced development of a new bomber route via Christmas island, Canton island, Fiji and New Caledonia. But until that line came into service in January, 1942, he said, the big ships went nearly around the world by way of Miami to Brazil and equatorial Africa, across India, through Sumatra to Java and Australia. The loss of Sumatra in February severed that line.

"While this sudden reversal of a movement halfway around the earth demonstrated the mobility of the airplane," General Marshall said, "it also demonstrated the lack of mobility of air forces until a lengthy process of building up ground service forces and supplies (mechanics, ordnance and radio technicians, signal personnel, radar warning detachments, antiaircraft, medical and quartermaster units, as well as the troops to capture air fields and defend them against land attack, and the accumulation of repair machinery, gasoline, bombs and ammunition) had been laboriously completed by transport plane, passenger and cargo ship."

Marshall Report Fails To Build Up Tokyo Raid

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. — The bombing of Tokyo a year and a half ago by Major General James H. Doolittle's bombers received little mention in the Army's chief of staff biennial report.

It drew a sentence, indicating the mission packed a real kick in the morale seat but amounted to little in the military scheme of things.

"The bombing of Japan by our planes commanded by Lieutenant Colonel (now Major General) James H. Doolittle was a heartening event in a generally somber picture," the report said.

Macon Flyer Meets No Japs Over Burma

A U. S. AIR BASE IN INDIA, Sept. 4. — (AP) — (Delayed) — The "Skull and Wings" squadron of medium U. S. bombers with Lieutenant Joel Teasley, 26, of Macon, Ga., as bombardier aboard one of the planes, swept over northeastern Burma today virtually unchallenged by the Japanese.

Part of the 10th U. S. Air Force which is methodically knocking out Jap communications and supply bases in Burma, the "Skull and Wings" squadron was assigned to hammer at the railroad from Lashio to Hsipaw while other Mitchels bombed the enemy from Hsipaw to Mandalay.

War History

Abroad, Marshall writes, the third phase was "extremely critical": Germany still threatened Britain across the channel, while overrunning vast Russian territories; strong Italian forces were massing in Africa; in the Pacific, Japanese aggressions gave unmistakable evidence of threats against the British and Dutch in the Orient, and our own positions in the Philippines, Hawaii and the Canal Zone. At home, the period was marked by extension of selective service, retention of the National Guard and the reserve officers on active duty, intensive training which included great battle maneuvers, feverish industrial preparations.

The fourth phase began with the attack on Pearl Harbor, and covered the complete mobilization of the United States for war and the integration of its resources and planning with those of its allies.

Fourth Phase.

"During the fourth phase," he summarizes, "the United States and the United Nations were forced to assume a defensive role while mobilizing their strength for a global fight to the finish.

"Efforts during this period were devoted to the rapid deployment of men and resources to check the momentum of the Axis assaults, while establishing protected lines of communication around the world, and at the same time iniating a vast expansion of our military and naval establishments."

It required eight months for this country, acting with its allies, to accumulate the munitions, train the initial forces, and transport them to combat zones. Then the fourth phase ended with the successful assault on the Japanese positions at Guadalcanal and Tulagi in the Solomons—the Allies had taken the offensive, and moved into the fifth and final phase, which will end only with the surrender of the Axis powers.

Threat to Philippines.

It was during the third phase that the threat to the Philippines became obvious, Marshall reports. The Army then consisted of a partially equipped force of 28 infantry divisions, a new armored force of four divisions, two cavalry divisions, the harbor defenses of the United States, and an Air Force of 209 incomplete squadrons. The training centers and schools existed as a basis for rapid expansion, but this expansion had yet to be achieved.

Lack of modern equipment, particularly airplanes and antiaircraft guns, as well as a lack of trained units "embarrassed the War Department during this period both in the training of troops (including air units) and in the preparation of overseas establishments to meet possible attacks in both oceans."

Britain "Defenseless."

Hawaii had been given first priority since 1935, and had more complete garrisons and munitions than other overseas outposts. The Panama Canal and Alaska now took priority, and the uncertainty about the peril of Britain and the British fleet "made it urgently necessary" to establish defenses throughout the Caribbean and Newfoundland. In this connection, Marshall remarked that immediately after Dunkirk in 1940 "the British Isles were in effect defenseless so far as organized and equipped ground forces were concerned. Practically all their field army equipment had been lost and an immediate invasion was threatened. . . . For the United States the military issue immediately at stake was the security of the British fleet to dominate the Atlantic."

With the limited means at hand, the question became one of priorities, and only in February, 1941, were additional aircraft, antiaircraft guns and other weapons available for Hawaii. "A little later" the first shipments of modern planes went to the Philippines—35 Flying Fortresses and 107 P-40 fighters, the latter—as well as some for Hawaii—obtained by stripping squadrons in training in the United States.

Deficiencies in Arms.

"Deficiencies in arms and equipment, especially in ammunition and airplanes, required for the immediate defense of the western hemisphere, the Panama Canal Zone, Alaska and for the regular Army and National Guard with supporting troops," Marshall writes, "were so serious that adequate reinforcements for the Philippines at this time would have left the United States in a position of great peril should there be a break in the defenses of France or Great Britain."

Despite the country's critical situation, Marshall reports, lend-lease aid to Britain and Russia continued throughout the crisis of America's entrance into the war, without notable interruptions except in a few items.

Deployment of American forces was governed by the possibility of a tragedy in the United Kingdom with consequent complete reversal of the naval situation in the Atlantic, Marshall says, and for an even longer time by the constant threat of German occupation of Morocco and Dakar and Fifth Column activities in Latin America.

West Coast "Uncovered."

When the Japanese attacks on the fleet at Pearl Harbor "uncovered the entire west coast of North America," reinforcement of garrisons in Panama, Hawaii, Alaska and the west coast was given first priority. Midway was strengthened, and the succession of island bases established to guard the Pacific lines of communication with Australia and New Zealand. Troops were sent to Iceland and Northern Ireland, outposts of the Canal Zone extended by establishment of air bases in Central and South America (Marshall notes particularly the full co-operation of Brazil) and by assignment of small coast artillery detachments with 155 mm. guns to defend critical points of the South American coast as far as Chile. The Eastern and Western Defense Commands were organized, and work accelerated on the Alaska highway.

Meantime, Prime Minister Churchill and his advisers arrived in Washington, and the discussions then resulted not only in agreement on immediate strategy, but organization of the combined chiefs of staff to direct the global war. "Probably no other Allied action, in the field or otherwise, has exerted as powerful an effect on the conduct of the war" as this procedure for unity of command, Marshall asserts.

The Japanese juggernaut, having swept through the Indies, Malaysia, the Philippines and Burma, was moving toward Australia and New Zealand at the high tide of its aggression, Marshall reports, when Allied naval and air forces defeated a heavy column of enemy warships and transports in the Battle of the Coral Sea May 7-11, 1942. With the probability then that the Japanese would turn their attention again to Hawaii, American forces were regrouped—and the enemy was defeated again at Midway in June.

These two battles restored the balance of seapower in the Pacific, says Marshall, checked the enemy offensive definitely, and opened a new chapter with Allied commanders free to prepare their own offensive operations. The first of these, the operation against Guadalcanal, marked the beginning of the fifth and last phase of the war.

"Rapidly increasing military resources in the Pacific now afford us considerable freedom of action," Marshall writes. He adds, in a footnote, that the major miscalculations of the Japanese was their apparent expectation that the Russian army would collapse under the German grand assault on Moscow, and second to this the prolonged defense of the Philippines, which upset their timetable for other offensives including one against Australia.

British Morale Boost.

Turning to the European theater, he relates that early in 1942 limited numbers of troops—a single division dispatched to Northern Ireland — were sent to strengthen the garrison of Britain and give a shot in the arm to British morale, while steps were begun immediately to build up American air strength there.

"Despite the fact that the initiative at this time lay wholly in the hands of the Axis," Marshall reports, "our preliminary movements were based on future aggressive action. . . . Detailed planning for specific future offensive operations was already under way. . . ."

The combination of British night area bombing and American daylight precision bombing is wrecking Germany's war potential, and "the enemy must find a counter to this technique or accept the emasculation of his industries and his fighter command."

Submarine War.

The combined bomber operations, together with naval measures, already "appear to be in progress of driving the submarines from the seas," he adds.

The North African campaign was "discussed in detail" in Washington during Churchill's visit in January 1942, although the final decision to launch the undertaking was not adopted until the following July. North Africa was selected because opening the Mediterranean would facilitate global operations, removal of the German threat to Morocco and Dakar would add immeasurably to the security of the Allied position, and —if the operation could be achieved without embittering French troops—a setting would be provided for reconstitution of the French army in preparation for its return to the homeland. It was "urgently desired" to make landings as far east as Bone, Philippeville and even Tunis, but the lack of shipping and landing boats prevented this, and the Germans were able to move into Tunisia. When General Dwight D. Eisenhower launched the landings, he did it with a force of 107,000 men.

The conquest of North Africa placed the United Nations in a position to assault Europe itself, but "this was only one result of the victory," said Marshall, naming as others the opening of the Mediterranean with an immediate saving in shipping equivalent to 240 vessels, rebirth of the French army, the demonstration by American troops of their battle efficiency, proof of the Allied air forces" technique of co-ordination with ground troops and strategic air power, and finally a unity of Allied effort—command and staff – "had been demonstrated to the world in a most convincing manner, as evidence of the growing concentration of power which will sweep the enemy out of control of the European continent."

The report stresses also that, while fighting a global war, the Army has achieved a complete reorganization, not only of command functions and administrative form, but in the makeup of combat organizations, without diminishing the rate of increase in numbers and equipment, or interrupting training and the conduct of the fighting fronts.

"The end is not yet clearly in sight," the general concludes, "but victory is certain. In every emergency the courage, initiative and spirit of our soldiers and their young leaders and of our pilots and their crews have been an inspiration at the moment, and a complete assurance of the final victory to come."

Main Points of Gen. Marshall's Extraordinary War Narrative

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—General George C. Marshall, in an extraordinary narrative of America's change from military helplessness to confidence of victory, makes these main points.

(1) In two years the Army has grown from 1,500,000 men to nearly 8,000,000, many of whom have proved themselves in battle.

(2) The enemy now is on the defensive and the United Nations grow stronger month by month.

(3) The soldiers and machines simply did not exist for adequate reinforcement of the Philippines before the Japanese struck.

(4) Lend-lease aid to Britain and Russia continued throughout America's great crisis. (Russia so far has received over 3,000 airplanes, 2,400 tanks, 109,000 submachine-guns, 16,000 jeeps, 80,000 trucks, 7,000 motorcycles, 130,000 field telephones and 75,000 tons of explosives.)

(5) Immediately after Pearl Harbor, reinforcement of garrisons on the "uncovered" west coast, in Panama, Hawaii and Alaska were given first priority. Detachments were sent to guard the South American coast as far as Chile.

(6) The Anglo-American unity of command has had as powerful, perhaps the most powerful, effect on the war as anything that has happened.

(7) American victories at Midway and in the Coral sea restored the balance of seapower in the Pacific, and the resulting offensive at Guadalcanal marked the beginning of the last phase of the war.

(8) The Japanese made two major miscalculations: That the Russian army would collapse, and that capture of the Philippines would not delay their timetable against Australia.

(9) Bombings of Germany are wrecking its war potential and at sea the U-boat appears to have lost its power.

(10) The victory in North Africa demonstrated a unity of Allied effort "which will sweep the enemy out of control of the European continent."

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Shortages of ammunition and other war supplies were critical at the start of the war and, as an example, the Army chief of staff's report cited the necessity for reducing the ammunition reserve for American troops in Iceland so that the Netherlands East Indies would have something to throw at the Japs.

"After urgent requests through the various channels the representatives of that government (Netherlands East Indies) finally called on me personally in the latter part of August, 1941, and made a moving appeal for, among other things, an initial allotment of 25,000,000 rounds of small arms caliber .30 ammunition," the report said.

"They stated that they feared the disintegration of their ground forces unless at least a small amount of ammunition was promptly issued. We had an extremely critical situation here in the United States but the dilemma of these fine people was so tragic in the face of the Japanese threat that it was finally decided to accept the hazard of reducing the ammunition reserve for the troops in movement to Iceland to an extent which would permit seven millions rounds being turned over to the Dutch.

"Four million of these rounds were to be made quickly available by shipment from Manila, replacement ships being started from San Francisco immediately. Incidentally, seven millions rounds was to be the daily delivery of a plant which was due to get into production in early October, but that was to be too late for the gathering storm in the Far East."

U. S. on Guard South to Chile Early in War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—(Wednesday)—Disclosing for the first time that American troops had set up coastal defenses along the South American coast as far south as Chile shortly after the outbreak of war, General George C. Marshall made public today a map disclosing the points to which Army forces have been sent, with the dates the first contingents arrived.

The first move was to Newfoundland January 29, 1941, during the establishment of western hemisphere defense outposts. This was followed, before the outbreak of war, by the movement of garrisons to Bermuda April 20, Trinidad May 5, Greenland—June 30, British Guiana—July 20, Santa Lucia—August 4, Iceland—August 6, Antigua—October 2, Jamaica—November 21, and Surinam (Dutch Guiana)—December 3.

After the Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor, movements already in progress put troops in Brazil December 19 and in Guatemala three days later. On December 22 also the first arrivals of American troopships, at sea when hostilities began and diverted from the Philippines to Brisbane, reached Australia.

In 1942, arrivals began in Ecuador January 16, followed by Haiti —January 19, Cuba—January 20, the British Isles—January 26, Fiji Islands—January 29, Egypt—February 2, Christmas island in the Pacific—February 10, Aruba and Curacao—February 11, Canton island in the Pacific—February 13, Bora-Bora island in the Pacific—February 17, New Caledonia—March 12, Venezuela—March 12, Chile—March 15, Efate (South Pacific)—March 18, Ascension island (South Atlantic)—March 30, Labrador—April 9, Fanning island (Pacific)—April 26, Liberia —May 6, Tongatabu (Pacific) and Galapagos—May 9, India—May 16, China—May 16, Espiritu Santo—May 28, New Zealand—May 30, Bahamas—June 2, Guadalcanal—August 7, Peru—August 15, Tongareva island (Pacific) and North Africa—November 8, Aitutaku (Pacific) — November 14, Iraq and Iran—December 11.

McAdoo's Daughter Files Suit for Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Ellen McAdoo Hinshaw, 28, daughter of the late Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and a granddaughter of former President Woodrow Wilson, filed suit for divorce today against Alfred Hinshaw, musician, charging cruelty.

She married Hinshaw here September 12, 1938, a year after she and her first husband, Rafael Lopez de Onate, Latin actor, had been divorced.

Mrs. Hinshaw's complaint asked that she be given custody of their child, William Gibbs Hinshaw, two.

Mrs. Hinshaw, whose mother, Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, was the daughter of President Wilson, also has a child by her first marriage, Richard de Onate, eight.

General Marshall Tells of Effort To Run Jap Blockade of Bataan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—General George C. Marshall told today a story of heroic and heartbreaking failure in efforts to supply the starving, fever-ridden garrison firing its last cartridges at the Japanese on doomed Bataan.

Thousands of civilians who accompanied General Douglas MacArthur's forces to the peninsula complicated the supply situation, he told Secretary of War Stimson in his biennial war report, and quickly forced the soldiers on half rations.

"Efforts were immediately initiated," Marshall wrote, "to organize blockade running from the Netherlands East Indies and Australia and to carry medicines, special fuses and other critical munitions by submarine.

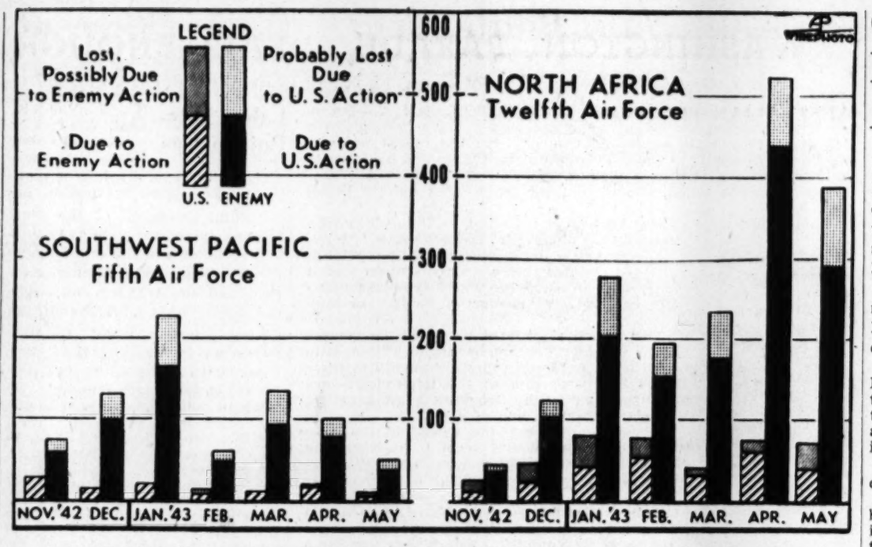

"The blockade running, financed from the funds placed at the disposal of the chief of staff by congress, involved many difficulties: For example, it was found that the small ship owners and crew members approached in Java, Timor and New Guinea would not accept checks on our federal funds deposited in Melbourne, but demanded cash. Therefore, the actual money had to be flown across Africa and India by plane for delivery in Java.

"A complete report of these perilous operations has never been received.

"Of seven ships dispatched from Australia only three arrived at Cebu. Attempts to transship these supplies from Cebu to Corregidor failed because of the rigid enemy blockade. At least 15 of these blockade runners were sunk or captured by the enemy while attempting to get supplies through to Bataan.

"Several overage destroyers were also fitted out as blockade runners, but none of these succeeded in reaching the Philippines prior to the fall of Corregidor.

"Deliveries of supplies and the evacuation of certain personnel by submarine continued at intervals throughout the siege."

U. S. ENEMY PLANE LOSSES—This chart is based on an official chart included in General George C. Marshall's biennial report to the Secretary of War, comparing U. S. and enemy plane losses, excluding known non-combat losses, from November, 1942, through May, 1943, in the Southwest Pacific and North African theaters.

GOP Pledges Participation in Policy Charter

By JACK BELL.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Sept. 7.—(AP)—With all outward signs of perfect harmony, the Republican postwar advisory council wrote a foreign policy charter today pledging its party to foster "responsible participation" by the United States in an organization among sovereign nations to halt future military aggression.

That done, this organization of 49 federal, state and party officeholders gave speedy approval of a revised domestic front statement condemning the New Deal for what it termed "Fascist" tendencies and adjourned to await the verdict of the country on its attempt to lay the groundwork for the 1944 Republican platform.

Although representatives of Wendell L. Willkie, the 1940 presidential nominee were conspicuously absent, divergent elements of the party stamped their approval on a declaration which urged:

Postwar Participation.

"Responsible participation by the United States in postwar cooperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world."

The full 500-word declaration, evolved by a committee headed by Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, seemed acceptable to all sides here as a document which gave comfort to both those who wanted a specific commitment for international collaboration and those who wanted no infringement on American freedom of action in the postwar world.

The latter found satisfaction in the "sovereign nations" provision and further qualification that this country's interests must be protected first in any world league and its participation limited by observance of its constitutional forms.

Those who favored a wider intervention in world affairs applauded what they regarded as an advance position for the party, as expressed in the following recommendation:

War to Victory.

"Prosecution of the war by a united nation to conclusive victory over all our enemies, including (a) disarmament and disorganization of the armed forces of the Axis; (b) disqualification of the Axis to construct facilities for the manufacture of the implements of war; (c) permanent maintenance of trained and well equipped armed forces at home."

This was followed by a qualification that if there should be a conflict between international development and the vital interests of the nation, the United States "should adhere to the policy which will preserve its constitutionalism as expressed in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution itself and the bill of rights . . ."

In making its foreign policy declaration, the council said it felt a triple responsibility rests on the nation to preserve and protect American interests, to aid in restoring order and decent living in the postwar world and to "do our full share in a program for permanent peace among nations."

The resolution puts the party on record as favoring "the widest consultation of the gallant men and women in our armed forces who have a special right to speak with authority in behalf of the security and liberty for which they fight."

Marshall Explains Slow Start

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The early success of aggressor nations was explained this way in General Marshall's report:

"Democratic governments devote their resources primarily to improving the standards of living of their people.

"Therefore, when attacked by nations which have concentrated on preparations for a war of conquest, the initial successes inevitably will go to the aggressors.

"This was the case with the democracies of western Europe and later on was found true in the case of the United States."

For the United States, he said, the initial recovery required the eight months up to the beginning of aggressive action at Guadalcanal.

Changes Asked In Government Peanut Plan

ALBANY, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Demanding several changes in the government's peanut program, growers from four southeastern states have adopted resolutions urging that labor and storage costs be included in figuring parity.

At a meeting here yesterday, approximately 100 persons from Georgia, Florida, Alabama and North Carolina called on congressmen to support the Pace bill, which would include labor in establishing parity, and asked the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) to include storage costs as well.

With H. L. Wingate, of Pelham, presiding, the growers also called on the CCC to remove limits on premium payments, and passed the following other resolutions:

"That CCC accept all sound nuts instead of rejecting those slightly discolored or shriveled; that peanut growers be given full benefit of the Steagall act, which guarantees a 90 per cent loan on all commodities farmers are called upon to produce for war."

Dalton Corporal Gets Purple Heart

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC — (Delayed) — (AP) — Corporal Jess W. Wells, U. S. M. C., of 1815 Tyler street, Dalton, Ga., was awarded the Purple Heart medal today by Major General Alexander A. Vandergrift.

A Jap rifle bullet through Corporal Wells' left wrist put him out of action on August 7, 1942, shortly after he landed on Gavutu island, in the Solomons, with the first assault wave.

Things were so hot he scarcely noticed he was hit. He was firing away and then "happened to look at my hand and saw there was a hole right through it," he explained.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sewell Wells, live in Dalton.

Dr. Harris Addresses Decatur CD Workers

Dr. Pieree Harris, in an address to Decatur air raid wardens and civilian defense workers last night, described to them in detail the necessity of their going all out in backing the third war bond drive.

The rally was held in the Decatur city auditorium. Following Dr .Harris' address, Stanley Hastings, chief air raid warden of Decatur, addressed the meeting to outline the plan for the purchase of more war bonds.

Georgia Pilot Fights His Way Through Enemy, Hits Target

A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 7. — (AP) — His Flying Fortress was separated fro mthe rest of a formation and was continuously besieged by enemy fighters, but a Georgia pilot fought his way through to the targets and brought his plane home safely from a recent raid on Hanover, Germany.

The pilot, Second Lieutenant John D. Schley, 26, of Savannah, related today how his crew shot down two enemy planes and probable destroyed a third, although the co-pilot and two other members of the crew were wounded.

The Fortress, "Sly Fox," was on its way to bomb the Continental Gummiwerke, a rubber tire factory, when it was separated from the rest of the flight, and the first wave of enemy fighters hit it.

"The co-pilot, Lieutenant Arthur Wiegand, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., was hit, but he stayed at the controls, Lieutenant Schley said.

"I ordered him to lie down, but he wouldn't," the pilot related. "He stayed right on. Bullets and flak were raking the ship. One 20-millimeter shell crashed through the bomb bay compartment and narrowly missed the radio operator. Another shell punched a hole in the rudder big enough to crawl through. Then the oxygen system gave out."

Lieutenant Schley said he asked the crew if they wanted to turn back.

Over the inter-phone they answered: "We'll do what you want to do. If you can stand it, we can."

The pilot brought his Fortress into another formation and they dropped their bombs on the target.

"The return trip was another hell," Lieutenant Schley said. "Ships were blowing up in the air all around. Rafts of fighters, five, six and seven at a time, kept diving at us, their wing guns blazing away and lighting up like electric signs. As we got to the coast our nose gun went out of commission."

Berlin Utilities Paralyzed by Bombing Blitz

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The recent Allied bombings of Berlin have not only transformed wide areas of the German No. 1 city into rubble, but paralyzed its public services and much of its amusement facilities, according to travelers arriving in Sweden.

A newly received issue of the Berlin newspaper Lokalanzeiger stated that most of the capital had no gas to cook with and that emergency field kitchens had been set up extensively.

Some 7,000 persons were being fed by means of a public kitchen in one southeast Berlin suburb alone, the paper said.

The amusement page listed numerous theaters and other amusement places as victims of the heavy bomber raids, the last of which was last Friday night.

Stories of travelers from Germany who saw the condition of Berlin added credence to the mounting reports of destruction.

"When those big RAF bombs hit a building," said one, "there was absolutely nothing left. And those (people) in basement shelters, reinforced though they are, never get out. They are hopelessly trapped. Six days after one raid, I watched rescue squads working in the ruins of houses removing the dead."

Said another:

"I saw people running down the streets absolutely mad, their clothing blazing like a torch. They have found leather clothing gives them the best protection against fire, but unless they happen to have leather jackets or coats, obtaining such clothes now is out of the question."

He told of street after street being lined with furniture plucked from the smouldering ruins of German homes.

Still another eyewitness related:

"Families huddled next to piles of treasured belongings they had removed from wrecked homes. They just sat or stood there—dazed. They didn't know what to do or where to go.

"One of the strangest effects of the bombings occurred at street crossings. There, the force of explosions could rush in with equal pressure in all directions. Bombs landing in these open crossings tore away buildings on all sides—simply rolled back structures at each of the four corners. This was especially true at Charlottenburg."

It was said that Berlin virtually becomes a ghost town every night, emptied of citizens who have been fleeing to the great Grunewald forest for safety since the first "Hamburg scale" raid on the capital on August 23.

The newspaper Hamburger Fremdenblatt of Hamburg, which was last raided August 22, said yesterday that the city's water supply was partially restored—but added that only first and second stories of dwellings were receiving water.

Acworth Baptist Church Ordains Two Deacons

ACWORTH, Ga., Sept. 7.—The charge of the two deacons, H. G. Williams and T. F. Harrison, who were ordained at the First Baptist church here during the morning services Sunday, was given by Judge Harold Hawkins, of Marietta, and J. A. Harrison, father of young Harrison, gave the prayer of consecration.

Judge Hawkins, deacon of the First Baptist church of his city, was assisted in the impressive dedicatory service by three visiting deacons, C. B. Dickson, of Marietta; Aubrey Shutley, of Mt. Olivet, and O. D. McClure, of Noonday, and the following local deacons: J. D. Ramsay, Judson Watson, M. A. Goodwin, T. W. Rutledge, J. T. Williams, Orlando Awtrey Jr. and Judge John Awtrey.

Baker Family Reunion Is Held Near Acworth

ACWORTH, Ga., Sept. 7.—Approximately 50 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dick Baker, in their fifth family reunion, gathered at the home of George Baker, in the Hickory Grove church community, Sunday.

The three surviving children are George and Hiram, who still live near the family residence, and Mrs. Jennie Baker Brown, of Marietta, and all three of them were present.

A picnic dinner was served on the grounds of the home at noon.

There were present from Atlanta Mr. and Mrs. Warren Baker and daughter, Martha Ann; Miss Mattie Lou Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Allen and sons. The others were from different sections of Cobb county.

U. S. Pilots Fly Rings Around Axis Airmen

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—American airmen proved themselves better than the Axis fliers in North Africa by a margin of more than 3 to 1 in the seven months ended with May, and in the southwest Pacific the score soared to 6 to 1 or better.

General George C. Marshall did not give detailed figures in his war report to Secretary Stimson, but appended a chart of relative losses in the two theaters indicating the score in graph form.

Rough calculations from the chart showed confirmed Japanese losses from air action in the Southwest Pacific totaled somewhere between 550 and 600 planes in the seven months. In the same period American losses, including those known to have been due to air action, and presumed to be due to that cause, ran apparently a little over 100. The score for our side goes up if any part of more than 150 probable Japanese losses is counted.

The peak month, and the best comparatively, in the Southwest Pacific, was January. In that month the chart showed American losses of about 20 against confirmed Japanese losses of more than 150, plus between 50 and 60 probables.

In North Africa, the total score appeared to be about 400 U. S. planes lost, with nearly a third of them only presumed to have fallen before Axis aerial gunners, against nearly 1,400 German and Italian ships known to have been knocked out of the skies by American fliers, plus between 350 and 400 probables.

The biggest month there was April, when the Axis definitely lost 425 or more planes, with perhaps 80 more probables, while American losses were held to about 75, of which about 65 were known to have been knocked out by German and Italian fliers.

Palmi Taken

bases were being established on the mainland.

The air blows at Naples and its environs were so heavy and persistent they appeared to be a softening-up operation, possibly a prelude to an amphibious operation. Naples is 195 airline miles north of Messina. Its airfields, port facilities and railways were attacked by American and British planes of many categories.

Forts Strike Naples.

Big Flying Fortresses and medium bombers operated against Naples by day and British Wellingtons and Bostons struck by night to isolate the area and virtually immobilize all Italy south of that transportation bottleneck.

Among the targets blasted were the Pomigliano, Grazzanise, Capodichino and Capua airfields; the harbor of Gaeta; the railway between Caserta and Maddaloni; and the Aversa, Literno, Minturno and Battipaglia freight yards.

In all operations, 17 enemy planes were destroyed at a price of four Allied craft.

Headquarters described the cautious envelopment of the Italian toe as satisfactory. Besides curling around the Calabrian peninsula, the British and Canadian forces had consolidated an inland triangle from Reggio Calabria 15 miles east-northeast to Delianuova and thence to Palmi. Among the new inland villages to capitulate were Sinopoli, Melicuoca, Solano, Veramidio, Pellegrina and San Procopio.

British 8th Welcomed.

The newly occupied Calabrian area runs along the steep cliffs of the Aspromonte mountain. The villagers had little food since the Germans carried away all they could take. As in places occupied earlier, the natives welcomed the Eighth Army as liberators.

The inland thrust to Delianuova was made along a road extending from Bagnara, twisting into the mountains.

By resorting to extensive demolitions rather than active fighting, the Axis apparently was playing a cautious game and seemed determined to avoid falling into a trap. It was sending no force into the Calabria peninsula which might be sacked by landings at numerous points up the Italian west coast.

The opposition encountered was mainly isolated pockets of resistance composed almost entirely of Italians of poor fighting quality, who surrendered promptly.

Report Rome Devoid Of Army Command

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The German-controlled Vichy radio broadcast a Rome dispatch today saying that measures to make Rome an open city had been practically completed, with everything of a military nature either removed or destroyed.

"No army command any longer exists in the city," said the broadcast, which was recorded by the Associated Press. "All military and defensive installations have been demolished. Military traffic through the city has stopped. The only supplies coming in are for the civilian population."

Red Star Discounts 'Second Front' in Italy

MOSCOW, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Soviet Army newspaper Red Star today discounted the Allied invasion of Italy as a "second front" in Europe, asserting that only about four to six German divisions were stationed there.

Diversion of 60 German divisions from the Russian front has been set in Moscow as the standard of what Russia considers a real "second front."

Red Star said American and British newspapers had "attempted to increase the significance of the Mediterranean and Italian theater of war, to make it of the utmost importance and represent it almost as the 'second front' in Europe."

Cotton Pickers Will Start Today With Early Birds--Yawn, Yawn

Up until late last night collecting their gear, The Constitution's Cotton Picking Crew—its membership swelled from eight to 10 as result of a big "who's to go" discussion yesterday—will be pulling out of Atlanta today just about the time the early birds are out catching the worm and less brave staff members are still faced with five or six hours of sleep at 6 a. m.

Now, 6 a. m. for some may be the breakfast hour. Many defense workers are wending their way homeward after a hard night's work at 6 a. m. But 6 a. m. for workers on a morning newspaper which maintains only a skeleton staff before noon . . .

Well, as somebody has said, "greater love hath no man . . ."

The field decided upon is that of D. R. Lee, near McCollum, Ga., which, in turn, is near Palmetto, which, in turn, is near Newnan, where Coweta County Farm Labor Assistant John J. Hood made all the last-minute arrangements yesterday.

Headed by Editor Ralph McGill, the crew includes Sports Editor Jack Troy; State News Editor Stiles Martin; reporters Jane Noland and Al Sharp of the news staff; Jackie Thiesen, of the society department; Frank Eubanks, cashier; T. Carl Stovall, from the business office; and two secretaries, Mrs. Virginia Schillinger, McGill's secretary, and Marianne Spiegel, secretary in the editorial department.

Miss Spiegel, a refugee from Europe, who's been in the United States but two years, in the south only one, has never even seen a cotton plant!

The pickers aren't making any promises, but hope that the dawn-to-dusk expedition will clear off at least a few acres of Farmer Lee's 600.

Governor Arnall Delegates Proxy

Governor Arnall last night expressed regret that official business will keep him from attending a cotton picking holiday today in his home city of Newnan, but delegated the unidentified "champeen" picker of Coweta county to represent him in proxy.

The Newnan event, organized as are others being held over the state to assist farmers in harvesting their crops, will be joined by representatives of the Georgia Press Association, headed by Dr. Louie D. Newton, of Atlanta, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the committee of agriculture of the association.

The Governor, in deciding to be represented by proxy, left the selection of the champ picker of Coweta up to the county farm agent in Newnan. The native will meet the visitors at the agent's office at 8:30 a. m.

Arnall's regrets were expressed in a letter addressed to Dr. Newton in which he said, "Upon my return (from Denver, Col., where he is to address a Governors' conference) I will be delighted to join with you in a harvesting program so that I may qualify as a member of the speakers' bureau of the committee on agriculture of the Georgia Press Association."

Only a person qualified by at least one day's work afield may qualify as a recruiter for the committee in getting volunteer workers to assist farmers.

Athens Citizens To Pick Today

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 7.—(AP)—Every man, woman and child in Athens has been called on to help harvest cotton and other crops tomorrow in a proclamation by Mayor Bob McWhorter which set the day aside as "Harvest Day."

Scores of Athens business houses signed a petition circulated by County Agent D. L. Branyon, agreeing to close tomorrow so employes can help with farm work.

Mayor McWhorter's proclamation said food is of equal value with munitions in winning the war and he hoped "every Athenian, white and colored, who is able-bodied, will give their aid to our farmers and our boys who are fighting our battles."

Clarke county's cotton and hay crops alone are valued at more than half a million dollars.

Colonel Hite Killed 'Chuting At Ft. Benning

FORT BENNING, Ga., Sept. 7. (AP)—Lieutenant Colonel James C. Hite, 29, first battalion commander of the 515th Parachute Infantry, was killed today in a regimental training jump, public relations announced.

Hite was one of the original members of the 501st Parachute Battalion, the first Army parachute organization.

A native of Everett, Wash., Hite was former area director for the National Youth Administration in Seattle. He was a graduate of the University of Washington.

The public relations office said his death was the sixth fatality in the three and a half years of the Army's parachute training program here.

Russell Mission Confers in China

CHUNGKING, Aug. 29.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Members of the special United States senate committee making a round-the-world inspection of American troops abroad have spent four days visiting American Army installations in China and conferring with Chinese officials.

Senator Mead, Democrat, New York, said members of the party expected to complete their trip in 60 days and reach Washington shortly after congress convenes. Other members of the group are Chairman Russell, Democrat, Georgia; Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts; Chandler, Democrat, Kentucky, and Brewster, Republican, Maine.

The senators were greeted by Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell, commanding general, and Major General Claire Chennault, commander of the 14th U. S. Air Force.

In a press interview Russell and Brewster declared that a massive naval attack was being prepared against Japan. Brewster said that the "American people will never be satisfied with less" than wiping out of the Japanese fleet.

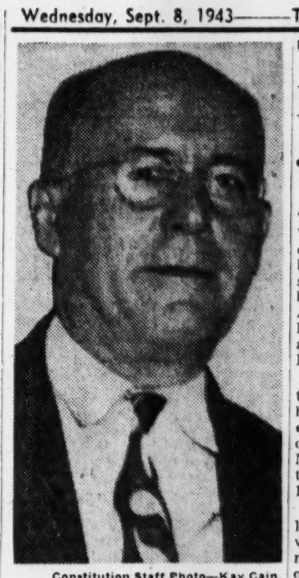

A. J. Chadwick, 75, Dies at His Home

Arthur J. Chadwick, 75, of 129 North avenue, N. E., a resident of Atlanta for more than 55 years, died at his home late yesterday.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Sam R. Greenberg Chapel, Dr. David Marx officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

During most of his life here Chadwick was associated with the Western Newspaper Union. He came here as a young man from Edgartown, Mass. He is survived by his wife and a nephew, Colonel Winard Chadwick, of St. Augustine, Fla.

Employes of the Western Newspaper Union will act as an honorary escort.

SPEAKER — Richard H. Lyle, regional director of the FSA, yesterday spoke at a conference on recreation held at the Biltmore hotel.

Workers Need Entertainment, Workshop Told

To swap ideas for recreation and entertainment for service men and women in their area and discuss plans for expanding recreation facilities, representatives from 12 Georgia cities met yesterday at the Biltmore hotel with regional and national officials of the Federal Security Agency in the opening of a three-day Georgia War Community Recreation Workshop.

Richard H. Lyle, regional director of the Federal Security Agency, explained the purpose of the conference as a step toward the improvement and expansion of recreation facilities and programs.

Mark A. McCloskey, national FSA recreation director, said Georgia had achieved an excellent record in providing recreation for members of the armed forces and that attention now must be directed to the needs of war workers whose lives have been as disrupted as that of servicemen through change in surroundings and living.

Rear Admiral Jules James, commandant, Sixth Naval District, of Charleston, S. C., spoke at the dinner meeting on "Recreation, a War Community Service."

The conference will continue today with discussions on methods of operating service clubs.

Recorders Knock Petrillo's 'Strike'

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—A. Walter Socolow, counsel for six largest concerns making musical transcriptions for broadcast purposes, told the War Labor Board today there was no justification for the strike of the American Federation of Musicians against the industry.

Speaking at the opening of hearings called by the WLB to determine whether the Musicians' Union should end its 13-month-old ban on transcriptions, Socolow said staff musicians in the radio industry received an average of $67.90 a week for an average work week, which he termed "greater than any other group of radio employes."

When President James C. Petrillo, of the AFM, called the strike on August 1, 1942, he asserted "canned music" provided to radio stations by the transcription makers caused, or threatened to cause, unemployment among musicians. Socolow told the WLB today, however, that there was now no unemployment among musicians, and said that union musicians were paid a total $30,000,000 a year for radio broadcasting.

Mrs. G. M. Loeb Dies in 75th Year

Mrs. Gentile Morais Loeb, 74, daughter of the late Rabbi Sabato Morais, of Philadelphia, died in a private hospital here yesterday.

Funeral services will be held at the Sam R. Greenberg Chapel at 11 a. m. Thursday. Dr. David Marx officiating. Burial will be in Crestlawn mausoleum.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Wilensky, of Atlanta; a sister, Miss Mariam Morais, of Philadelphia; two granddaughters, Mrs. Felix Haufmann, of New York city, and Mrs. Harry Solomon, of Birmingham, Ala., and one great-grandchild. She was the widow of Herman Loeb, of Philadelphia, and a member of The Temple in Atlanta.

Troops Flown In Behind Lae; Japs Trapped

By VERN HAUGLAND.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Wednesday, Sept. 8.—(AP)—American reinforcements already are being flown in to an airstrip seized by paratroopers 20 miles behind Lae, New Guinea, and Australians who landed previously from the sea east of that enemy air base now have moved within less than five miles of it.

General MacArthur's headquarters disclosed today that only 24 hours after the paratroopers poured out of a fleet of heavily escorted sky transports Sunday, the Nadzab airstrip which they captured had been cleared of grass 10 feet tall.

Swiftly increasing the tempo of land and air assault in a sector where an estimated 20,000 Japanese have been trapped and cut off from supply, the paratroopers brushed aside enemy outer guards to push on southeastward down the Markham valley. The Australians defeated a Japanese force 10 miles from Lae, then approached the mouth of the Busu river, which is only four miles east of that air base.

Jap Bivouacs Bombed.

The constantly covering Allied air force dropped 145 tons of bombs on Japanese troop bivouacs and supplies, and Allied fighters decisively routed an enemy formation of 30 planes over the Huon gulf.

The western force approaching Lae consists of paratroopers, a parachute-borne Australian artillery unit and Australian ground forces who marched 55 arduous jungle and mountain miles overland to overcome enemy outguard resistance in helping secure the airstrip.

The Kunai growth on the field was quickly fired and Monday morning only a small amount of leveling was necessary to put the strip in order.

Air-Borne Troops Arrive.

Big air transports, carrying Australian infantrymen—seasoned fighters from the Middle East—were landing on the strip before noon Monday.

Mitchell medium bombers dropped 65 tons of bombs in the Malahang plantation area of Lae. The enemy has an airdrome at Malahang.

Enemy positions and bivouacs were the targets.

Two miles northwest of Lae in the Markham valley, 80 tons of explosives were dropped by four-engined bombers on another enemy strongpoint, Jacobsen's plantation. Fires set in fuel and supply dumps were visible for 30 miles.

Jap Air Force Defeated.

The Japanese air force, which was absent during Sunday's paratroop landings, so complete was MacArthur's surprise, put in a belated appearance. Out of an enemy force of 30 planes, Allied fighters shot down two Japanese bombers and five fighters for certain and probably destroyed six other planes. Only one Allied fighter was lost.

Today's communique, in referring to operations of the Australians above Lae, said these troops, many of them veterans of the African campaign, "are pushing rapidly forward."

In an engagement 10 miles from Lae with an enemy force at Singaua plantation, the Japanese were defeated.

Our western ground forces in the Markham valley have brushed aside enemy outguard resistance and secured the airfield at Nadzab," the communique said.

The airfield had not been in use and was overgrown with grass, but American engineers said it could be rendered serviceable quickly.

Situation at Salamaua.

At Salamaua, 18 miles southeast of Lae, where Americans and Australians have been inching forward, at some points within rifle range of the airdrome, the Allied troops are maintaining their pressure, the communique added.

In the Solomons, American torpedo and dive bombers continued to pound at gun positions defending Vila on Kolombangara, where a Japanese garrison is isolated, and reconnaissance bombers probably sank one of two enemy vessels off Bougainville.

In northeastern New Guinea Americans and Australians under the personal leadership of General MacArthur have cut all possible land supply routes to the Japanese defending Lae and Salamaua.

Residence Being Built At Wiley Moore Mill

SPARTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—A commodious residence is being constructed on a bluff overlooking the famous old Harris mill pond, near here, for H. Morgan Milner, who will soon move there to manage the Millmoore farm, flour and grist mill, hatchery, cold storage plant and other enterprises owned by Wiley L. Moore, of Atlanta.

Pearl Harbor Debacle Decided Philippines' Fate, Report Says

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. — The fate of the Philippines, including Bataan and Corregidor, was decided, in the race for equipment and reinforcements, by the Jap blitz on Pearl Harbor, according to the biennial report of the Army chief of staff. Materiel and men were on the way at the time.

"By October, 1941, it had been found possible to assemble 500,000 tons of supplies and 20,000 fully equipped and fairly well trained troops as reinforcements for the Philippine Islands," the report said.

"Few troop transports were available, but with hasty conversion of passenger ships to troop carriers, 11 troop ships were scheduled to sail between November 21 and December 9. Twelve cargo vessels were to sail between November 21 and January 6. Six of the troop ships and nine cargo vessels were at sea when word of the Pearl Harbor attack was received.

"Orders were flashed to all of these vessels to proceed to the nearest friendly port and to observe radio silence. Four of the troop ships returned to San Francisco. The other two, which were well out from Honolulu with 4,500 troops aboard, made Brisbane, Australia, after 15 days of silence and uncertainty.

"All but one of the cargo vessels reached friendly ports. The exception was presumed captured after having reported on January 1 from 600 miles south of Tahiti that an unidentified airplane had ordered her to halt but she was proceeding to New Zealand.

"Another vessel whose cargo included P-40 fighters, motor vehicles, rifles, ammunition and gasoline, was at Christmas Island at the time the Japanese struck. It immediately put to sea and no word was heard from it until the 23d of December when it sailed into Los Angeles harbor with its cargo intact."

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 8, 1943.

"Divided, All Will Fail"

Winston Churchill, speaking before a Harvard University audience, urged post-war continuance of the close wartime co-operation now existing between the United States and his country, Great Britain. Warning that no organization for the maintenance of world peace can hope to succeed without the united effort of the two great English-speaking nations, the British Prime Minister said:

"If we are together, nothing is impossible. If we are divided, all will fail."

In a nation-wide survey conducted by the Gallup Poll, it is revealed that a majority of both Democrats and Republicans look with favor upon a post-war military alliance between the United States and Britain. Of all those queried, 61 per cent favored such a plan, 25 per cent opposed it and 14 per cent said they were undecided.

Breaking the vote down by political alignment, it is revealed that 67 per cent of Democrat voters favor such an alliance and 57 per cent of Republican.

The specific question asked in the poll was should the two nations making such an alliance "agree to come to each other's defense immediately if the other is attacked at any future time?"

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, openly advocated such an alliance at the meeting of the Republican post-war advisory council at Mackinac Island, Mich.

Thus three important indications show the trend of public thought, in both countries, realizing that the future safety of both nations, together with the peace of the world, depends primarily upon the combined strength of the English-speaking peoples.

There can be little doubt the statements by Churchill and by Dewey are reliable indications of public opinion on the subject. Neither man is apt to give unqualified indorsement to any proposal unless he knows that the preponderant opinion of his public is in agreement.

Dewey is, primarily, a politician. While he has said he is not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, he is today the strongest possibility for that honor in Republican ranks, and he would most surely accept the nomination if "drafted." His indorsement of Anglo-American unity must be accepted, therefore, as the action of a man convinced that inclusion of such a campaign plank would win votes for his party.

Churchill spoke the literal truth when, in his speech, he said such close collaboration between the two nations would not be a party question in Great Britain. By that he meant that approval of the plan would be so overwhelming by the British general public that no party could afford to oppose it.

Then, providing statistical evidence in support of the indorsement by the two leaders, comes the Gallup Poll survey of American opinion on the issue.

For generations informed and forward-looking men in both countries have dreamed of such a union. They have, perhaps, regarded it as a Utopian dream, an idealistic hope with little chance of realization.

Now, through the furnace of war, the two nations have been led ever closer together until it is difficult, today, to separate their war efforts either in materiel, in fighting leadership, in fighting strength on sea and land and in the air, in the financing of the conflict.

Bismarck said that the greatest world fact is that Britain and the United States use a common tongue.

Many of those now alive may see the day when the two nations with common love for freedom, with common heritage of justice and of idealism, may be indissolubly united in the cause of world justice and world peace.

For the duration we shall probably have to get along with the old garden hose, though it has given out in more places than Eleanor.

Yet another military chemist has developed a formula for producing artificial fog. They say you can hardly tell it from our genuine post-war policy.

Retirement

Evelyn Harris, assistant vice president of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, has announced his forthcoming retirement, effective October 1.

Thus one of the best beloved and best known figures in the active business life of Atlanta comes to that period in life when greater leisure is permissable, when days of energetic leadership pleasantly make way for days of constructive contemplation.

Evelyn Harris was born in Upton, Canada, the son of Joel Chandler and Esther LaRose Harris

He began his career when he became, at 18 years of age, a reporter on The Constitution. Later he was made city editor and held that position when, in 1906, he joined the telephone company as a special agent, handling public relations.

He was appointed publicity agent in 1913 and was the first editor of the company magazine, Southern Telephone News, which he established in 1913. He later became general publicity manager and, in 1924, was appointed assistant to the president and, later, assistant to the vice president in charge of public relations.

Mr. Harris was a charter member of the Atlanta Rotary Club when it was organized in 1913. He served as president in 1935 and 1936 and, in 1931, was a delegate to Rotary International in Vienna, Austria. He also went to London in 1924, representing the Atlanta Advertising Club. He was a charter member of the Atlanta Council, 660, Knights of Columbus, organized 40 years ago.

Through all the years, to all who knew him, Evelyn Harris has personified the very spirit of understanding friendship. He has contributed much to Atlanta and, it is hoped, will not cease to be an active participant in those forces for civic betterment with which his name has been so long associated.

Bootleggers Await Opportunity

Internal revenue officers who battled moonshiners and bootleggers when the Eighteenth Amendment was going strong, and who will have to do it again if restrictions on the sale of sugar are liberalized sufficiently, are preparing themselves for another fight against illegal liquor and its purveyors.

An investigator of the Alcohol Tax Unit declared that the current shortage of legal liquor provides a situation that brings hope to the moonshine and bootleg fraternity, and they are impatiently waiting for restrictions on the sale of sugar to be so liberalized that they can secure, "by hook or crook," sufficient supplies to begin operations.

Despite the severe rationing of sugar during the past year there have been enough leaks to provide some for illegal distilling of liquor; it is stated that 6,000 stills were confiscated throughout the country in the past year and 17,000 cases were recommended for prosecution, as against 30,000 such cases in 1936.

Authorities believe that it will be possible to increase the amount of sugar for each family so as to provide an adequate supply without increasing the danger of a large flow of illegal liquor, but they stoutly oppose removing restrictions to such an extent as to permit a return of conditions of the prohibition era.

Nondeferrable Vocation

Governor Arnall, in a proclamation issued this week, has asked all Georgia Selective Service Boards to see that all vagrants in this state are either placed in the armed services or sent to prison. Citing the man power shortage in war work, the Governor declared the time has come when every able-bodied person must either work or fight.

Colonel James Keelin, state selective service director, has already issued instructions to all boards defining idleness as a "nondeferrable activity" and ordering cancellation of deferment for all who are willfully idle.

Strictly in the sense of purity of language, it may be questioned whether idleness is, in fact, any kind of "activity." However, the purpose of the order is clear and should be rigidly enforced without regard to any other individual factor.

There is no excuse for anyone, today, physically able to work, spending all his time in loafing. The nation needs both fighters and workers and, in such situation, it is the duty of all local law enforcement officers to see there are no willful vagrants within their territory.

A lecturer tells us that prehistoric man was neither as round-shouldered as ourselves or bow-legged. Then came taxes.

Georgia Editors Say:

THEY CANNOT WAIT

(From The Walker County Messenger.)

The showing of one-third of our school children on the absenteeism list in this county, which may not be worse than in other Georgia counties, is a disturbing situation, to say the least of it.

Several factors, doubtless, enter into the picture, but we feel sure some correction could be made. The loss of $55,000 annually for education in our county is a heavy loss, and those in direct authority should put into motion methods to combat this loss.

With Georgia now providing $19,000,000 for education, the largest sum the state has ever allocated for this purpose, and with high prospects for federal aid in education, we in Walker should get our county in position to share more largely in funds we so sorely need.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

AUSTRALIAN ELECTION WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Democratic leaders have been given a definite lift by little publicized returns from the recent national election in Australia in which Prime Minister Curtin and his laborite followers won a sweeping victory.

By the same token, the Republicans have been quietly biting their nails.

The significance of the Australian balloting, as it is viewed by keen political observers here, is twofold. First, it represents the most recent election held in an Allied country under war conditions and it clearly indicates that the voters are overwhelmingly against any "change of horses" in midstream.

The second significant phase of the contest lies in the fact that opponents of Prime Minister Curtin used the same arguments in their efforts to unseat him as the Republicans are now using against the Roosevelt administration. Hence the G. O. P. cup of woe.

A review of the issues raised in the Australian campaign would seem to indicate the English-speaking peoples think pretty much along the same lines, regardless of how far separated.

In any event, the charges and countercharges heard in Australia sound very much like those that have been hurled across the American political state in recent months. There was the same dissatisfaction expressed by farmers over the dearth of man power and endless governmental controls. Small business concerns and industries voiced the same pet peeves because their organizations were not getting what was regarded as a fair share of the war production program.

"BUREAUCRACY," TOO Australians also got worked up over the growing bureaucracy built up under the war. Opponents of the Curtin administration sought to raise an issue on this score, just as critics of the Roosevelt administration are continually harping on the same theme here.

Finally, the anti-Curtin spellbinderss campaigned for the creation of a national government to manage the war effort in place of the one-man control which virtually exists under the present scheme.

After much ballyhoo and expenditure of lung power, the people weighed the issues at the polls. When the ballots were counted, Prime Minister Curtin found himself and his party an easy winner.

IT WILL HAPPEN HERE Democrats say the same thing will happen here next year. We will go through a hot campaign that will seem to injure our war effort. The people will get excited over many of the complaints made of maladministration, but, in the end, they may be expected to react much in the same manner as the Australians. The deciding influence will be the fact that President Roosevelt, despite some of the glaring faults of his administration and the mistakes of government, has done measurably well with the war program. Nothing else will matter particularly.

At least that is the view seasoned Democratic leaders are taking of the situation. They look on the Australian returns as a sound augur for the future.

The Republicans, on the other hand, see nothing in the situation to lend encouragement to their hopes of a 1944 victory. Their best bet is to see the war end before the coming presidential election, in which event Mr. Roosevelt's chances would be admittedly less.

Any other interpretation of the current political situation would not make sense. Whatever justification there may be for some of the complaints heard against the overgrown war bureaucracy in Washington, against the administration of OPA and numerous government regulatory agencies, the fact remains we have progressed about as well with the war effort as anyone has a right to expect.

DAWN OF VICTORY We went through a period of severe trials and tribulations for the first year after Pearl Harbor, but now we are beginning to see the light. The dawn of victory comes up with a heavier glare during each passing month.

A year ago we had not really got started, except in laying the foundation for the huge war production and training program necessary to our efforts. Today we are in full control of the Mediterranean, have chased the Axis out of Africa and Sicily, and have laid down the first invasion force on the continent of Europe.

In addition, we have apparently licked the submarine menace. We have achieved complete supremacy in the air, and we have finally put the Japs on the run in the Pacific. From here out, whenever the end may come, whether early or late, we are definitely on the march. No one can deny that the goal of victory is in sight.

Any sound political interpretation of these happy events must give the Democrats and the administration in power the edge. The people do not vote against an administration that is succeeding. Only if we suffer some terrific and wholly unexpected war reverses is the national outlook expected to change.

On Giving Your Seat to a Woman.

No one who regularly rides the street cars and buses of Atlanta can have failed to observe that the custom of male passengers of relinquishing their seats to women has become practically obsolete.

Nowadays the general practice is for whoever gets the seat first, man or woman, to keep it, regardless of standees. Unless, of course, the standing woman is well advanced in age or is holding a baby. Then the old chivalry usually reasserts itself and someone sees that the aged woman or mother doesn't have to stand for long.

Recently a couple of viewpoints on this situation have come to attention. Rather new viewpoints to my mind, but perhaps I'm old fashioned.

Until an illness that left me with certain physical disabilities that make it risky for me to stand on a street car for a lengthy trip, it used to be my practice to offer my seat to anyone of the female sex who otherwise would have to stand. Except for extremely young feminine creatures.

Now, however, I just have to remain seated. I don't board a car unless I see there are vacant seats available. Sometimes wait while two or three crowded cars leave without me.

The other evening, having secured a seat, a rather smart, middle-aged woman sat beside me. She started a casual conversation about the usual topics, weather, the war, rationing, and so on. And somehow it got around to this problem of the sex of sittees and standees. I told her it made me feel embarrassed, sometimes, to see women standing when I could not offer them my seat, because of said physical condition.

She responded, with scorn for all men who might feel that way, whether they surrendered seat or not, "Oh, you're just an old romantic!" No one could doubt that she, at least, would feel affronted if, standing, any man arose to give her his seat. At least, she would look upon him as an old-fashioned, behind-the-times stick-in-the-mud, object for natural scorn from such a modern as she.

That is one viewpoint. Now for another.

Masculine Reaction.

This time it is a man's reaction to the problem I want to give.

I introduced the subject at lunch, by repeating my experience with the lady mentioned in the paragraphs above.

"Well," commented my luncheon vis a vis, "I don't offer my seat to any woman unless she has undeniably reached that age where she doesn't care how old folks believe her to be, anyway. And they have to be not far from 90 to reach such an age. Or more.

"Because, you see, women generally realize that today a man doesn't offer his seat unless the woman is really old. Therefore it is unpleasant for a woman to be offered a seat when the act carries with it the implication that she is getting well along in years. In other words, they consider it rather insulting and a reflection on their age-appearance. I don't want to hurt the feelings of any of the dears, so it takes a mighty old woman to impel me out of my seat."

There you are. Two reactions to the question under discussion.

But I still feel embarrassment at my own enforced retention of a seat when the aisle is crowded with female straphangers.

Slacks Are A Help.

Of course, when the aforesaid female straphangers are wearing slacks it is a help. Because no man can feel that women so attired are any less able to stand than he. That costume, per se, argues a desire by the wearer to be accepted on absolutely equal basis with the men folks, without advantage of chivalric courtesies. So, let the slack wearers stand all they want and it doesn't perturb me.

There is another condition under which I have always been able to see women standees without a single twinge of conscience. That is when there is, somewhere in the car, an unoccupied seat, anyway. Say, when three people are spread out over one of those seats intended to accomodate four.

If the woman standing hasn't enough gumption to go and force the selfish trio to make room for her, well, she can just go on standing.

But that was a rule of the long ago. Nowadays they all have to stand insofar as I am concerned. But I do feel guilty.

Wonder how other men feel? The youngsters in their twenties and the older men who were brought up, and acquired their habits, in an older and, perhaps, more romantic age.

FRIENDLY LIGHT.

Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.—Ruth 1:16.

Late one evening, according to a letter in the Dallas News, Mr. and Mrs. Truett Davenport responded to a knock at their front door to find there a young soldier who with a questioning smile said: "I beg your pardon, but I saw your bright light and it looked so friendly; I am being transferred from my camp tomorrow, and I wanted to say good-by to somebody. I have no folks, nobody to care where or when I go, so I am saying good-by to you. You do not mind, do you?" The Davenports have no children. They were delighted to receive the soldier. They gave him their love and good wishes and adopted him for the duration.

May the light of Thy countenance shine upon us, O God, and radiate to all about us Thy abiding joy.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Labor Day Poison Gas NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—This is written on Labor Day. The press and the air are filled with platitudes about labor, as though the scheming demagogs of the New Deal party and the swollen tyrants and racketeers of the union movement, all proteges of the New Deal and the Wagner Act, were the whole body of labor in the United States. Some of this poison gas is the product of ignorance and superstitution, but it is for the greater part deliberate, intelligent evil, intended to persuade American men and women that the Wagner Act is Holy Writ, to be changed only at the peril of the workers.

The truth is that the Wagner Act as it stands today, is a devilish conspiracy against those very liberties and freedoms which it purports to guarantee and for which the mass of this nation is fighting and otherwise striving today. It is being used to herd unwilling citizens into unions which have no responsibility to the government or the community under big union bosses whose contempt for the human dignity and rights of the individual man is expressed in every degree of oppression from political dragooning. As practiced by those New Deal models of union statesmanship, Sidney Hillman and David Dubinsky, to the cold-blooded murder of a brave citizen who was shot dead on the street near his home in Chicago after he had given information to the United States Treasury regarding the financial affairs of the Operating Engineers.

Hillman has flatly proposed that all unions in the state of New York join in the so-called and miscalled American Labor Party and pay into that organization's treasury a per capita tax on every member, regardless of the individual member's political devotion. He sees nothing wrong in that because he is an eminent New Deal union politician and this miscalled American Labor Party is a subsidiary of the New Deal. Similarly, Dubinsky's unions have ordered their members, regardless of their political principles and affiliations, to turn out for political rallies for Dubinsky's candidates also New Dealers, under pain of a fine of $1. He also has required Americans to contribute to foreign charities and to a fund to carry on "underground" or espionage work in the conquered countries.

Dubinsky sees nothing wrong in these violations of the rights of American workers.

European Practice These facts show the extent to which Hillman and Dubinsky have become assimilated or Americanized. More important, they show the extent to which European political thought and practice have been imposed on masses of American workers under the patronage and guidance of the New Deal.

Two of the men against whom the murdered Chicago worker gave information to the Federal Treasury are high officials of the Operating Engineers' Union, a brutal racket which nevertheless has siphoned fabulous sums of federal tax money off the earnings of workers on national war projects. The night before he was killed, this worker was chased through the streets and threatened. He then appealed to the Treasury's representative but that did no good. He was waylaid and shot dead, leaving 11 children. Far from protecting or avenging its patriotic informant the national government let him go to his death and has never raised a hand to avenge him or even to break up the racket on federal war projects which still operates boldly to this hour.

At San Mateo, Cal., a patriotic housewife answered an urgent appeal for emergency workers at a cannery where a large supply of food would spoil if it were not preserved immediately. She traveled by train to the cannery and was told that she must either join the union or pay tribute to the union as a nonmember for the right to do her patriotic duty.

She Went Home She told the cannery people to strike her name off the list and returned home.

"Why should I, with no desire or need to join any union, be forced to do so in order to help our country in time of need?" she asks.

Many others, millions of others, I should say, are asking the same question and these Americans include fighting men thousands of miles away and they did include some who already have died fighting for those freedoms which irresponsible, arrogant, corrupt and in many cases, European, unionism are steadily destroying at home.

They will not be bullied, deceived and put off forever. The time is coming when they will refuse to be governed and taxed and persecuted in the name of labor's gains.

Either the Wagner Act will be amended to restrict union activities to legitimate bounds and bring union bosses under public responsibility or it will go down in a crash.

Those who are responsible for the New Deal party's labor policy are no friends of American labor. They are enemies of all Americans, and of everything American.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

FROM HAVE-NOT TO HAVE One of the very worst afternoons I have ever spent was a recent one as a guest of the Right Hon. Cason Callaway, on his Blue Springs farm.

It was bad because he talked so convincingly, and out of a very rare and considerable knowledge, of why it was important to make quick headway against Japan.

"If we give her two years it will not matter whether we destroy the present islands of Japan or not," he said. "She will have been then so firmly and profitably established on the vast new empire she controls that Japan herself will consider her present islands as secondary."

That was about the gist of it. There was more about Russia. It was enough to send me away wishing fondly that I had not set foot on the farm but had stayed at home in my hammock and watched the bees gather pollen.

It did, however, put me to work writing some letters seeking to find out what has happened to date in so far as our intelligence is able to make public.

The answers have been encouraging, but even so I find myself cheering the good news from New Guinea, and also I find myself saying, "Hurry, hurry, hurry," as I read the news from the Pacific where the unrelenting war of attrition and death goes on against the little brown brother.

My letters asked what progress the Japanese had made toward becoming a rich "have" nation instead of one of the so-called "have nots."

SUBMARINES On July 29 our radio monitors picked up a broadcast from Japan in which a Japanese spokesman called attention to the fact that Japan alone, of the Axis nations, had become a "have" nation because of the war. (Italy assuredly has not. Germany has, to a great extent, but not so great as Japan.)

The spokesman went on to say that great riches had come to the empire because of the occupation of the Netherlands East Indies. This area is, of course, the richest area in the world, and explains what Mr. Callaway meant when he said that, given two years in which to establish and exploit the riches there, Japan would be difficult to defeat and the present islands would be relatively unimportant.

The spokesman admitted, however, that there were problems to be overcome before Japan could "fully enjoy the fruit of their conquest." "The difficulty at present," he said, "is that the materials we have cannot be brought to Japan because of the lack of transportation facilities. If we can solve the problem of shipbuilding we need be afraid of nothing."

The immediate task of the Allies is to keep that "difficulty" of which the spokesman spoke, an ever-growing one until, at last, it crushes the Japanese.

Japan has been able to move some stuff, notably rubber. There is an interesting story about that which cannot now be told. She is moving some stuff, but not much.

Our submarines have done a magnificent job and it is up to them, and to the Allied armies, air forces and surface forces to do an even better one.

RECAPITULATION When Japan took over the East Indies the harbors were almost literally filled with scuttled ships. Japan gleefully announced she would salvage these ships and use them to make her empire impregnable and invincible.

Our intelligence reports that, by last June 1, the Japanese had been able to salvage only 18,000 tons of this shipping. On the same date our total of Japanese non-naval vessels sunk by submarines was 176 vessels, mostly cargo vessels.

Therefore, Japan had not increased her merchant navy, but, instead, had seen it diminish.

Reports from the Pacific areas indicated that a shortage of steel, plus the effectiveness of our submarine and air patrols, have forced the Japanese to concentrate on the building of small wooden and, significantly, some rubber ships.

Three weeks ago the Domei agency announced from Japan that the first of the new "wood-rubber-steel" ships had been sent on its maiden voyage.

Another announcement gathered by our listeners indicates that Japan has not been able to get production going as hoped. Oil production has not even begun in Borneo, Java and Sumatra, "but it will begin any time," according to a recent announcement to the people by the Japanese board of information. It was announced that gasoline is rationed in Java.

Large surpluses of rubber and sugar are accumulating. Some large amounts of rubber were moved almost a year ago. Rubber was the paramount need of Germany and the Germans helped with this job.

It was Germany who engineered, last January, an agreement between the Axis powers in which Japan was bound to conserve these two surpluses for the postwar development programs in the three Axis nations.

Labor Day speeches properly place emphasis on the necessity of not merely maintaining, but increasing, our production. When we do get ready for the big invasion we will need a vast amount of material.

The need is an unceasing and a constantly mounting one. As we move against Japan, we will need more and more planes, more and more ships for men, goods and ammunition. We cannot give the Japanese time to consolidate their gains in the rich East Indies. Apparently we have kept them from making any large progress in that direction.

Apart from the greater consideration, I hope to go back to Blue Springs. And I can't go back until after the war unless the squire promises to talk only dehydration, blueberries and ducks.

The Unjust Man Thinks Himself Just Because He Sees No Fault In What Benefits Him

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

We all unwittingly revere the past. If a thing is customary, we accept it as right without asking who said it was right, or why. Those who profit by a custom tell us why it is justified, and we accept their side of the story without argument. But usually there is another side that seems reasonable from another viewpoint.

In "The Robe," a rich young aristocrat disguised as a poor man, asks an arrogant landowner to hire him as a scribe. Their conversation goes something like this:

"How much can you afford to pay me?"

"That isn't the question. The question is, how much I am willing to pay you."

"But my service must be worth a certain amount to you. Surely a proud and rich man like you wouldn't expect a poor man to contribute part of his work free."

That interpretation of an old relationship is new.

If I hire a gadget-maker, I cannot pay him all I get for a finished gadget. There are expenses to pay, and I deserve pay for my part of the work. But after I take my share, there remains a certain amount I can offord to pay him. If he demands more, he takes what is mine and I am soon forced out of business. If I pay him less, I am defrauding him or living on his charity.

It is seldom meanness that makes us unfair, but one-way vision that makes us incapable of seeing things from the other person's viewpoint.

Ration Book 3 Goes in Effect Sunday-OPA

Ration book 3 will go into effect Sunday for the purchase of meats, fats and cheeses, OPA said yesterday, reminding consumers that the red stamps in ration book 2 will be exhausted by that date.

Brown stamp A in the third ration book, which has been specified as the first coupon in the new book to become effective, will be valid Sunday. The new coupons will be used exactly as have been the red stamps in ration book 2.

The blue stamps in ration book 2 are expected to be exhausted by November 1, OPA said, at which time they will be replaced by brown coupons in the new ration book.

Numbers one, two, three and four of the coupons stamped with airplanes have been designated as coupons to be used for the purchase of shoes, but their exact validity dates have not yet been announced.

It was high noon on Labor Day, when most union men in war industries went right on and labored. General idea was that war time is like gettin' in crops time—a day lost is a day lost and you can't get it back.

It had been pretty well advertised in the papers that there would be no Labor Day parade, with floats and all that. But as I passed Five Points about 11 a. m. I observed a hundred or so Negro women—and many white folks—standing on the curb, admonishing children not to get run over and wiping the remains of ice cream cones off babies' mouths. They were waiting for the pee-rade. I tried to tell them there wouldn't be any—but they just stared at me and apparently thought I was trying to cheat them out of a free show.

They were that way in the autumns when the circus came to town. There were thousands who couldn't buy tickets to the circus but they could get up early in the morning and wash the kids and put some decent clothes on them and walk a couple of miles and wait on the curb to see the pee-rade, with elephants and beautiful ladies and horses and maybe clowns.

I was a tragedy when the Big Show stopped pulling street parades in the larger cities. There were reasons. City councils kept raising license fees on circuses—which were willingly paid. Then some bright financier suggested a fat fee for use of the streets in a parade. That was a little too much—so the circuses cut out the parades. In many cities where it was possible they set up the big top outside the city limits, leaving th town marshal without authority and giving the raspberry to mayors and councilmen who demanded 24 free passes each. Only man they had to fix was the sheriff. And his deputies and their families.

But the parade was the only chance thousands had to see the show. True, after getting a taste of the circus many a father decided he and his wife and kids could stall off the grocer and the rent man and all have a once-a-year treat. And to hell with eating regular next week. Folks don't starve, do they?

Feast for the Soul

A point of view with which, I fear, I am in accord.

There are those who tell us that poor folks should save their money, refrain from luxuries, be satisfied with the station in life to which the Lord assigned them, be meek and give thanks for whatever mercies are vouchsafed em by the Lord and the factory owner. They ought to have better sense than to buy a ticket to a circus or a midway show. Or pull a big Christmas day dinner for the family and relatives.

I can't see that. There are few really bright spots in the lives of the "lower working class." An ice cream cone for a kid is a foolish extravagan e—but the youngster tastes that cone for a week and doesn't cry because there's no meat on the table. Even as you, perhaps, remember an evening in a New York night club when, as your wife reminded you next day, you spent $110, besides the $10 tip to the head waiter (whose income is seven times yours) and had nothing to show for it but a little wooden mallet, for use in applauding a bum dancer, a paper cap and a terrific headache.

That was five years ago, you remember, and you've been back in the mill ever since. But are you filled with remorse? No, sir! You've told about that evening in Club 18 a thousand times. And the more you remember it the more you enjoy it.

I'll concede that the "poor man"—and there are not so many of them, I'm told, with so many varied jobs open—should budget his income, buy only nourishing food no matter how it tastes; set aside a weekly sum for the rainy days—and all that kind of thing.

But have you—in the middle brackets—done that? I haven't. I have cried out: "To hell with it all" and taken a vacation trip when I knew the house needed a new roof. And I have never felt a pang of regret. Indeed, my principal regrets have been about things I would have enjoyed but passed up.

Stranger in Town

This, also, was on Labor Day. Approaching the shop around noon I observed an old chap—about 70, I'd guess—neatly dressed and slicked up, strolling along and looking in show windows.

"It's quite a town," he remarked. "Kinder quiet, but it's a holiday."

"Stranger in town?' I inquired. "Can I help you find what you're looking for, or anything?"

"You might say I'm a stranger," he explained. "Lived here 40 years. But I keep books in a branch office away out on the edge of town. Catch a car to the plant, catch a car home. Don't ever get up town, where the stores and hotels and restaurants and picture theaters are. When my wife and I want to see a movie we go to the neighborhood houses. See all the good ones there, sooner or later.

"Our plant closes on Sundays and most holidays. But I like to stay home Sundays and holidays are a good time to catch up on my work. So I really haven't been in the heart of town in 10 years."

"See much difference?" I asked.

"Quite a lot," he returned. "And yet not so much. Lot of uniforms on the stre And all these neon signs. And buses. We didnt use to have buses. Just trolley cars."

"Town's growing," said I.

"It sure is," said he.

Southern Seaboard Sub Peril Much Lessened, Says Admiral

The Navy is ready for any new outbreak of submarine warfare, Rear Admiral Jules James, commandant of the Sixth Naval District and the Charleston Navy Yard, said here yesterday.

Proud of the mass production methods which send a pair of the new destroyer-escorts down the ways every two weeks, Admiral James pointed out that the submenace has cleared up to a great extent on the southern Atlantic seaboard.

"Even since I left Bermuda (he was in' commanu of the first British colony base), the situation has changed," Admiral James added.

Admiral James went on to describe the new destroyer-escort. "Some people think it is an escort for a destroyer, but it isn't," he said. "It does the work of a destroyer in taking our convoys through. The new ship is larger than the four-stacker we built for World War I, but it isn't as large as the big destroyers we're using now."

Bermuda, which the United States obtained as a base in the famous destroyers-for-bases deal with Great Britain, is "of enormous importance," Admiral James said. "The United States probably will maintain its base there. It is essential if we are to have security from Halifax to the West Indies."

The naval officer estimated four or five years would be required to defeat the Axis.

Admiral James, here to make his first inspection of naval establishments in this section since he succeeded Vice Admiral William Glassford in June, was guest of honor at a luncheon given by Brigadier General Clark Howell, adjutant general of Georgia, yesterday at the Capital City Club.

Fulton Grand Jurors Meet, Elect Leader

After hearing a charge by Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, of Fulton superior court, the September-October Fulton county grand jury organized yesterday with A. W. Falkinburg, of 1045 Lucile avenue, S. W., secretary-manager of the Krueger Manufacturing Company, as foreman.

E. W. Cauthorn, of 2218 Peachtree road, was chosen assistant foreman; D. I. MacIntyre, of 32 Polo drive, N. E., secretary; and Charles S. Hammond, of 30 Golf circle, N. E., assistant secretary.

Other members of the jury are: Henry M. Williams, 1391 Hartford avenue, S. W.; P. F. Scarbrough, Stonewall; A. S. Johnston, 945 Gordon street, S. W.; H. A. Connell, 1043 Atlantic drive, N. W.; C. W. Seagraves Sr., 576 Marietta road; E. M. Estes, 630 Hightower road; R. H. Rusk, 1511 North Morningside drive, N. E.; W. W. Dudley, 1302 Sells avenue, S. W.; W. J. Fargason, 1012 Highland View, N. E.; D. B. Pearson, 550 Shannon drive, N. W.; G. W. Whaley, 391 Cherokee avenue, S. E.; George L. Duncan, 989 Euclid avenue, N. E.; J. P. Bradley, 1088 Euclid avenue, N. W.

J. T. Hawthorne, 1114 Reeder circle, N. E.; Royse N. Davis, 1679 Westwood avenue, S. W.; Milton Washburn, 492 Johnson avenue, N. E.; J. A. Wills, Alpharetta; J. Gross Harper, Georgian Terrace hotel; and C. A. Floyd, of Fairburn.

90-Day Drift On Fish Diet Saved Officer

Lieutenant Commander Carl F. Faires Jr. spent 90 days in a boat with four other officers after escaping from Corregidor and Bataan, but he's none the worse for wear.

Here to visit his aunt, Mrs. Ella M. Chisholm, and cousin, Mrs. J. L. Hargrove, of 956 Juniper street, N. E., Commander Faires related how he and the other officers left a Philippine island after the Japs already had landed on it.

Jap planes and a warship ignored the outrigger, but watched them closely at times and scared the men. As for the food situation, Commander Faires said, it was under control. They lost weight, because the diet wasn't balanced, he said, but with vitamin pills and fish they caught, the men got along all right.

Naval Stores Men Meet Here Today

Naval stores producers in the southern states will meet here at 10 a. m. today to discuss and study proposed provisions of the 1944 program, Harley Langdale, of Valdosta, Ga., president of the American Turpentine Farmers' Association Co-operative, said yesterday.

The meeting will be held in United States district forest offices in the Glenn building. Heretofore, such meetings have been held in Washington, D. C., but transportation difficulties brought it to centrally located Atlanta this year.

Regional Forester Joseph Kirchner will meet with the producers. Langdale said the meeting will be open to any gum producer.

by Joe Marsh

Almost everybody's figuring what things'll be like after the war. I talked about that today with Jeb Crowell. Jeb—he's a veteran of the last War—says:

"One thing's sure, Joe. The boys this time won't return and find what we came back to."

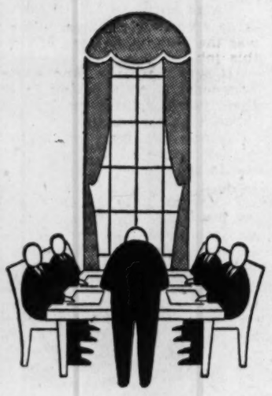

Then he went on to mention Prohibition... and I ought to say right here that Jeb's a man of moderation... a glass of beer or two is all he'll ever take. It was the principle of the thing that bothered him.

"Passing a law behind our backs," he says, "was violatin' just what we were fightin' for. The very principles we fought for in 1776. Law-makin' without representation is one of the most undemocratic things we can do."

I guess we're all agreed on that. Most folks admit we made a mistake once... but the boys who are fighting this war can be pretty sure we won't pull anything like that again!

13 Magic Number For Griffin Flyer

U. S. HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Thirteen is the magic number so far as the U. S. Thirteenth Air Force in the South Pacific is concerned.

Thirteen of the members have shot down five or more Jap planes each.

Among the group of 13, who have shot down more than five planes each, are:

Captain Lucian B. Shuler, of Griffin, Ga.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste

If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, so ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

LOYALTY

ON your vacation and business trips in the past—as well as at your neighborhood Service Station—you have been served often by loyal men in the Standard Oil uniform. They were loyal to you—they were loyal to us.

It was only natural that men in whom the quality of loyalty was inbred and cherished should respond in large numbers to the call of their country. Hundreds of these stanch and faithful men have exchanged their old Service uniforms for the new uniform of greater service to Uncle Sam.

Someday they will be coming back, their new job finished. You will find them still loyal to you when they change uniforms again.

Forts Attack France; RAF Batters Munich

By GLADWIN HILL.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—American bombers smashed railways and airfields of occupied France and Belgium today following a heavy night attack by the RAF against Munich—birthplace of the Nazi party and railroad funnel to the strategic Brenner pass.

HONORED—John L. Conner yesterday was appointed assistant governor of the Federal Home Loan Bank system, to aid in the third war bond campaign.

All American bombers returned from operations on this, the sixth straight day of aerial siege which British-based Allied planes are keeping against the continent.

Raiding the continent for the second day in succession, American Flying Fortresses swept over to bomb an airfield and aircraft factory at Brussels-Avere in Belgium and to blast targets near St. Omer, France. American Marauders flew to Saint Pol for the second time in four days, further crippling enemy rail transportation centers in northwestern France.

There were indications that the Germans were taking a significant drubbing from these American and RAF blows, and signs multiplied that the Allied air forces not only are waging a successful diversionary campaign, but also are gaining increasing air superiority.

Crew members reported that good bombing results were obtained in the Marauders' raid directed against the Saint Pol freight yards. RAF Mitchells and Typhoons hit the marshalling yards at St. Omer and air fields at Poix and Abbeville. Liberators attacked a convoy off the Dutch coast, it was announced.

Not one enemy fighter was seen by any of the hundreds of Spitfires and Typhoons which assisted in escorting the bombers through the day's operatitons, the Air Ministry News Service reported tonight.

The presence of some enemy air opposition was indicated, however, by a joint air ministry and U. S. Army communique which reported that Thunderbolts downed two enemy fighters and one Allied fighter plane was missing.

The Typhoon fighter-bombers in the attack on the Poix airfield caught the defenses completely off guard, the air ministry said, and destroyed several German planes on the ground. Bombs dropped near the headquarters and on the dispersal runways.

The Munich raid last night in a row and the fifth in eight that RAF heavy bombers have hit Germany.

RAF Loses 16 Bombers.

Sixteen bombers were lost in the concentrated raking given Munich and a total of 147 bombers were lost in the RAF's five latest big raids on Germany. This figure is somewhat less, as far as the size of the forces can be gauged, than the 5 per cent rate considered as constituting an economical operation.

The rapidly shifting defense methods used by the Germans hinted at their perplexity. At the beginning of last week, instead of their standard dependence on flak, they tried a search light-fighter combination. They then switched to an aerial flare and fighter combination.

In the Mannheim raid Sunday, however, they went back to flak, but instead of aiming at the bombers, their antiaircraft guns were used to shoot up a ring "wall" around the target with their fighters operating inside.

Nazis Use Flares.

The Germans tried once more to counter the RAF attack on Munich last night by using flares to light up the raiders' path, but a large part of the attacking force already had left the city before the flares were dropped, the air ministry news service reported.

In retaliation for recent raids, a comparatively small force of German air force raiders struck back at Britain last night. They scattered bombs over the Thames estuary and touched off a brief alert in some districts of London about 3:30 a. m., but no bombs fell in the capital. Two of the raiders were reported destroyed, and two other Nazi fighters were shot down over their continental bases by RAF fighters on intruder patrols.

John L. Conner To Aid Nation's 3d Bond Drive

John L. Conner, president of the Southern Federal Savings & Loan Association, has been appointed assistant governor of the Federal Home Loan Bank system to handle a special assignment in connection with the third War Bond drive, James Twohy, governor of the system, announced from Washington yesterday.

The position will necessitate nation-wide travel for Conner, Governor Twohy said. He will hold meetings with as many of the 4,000 members of the system as possible.

Conner received wide recognition for his leadership in bond-selling drives here. He was chairman of the Atlanta Cruiser Bond committee, oversubscribing a $35,750,000 quota with the sale of $62,000,000 in bonds. He also was chairman of the War Bond breakfast which sold $3,329,000 worth of bonds after setting a quota of $1,000,000.

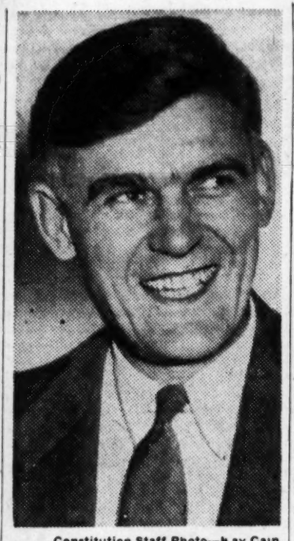

Besides being president of Southern Federal, Conner is vice president and treasurer of Dargan, Whitington & Conner, Inc.

FOR WORLD POLICE—United States Senator Joseph H. Ball, of Minnesota, spoke here yesterday in favor of an international police force after the war.

Policing Axis Called Vital to Postwar Plans

By ROLFE EDMONDSON.

Sentiment for the armies of the United Nations to become an international police force after the war is rapidly crystallizing throughout the nation and in congress, Senator Joseph H. Ball, of Minnesota, who addressed more than 400 Atlantans yesterday at a Kiwanis Club luncheon held in the Ansley hotel, declared.

Senator Ball, now headed toward Washington for the convening of congress next week, is bringing to a conclusion a speaking tour that has carried him to the Pacific coast and through the south and southwestern part of the United States.

Favors Police Force.

"I am one of 10 members of congress who have been out speaking and advocating an international police force," Senator Ball said in an interview.

"I am convinced an international police force of some description must be set up, and I also believe we will participate in that force."

Senator Ball is the co-author of a resolution now pending before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee calling for organization of the United Nations to police Axis countries after the war.

"Two Democrats and two Republicans are the authors of this resolution," he said. "Our resolution, which calls for policing and for whatever aid is necessary for the Axis countries, may not be the resolution congress finally passes, but I believe congress will enact some sort of legislation calling for a permanent United Nations organization, and for a world police force."

Nucleus Already Formed.

As to how long such a police force will have to function, Senator Ball said he had no idea. However, he did express the opinion that the police force could be made up largely of members of the Army aviation forces.

"We have the nucleus of such a police force today," Senator Ball said. "The armies of the United Nations are functioning together while we are at war, and I see no reason why they could not continue to function together after the war."

He was introduced by Congressman Robert Ramspeck at the luncheon.

Mrs. Ritchie Resumes Cancer Control Duties

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 7.—After having served for three months as acting national commander of the Women's Field Army for Control of Cancer in the New York headquarters, Mrs. H. B. Ritchie has returned here to resume her duties as Georgia commander and deputy national commander in charge of the southeastern states.

Mrs. Ritchie was succeeded in New York by Mrs. Lucy R. Milligan, who has already assumed the duties of national commander.

Mrs. Ritchie also said that three honorary national commanders of the field army have been named. They are Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts; Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt, president of Mills College, Oakland, Cal., and Dr. Florence Rena Sabin, Denver, Col., noted research worker and member emefitus of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Ernie Pyle Reveals:

Engineers Bridge Crater in 24 Hours

By ERNIE PYLE.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—When the 45th Division went into reserve along the north coast of Sicily after several weeks of hard fighting, I moved on with the Third Division which took up the ax and drove the enemy on to Messina.

I am still doing engineers and it was on my very first day with the Third that we hit the most difficult and spectacular engineering job of the Sicilian campaign.

You've doubtless noticed Point Calava on your maps. It is a great stub of rock that sticks out into the sea, forming a high ridge running back into the interior. The coast highway is tunneled through this big rock, and on either side of the tunnel the road sticks out of the sheer rock wall like a shelf.

Germans Blow Crater.

Our engineers figured the Germans would blow the tunnel entrance to seal it up. But they didn't. They had an even better idea. They picked out a spot about 50 feet beyond the tunnel mouth and blew a hole 150 feet long in the road shelf. They blew it so deeply and thoroughly that if you dropped a rock into it the rock would never stop rolling until it bounced into the sea a couple of hundred feet below.

We were beautifully bottlenecked. You couldn't by-pass around up over the mountain, for it would take weeks. You could not fill the hole, for it would keep sliding off into the water.

All you could do was bridge it, and that was a hell of a job. But bridge it they did, and in only 24 hours.

When the first engineer officers went up to inspect the tunnel, I went with them. We had to leave the jeep at a blown bridge and walk the last four miles uphill. We went with an infantry battalion that was following the retreating Germans.

Floor Mined.

When we got there we found the tunnel floor mined. But each spot where they'd dug into the hard rock floor left its telltale mark, so it was no job for the engineers to uncover and unscrew the detonators of scores of mines. Then we went on through to the vast hole beyond, and the engineering officers began making their calculations.

As we did so, the regiment of infantry crawled across the chasm, one man at a time. You could just barely make it on foot by holding on to the rock juttings and practically crawling.

Another regiment went up over the ridge and took out after the evacuating enemy with only what weapons and provisions they could carry on their backs. Before another 24 hours, they'd be 20 miles ahead of us and in contact with the enemy, so getting this hole bridged and supplies and supporting guns to them was indeed a matter of life and death.

It was around 2 p. m. when we got there and in two hours the little platform of highway at the crater mouth resembled a littered street in front of a burning building. Air hoses covered the ground, serpentined over each other. Three big air compressors were parked side by side, their engines cutting off and on in that erratically deliberate manner of air compressors, and jack hammers clattered their nerve-racking din.

Bulldozers came to clear off the stone-blocked highway at the crater edge. Trucks, with long trailers bearing railroad irons and huge timbers, came and unloaded. Steel cable was brought up. And kegs of spikes and all kinds of crowbars and sledges.

The thousands of vehicles of the division were halted some 10 miles back in order to keep the highway clear for the engineers. One platoon of men worked at a time in the hole. There was no use of throwing in the whole company, for there was room for only so many.

Rations for Engineers.

At suppertime, hot rations were brought up by truck. The Third Division engineers go on K ration at noon but morning and evening they get hot food up to them, regardless of the job.

If you could see how they toil, you would know how important hot food is. By dusk the work was in full swing and half the men were stripped to the waist.

The night air of the Mediterranean was tropical. The moon came out at twilight and extended our light for a little while. The moon was new and pale, and transient high-flying night clouds brushed it and scattered shadows down on us.

Then its frail light went out, and the blinding nightlong darkness settled over the insidious abyss. But the work never slowed nor halted, throughout the night.

Marietta Honors Cobb Inductees

The Constitution's Marietta News Bureau

MARIETTA, Ga., Sept. 7.—A large group of inductees from Cobb county left Marietta this morning for Fort McPherson, according to Local Board No. 1. Before leaving for the Army, they attended a breakfast in their honor at the Y. W. C. A. rooms on Park Square.

Milk Control Plan Seen This Week

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—A system of controlling sales of fluid milk in shortage areas, under which home deliveries and store sales for home consumption will be given priority over sales to public eating places, is expected to be announced this week by the War Food Administration.

The control program, now before Food Administrator Marvin Jones, would put the job of dividing supplies equitably largely upon the shoulders of the dairy industry itself. The country would be divided into a number of distribution areas—about 47—with a government marketing agent in charge of each. He would be assisted by advisory committees of the milk industry. Milk dealers would be assessed to cover administration costs.

Medal Given Winder Soldier

Staff Sergeant Noel G. Bracewell, Almyra, Ark.

Sergeant Charles H. McDonald, Winder, Ga.

58 New Cases of Polio Break Out in Illinois

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Fifty-eight new cases of infantile paralysis in Chicago and Cook county in the last 72 hours increased the epidemic total today to 632, with 64 deaths, since July 1.

In Chicago, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, health commissioner, reported 45 new cases and six deaths since Saturday, and county health authorities reported 13 new cases and one additional death.

Chinese Awarded Spot In Transocean Shipping

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The United States today executed agreements which will place China in the transocean shipping trade for the first time in history.

The War Shipping Administration announced it had assigned two Liberty ships to the Chinese government, to be manned by Chinese seamen and operated under the Chinese flag for the duration. Due to the present lack of Chinese merchant officers, American officers will be carried until Chinese replacements can be trained.

Two Atlantans Among 14 State War Casualties

Six Georgians, including two Atlantans, were reported wounded in action, and eight listed as missing, according to official word from the Army and Navy departments yesterday.

Wesley F. Corley, son of Mrs. Cora Belle Corley, of 1063 Manigault street, S. W., was reported wounded in action in the North African theater of operations.

Also listed as wounded in that area was Staff Sergeant John W. Rogers, son of Thomas H. Rogers, of Glennville.

Wounded in action in the Middle East area were Edward A. Harrison Jr., son of Mrs. Edward A. Harrison, of Rome, and Floyd O. Mewborn, husband of Mrs. Georgia B. Mewborn, of 1583 Woodbine avenue, the reports said.

Two Georgians listed as wounded in action in the Pacific area were Huie Edwards, son of Hugh T. Edwards, of Covington, and Sergeant William N. Hagan, son of Mrs. Mattie L. Hagan, of Savannah.

Technical Sergeant Mildred O. Fambrough, son of Harvey C. Fambrough, of Marietta; Second Lieutenant William D. Hand, son of Ploomer S. Hand, of Brookfield; Staff Sergeant George E. Henriot Jr., son of George E. Henriot Sr., of Savannah, and Staff Sergeant Charles V. Richey, son of Mrs. John H. Richey, of Fitzgerald, were reported missing in action in the European theater of operations.

Listed as missing in action in the North African area were Second Lieutenant Theodore F. Balk Jr., husband of Mrs. Betty F. Balk, of Augusta, and Corporal Malvin W. Kitchens, husband of Mrs. Eloise M. Kitchens, of Columbus.

Andrew Jackson Kirksey, husband of Mrs. Kloye Ann Kirksey, of Manchester, and Charles Greene Moore, son of Heber James Moore, of Millen, were reported missing in action with the United States Navy.

Chicago's Hotel Stevens Sold for $5,251,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Sale of the Stevens Hotel in Chicago to A. S. Kirkeby, Chicago hotel operator, on his cash bid of $5,251,000 was announced today by the War Department.

The sale has been approved by the office of the undersecretary of war, which accepted Kirkeby's agreement to pay $175,000 within 10 days of notification of acceptance of his bid, and the balance in cash within 120 days.

The Army received four bids for the 22-story hotel, purchased by the War Department 13 months ago at a net cost of $5,558,986 for use in the air forces training program.

Asthma Mucus Loosened While You Sleep

Say Thousands of Sufferers

Choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma ruin your sleep and rob your blood of vitally important oxygen because you can't get air in and out of your lungs properly. But now it is no longer necessary to suffer from these terrible attacks without the benefit you may receive from a physician's prescription called Mendaco. Within a very short time after the first dose, Mendaco ingredients start circulating thru the blood, thus reaching the smallest as well as the largest Bronchial tubes where they usually quickly help liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. In fact, Mendaco has proved so successful in helping thousands of sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma that it is sold under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. So get Mendaco from your druggist today for only 60c.

Gromyko, Hull Again Confer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Soviet Ambassador-Designate Andrei A. Gromyko today paid another formal visit to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, bearing a communication from his government which he described as routine.

He said he could not comment on authoritative reports that a Mediterranean commission was being formed and would include representation of the Soviet Union.

Gromyko's credentials as ambassador to the United States have not yet arrived, he said.

Politics Put Aside by Arnall In Naming Constitution Body

Brushing aside partisan politics for the purpose of utilizing the most capable persons in the state on this "history-making" project, Governor Arnall yesterday announced appointment of a commission to redrait Georgia's "crazy patchwork" constitution.

The commission is charged with the duty of simplifying the state constitution which has been amended 296 times since it was first drawn in 1877.

Governor Arnall said the commission will serve as a co-ordinator to use the "best brains in the state in writing a constitution that should be a model for the rest of the nation to follow." The commission will call in tax experts and educational leaders in an effort to use all the knowledge available. The new constitution should promote government, education, and business, he added.

Only One Woman.

The only woman, and the only Atlantan, on the commission, is Mrs. Leonard Haas, a leader in the League of Women Voters. She was appointed by the Governor as one of three laymen on the commission. R. E. L. Majors, of Claxton, president of the Georgia Press Association, and Hamilton Holt, of Macon, businessman and civic leader, are the other two laymen.

The Governor named three outstanding attorneys, James V. Carmichael, of Marietta; Frank D. Foley, of Columbus, and Hatton Lovejoy, of LaGrange; and two superior court judges, Judges Tom Candler, of Blairsville, and W. R. Smith, of Nashville.

To Name Judges.

Automatically on the commission under the legislative act are Governor Arnall, Senate President Gross, House Speaker Harris, Attorney General T. Grady Head, and State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr.

The Governor said redrafting the constitution probably would require months of work even after studies have been completed. The commission's proposed new constitution would be submitted to the legislature, which, in turn, would send it to the people for ratification.

Parole Head Blames Short-Cut Release of Criminals on Law

Because the new pardon and parole board's "hands are tied" on a minimum sentence interpretation by trial judges, trial juries and the attorney general, Chairman Edward B. Everett said yesterday that the board "unquestionably has automatically released from prison some potentially dangerous and habitual criminals who otherwise under policy of the board would not have been discharged before their maximum sentence date."

He said he would welcome a court interpretation of the minimum and maximum law or consideration by the legislature of changing the law.

Everett's comments were made in a letter to Morgan Blake, foreman of the Fulton county grand jury, which voiced the criticism, agreeing with the jury's recommendation regarding the "conditional release order."

The jury charged some habitual criminals had been returned to society after serving their minimum sentences, regardless of past records, if their present records were good.

Everett said trial judges and jurors had told the board it was their intention that prisoners should be released at the end of their minimum sentence if they had good institutional records. He said the attorney general interpreted the general assembly's maximum-minimum law to mean the same thing.

For this reason, Everett said, the parole board adopted a "conditional release order" which would automatically discharge a prisoner at the end of his minimum sentence, but would keep him under the jurisdiction of the board until his maximum term expired. This differs from a parole in that a parole is a discretionary act of the board, while conditional release is automatic.

Until a court ruling is made or until the law is changed, Everett said the board, regardless of its feeling in the matter, will continue to carry out the intention of the sentencing courts and jurors.

Film Companies' Office Workers Get Raises

Wage increases of from $2 to $7 weekly have been approved by the War Labor Board for office workers of two Atlanta film distributing companies, an Associated Press dispatch from Washington said last night.

The workers are employed by the distributing centers of Columbia Pictures and United Artists, the dispatch said.

INVASION! . . . This is it! . . . Mighty America is poised! . . . Will you be able to say: "I personally put my full strength into the knockout blow"?

THE Third War Loan is on.

Hitler would seize your money.

Your government merely asks you to lend it. With every dollar of wealth in this richest of all nations as positive security. And, mind you, your money earns interest!

Mother, Father—you can't lose! But your boy—or your neighbor's boy—can! Your country can! Unless you put every ounce of your inspired strength into this final punch!

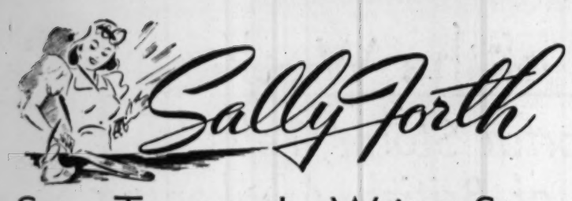

Your boy, or your neighbor's boy, knows what the fruits of this devastating Allied invasion will be—the months, the dollars, the American lives it will save. And, across the miles, he is pleading—buy War Bonds—today!

Sam Tupper Jr. Writes Story On Noted Poets of Georgia

By SALLY FORTH.

● ● ● IN THE SUMMER ISSUE of Westminster Magazine, which is composed entirely of the works of Georgia authors, there are so many delightful poems and interesting articles that to single out any special one is a difficult task. However, Sally has been particularly intrigued by a story by one of Atlanta's favorite sons and writers, Sam Tupper Jr., who now resides in Cartersville, Ga. The title is "Georgia Poets I Have Known," and Sam writes in the charming way that is characteristic of his personality.

He does not attempt to analyze the particular style and type of verse of the literary lights of whom he tells; namely, Dr. Anderson Scruggs, Gilbert Maxwell, Daniel Whitehead Hicky, Minnie Hite Moody, and the late Ernest Hartsock. He tells his readers that he does not pretend to know enough of the trends of contemporary verse, wherein he could evaluate their work against a national background, but he says that this quintet of poets has given him that tingling thrill of appreciation that he believes is the primary purpose of poetry.

Instead, he tells more of the individuality and personality of each, and the little things about them that are apart from their acknowledge ' genius. He tells you that Dr. Scruggs, who is an instructor at the Atlanta Dental College, looks nothing at all as we think a poet should appear. Instead, he looks like any competent businessman, a conservative dresser, well groomed, dignified, courteous, unaffected, and well able to keep any kind of a conversation going. Hostesses are glad indeed when he is "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Gilbert Maxwell, a former Georgian, is living in New York, but his poems are well known here. Sam tells some hitherto unknown facts about Gilbert, particularly his "early struggle" when he first went to New York. He tells how he loves people and bright parties, and is a wonderful mimic, one of his chief tricks being to take off famous movie stars.

He begins the section on Daniel Whitehead Hicky by wondering for what reason he has always been called "Jack" instead of by his rightful name. He writes about the national success "Jack" has achieved, his work having met with favor in innumerable magazines in this country and in England.

Of "Jack" he writes: "An exceedingly facile writer, Jack produced a large body of work which has been collected into several books. My acquaintance with Jack has developed mainly at parties, so I certainly can't say I know all sides of him, but I would guess that even when he is alone he is cheerful and gay. He is the wittiest, the most sociable of all the Georgia poets, and it is strange that so abundant a sense of humor seldom overflows into his work."

The only feminine subject whom Sam writes about is Atlanta's popular writer of both prose and poetry, Minnie Hite Moody. He tells more of her home and her family than he does of her many talents, of her lovely old ante-bellum home near East Lake, and of her two charming daughters, Elizabeth and Mary Lou; her attractive husband, Wilkie Moody. He says that although Minnie spent much of her childhood in Ohio, she had so much southern ancestry that moving to Georgia was the same thing as coming home. In her latest novel, "Long Meadows," she proves that she is as able a historian as a versatile writer.

Sam concludes his articles with a tribute to the poetry of the late Ernest Hartsock, whom he knew in school days at Boys' High. Of this young Georgian who departed this life just as he was becoming nationally famous, Sam quotes from "Strange Splendor," the profound and scintilating poem which is, he says, a poem of genius and nothing else, and a poem internationally known.

Sam is being missed by a wide circle in Atlanta since he and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Y. Tupper, moved to Cartersville. There they purchased a historic early nineteenth century colonial home, several miles from town on a 25-acre tract. Atlantans who have known the hospitality of the Tupper family when they resided here on Rivers road can easily picture their lovely old collection of antique silver and heirloom furniture in this perfect setting of the old red brick home, with the white columns, authentically historic, even to its hand-hewn oak floors. The Tupper family is so typical of aristocratic southern families that it is only fitting that Sam should be chosen to write this splendid story of the poets of his beloved Georgia.

● ● ● THE ROMANCE of Joyce Estes and Captain Ernest Burton, whose engagement is announced in other columns of today's paper, had its beginning exactly one year ago today in Miami, Fla. Joyce was at that time living in the Florida city and working in the Bureau of Censorship in the War Department. She was sharing an apartment with Anne Howell, of Thomaston, Ga., who worked at Pan American Airways.

Anne's brother, Ensign John Howell, and Captain Burton were close friends, and their friendship led to the introduction of Joyce and Ernest. There was a mutual attraction from the very first, and now, one year later to the very day that John brought Ernest to his sister's apartment, the engagement is announced.

Joyce received many unusual gifts from her admirer during their courtship days, for when Ernest made his flights to South America he tucked into his plane pet monkeys, a small bear and a number of other tropical pets. Joyce admits that she kept the pets "for awhile," but soon gave them away when they became too large for apartment residence.

● ● ● ATLANTA alumnae of Randolph-Macon Woman's College will learn with interest of a new departure instigated by their alma mater—an undertaking that sustains its reputation as a leader among southern educational institutions.

Fifteen three-year-olds have been enrolled in a new nursery school which opens next Tuesday under the direction of Mrs. John Dewey Stoner. The school will not only fill a community need, but at the same time it will enable students in existing courses in child development and in a proposed course for child care volunteers under sponsorship of the War Activities Committee, to have first-hand acquaintance with the youngsters. It may even develop a course in pre-school education later on.

A model nursery, completely equipped, has been installed on the ground floor of one of the Main Hall wings, with such advantages as a separate entrance, isolation from college classrooms and adjacent space for outdoor play. Each child will pay a tuition fee, making the school self-supporting eventually.

Children in the same age group and with similar backgrounds have been enrolled this year in the school, plans for which were perfected by Dr. Helen Peak, who heads the college psychology department, and Miss Dorothy Pratt, associate professor of education.

B. and P. W. Club To Hear Mr. Fraser

Carlyle Fraser, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will speak this evening at 6:30 o'clock when the Business and Professional Women's Club assembles at the Henry Grady hotel with Mrs. Mamie Kennedy Taylor, club president, in the chair.

Presented jointly by the public affairs and education committees, this meeting will point up four important phases of "Living on the Home Front." Careful surveys made by the club and representing a cross section of community life reveal definite dislocations on the home front as a result of all-out war.

The purpose of the program is two-fold—to recognize the dislocations, and help to deal with them intelligently. The four major phases will be discussed by Miss Nancy Fletcher, dealing with education; Mrs. Pearl Oastler, covering the social side of the problem; Mrs. Lucille Huffman, presenting the business angle; and Miss Erva Blackstock, pointing out the spiritual and moral attitudes.

Open discussion will follow the scheduled talks. Miss Bertha Hoffman will lead the club in singing and refreshments will be served.

Miss Joyce Estes Betrothed To Capt. Ernest Burton, USA

MISS JOYCE ESTES.

WINDER, Ga., Sept. 7.—The engagement of Miss Joyce Estes to Captain Ernest Word Burton, U. S. Army Air Corps, is announced today by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawton Estes, former Atlantans, who are now residing in Winder, the announcement creating wide social interest in the south. Captain Burton is now attached to the Twentieth Ferry Command with headquarters in Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Estes, the bride-elect's mother, is the former Miss Alice Thelma Woodruff, daughter of Mrs. George W. Woodruff and the late Mr. Woodruff, pioneer citizens of Winder. Mrs. Woodruff is the former Miss Alice Idella Perry. The late Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawton Estes, prominent Georgians, are the paternal grandparents of the bride-elect, and through her father she is a descendant of the Warren family of Virginia and the Lawton and Willingham families of South Carolina. Her only brother is Joseph Lawton Estes Jr., of Atlanta.

Miss Estes, who is a beautiful brunette, resided in Atlanta until the completion of her high school days when she moved, with her parents, to Winder. She was graduated from North Fulton High school and was a member of the Phi Pi sorority, the Pirate Club and the Girls' Circle for the Tallulah Falls School. She completed her studies at Sullins College in Bristol, Va., and was invited to become a member of the Debutante Club of 1941-42. She has enjoyed wide popularity since early school days and is numbered among most attractive members of the younger set of Atlanta and Winder.

Captain Burton is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cotter Burton, of Little Rock, Ark. His mother was before her marriage Miss Elizabeth Gibbs Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Twyman Wood, of Danville, Ky. His paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Moses Hall Burton, of Brownsville, Tenn. Mrs. W. George Thomas, of Atlanta, the former Miss Isobel Burton, is his only sister.

The groom-elect was graduated from Atlanta Boys' High school and Georgia School of Technology where he was a member of the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity. Before entering the service he was associated with the Eastern Air Lines and served as a captain with the Pan-American Air Ways.

The marriage of Miss Estes and Captain Burton will be an event of this month, the compilete plans to be announced later.

Parties Will Compliment Miss Stribling, Bride-Elect

Miss Elizabeth Stribling, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Stribling, whose engagement to Ensign Donn Byrne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Byrne, of Wilton, Conn., was announced recently, is being extensively entertained prior to her marriage which will be an important event of September 25.

This evening, Miss Mary Ann Robinson will entertain at a bridge party and kitchen shower at her home on Dellwood drive in honor of the bride-elect. On Thursday Miss Marian Weltnor will compliment Miss Stribling at a dinner party at 7 p. m. at her home on Piedmont road.

On Sunday, September 19, Miss Mary Hurt Clayton will entertain at open house at her home on Woodcrest avenue at 5 p. m. in honor of Miss Stribling, and Miss Zaida Clay will give a dinner party on September 21 at her home on Cherokee road.

Miss Stribling will be complimented at a tea on September 22 by Mrs. R. Baker Weidinger at her home on Palisades road. A number of friends of the honor guest have been invited to attend. The Mirador room of the Capital City Club will be the scene of the luncheon at which Mrs. Earl Myer and Mrs. Nichol Ridley will entertain in honor of Miss Stribling on September 23. On September 24 Mrs. Charles Currie and Mrs. John Rutland will give a luncheon at the Mirador room. That evening Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Byrne, parents of the groom-elect, will entertain at the rehearsal party at the Capital City Club.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stribling will entertain at a small reception in honor of their daughter and Ensign Byrne at their home on West Andrews drive.

Among others who will honor this attractive bride-to-be are Mrs. Raymond Cole, Mrs. Harry Craft and Mrs. Ingram Dickinson.

Lenox Park Club To Meet Today

The Lenox Park Garden club meets today at 10:30 a. m. at the home of Mrs. George Williams, 723 Sherwood road, N. E. Co-hostess will be Mrs. Lawrence Camp, Mrs. Robert C. Mizell and Mrs. W. J. Gower.

The club has continued its activities all the summer, and Mrs. L. W. Dilts, president, will preside and report the activities.

In the formal garden, besides the regular care of rosebeds and annual beds, a part of the garden was used for planting tomatoes. This harvest produced many baskets of which were carried to Grady hospital. Mrs. Zack Layfield has served as chairman of this project and Mrs. A. L. McArthur co-chairman. This committee has also carried magazines and flowers to the wards at Grady and each Tuesday to the U. S. O. center.

Plans for the year will be discussed and each member is engaged in Red Cross work which coincides with the garden club plans. Squares for another afghan are being made. The program chairman, Mrs. R. C. Mizell, will present the year books for the coming year, 1943-44.

For the program Wednesday each member will bring some fresh fruit or vegetable from her victory garden, some fruit or vegetable canned, and a report of the work done in her garden. After the program a victory luncheon will be served.

'I Gave My Blood Because . .'

MRS. JOHN H. CRANKSHAW.

Mrs. John H. Crankshaw has four silver stars across her dress lapel, a star for each brother. Three of the brothers are especially close to Mrs. Crankshaw because she helped to rear them. The youngest lived with her until he went into the Navy. They are the children of W. W. Hagood, also a member of Mrs. Crankshaw's household.

"If they are ever wounded, I pray there will be no lack of blood plasma," she said. "I feel that I am giving for them. At least I will be doing my very best to keep the supply of plasma going to the battle areas."

Two of the brothers, Seaman First Class Cecil and Chief Petty Officer Hubert, are somewhere in the Pacific. When Cecil was stationed at Camp Endicott, R. I., training to be a C-B or "fighting engineer," whose motto is "Can-Do," he was impressed to see 1,000 men from the camp donate blood through the American Red Cross.

Hubert is attached to a hospital unit at Guadalcanal and Pfc. George, next to the youngest, is stationed at Fort Tilden, N. Y. Sergeant Eugene, of the Army Air Corps, who is home on leave, cautioned his sister against revealing his plans.

Mrs. Crankshaw says "there is so blooming little that a housewife can do, anyway, but giving blood is certainly one of them. It's our privilege," she declared, "and if I didn't have any brothers I'm sure I'd give just the same. I know that invading Europe and conquering the Japs is going to be costly, with many casualties."

Garden Division.

The garden division of the Garden Hills Woman's Club will meet today at 10:30 a. m. in the clubhouse. Mrs. Edith Harrison Henderson will give the third in a series of lectures. Members will bring arrangements.

Gypsy Rose Writes Another Book, 'Belle of Yukon,' a Gold Rush Story

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(INS) Gypsy Rose Lee, a very smart girl when it comes to business, has made a deal to write directly for the screen. She is writing "Belle of the Yukon," a story of the gold rush days in the Klondike, for William Goetz. Gypsy arrives here the first of the year to work with Bill, and with William Seiter, who has been signed by International Pictures to direct the Klondike epic.

The colorful period of 1898, when the whole world rushed to Alaska and eggs were $100 a dozen, is the background of "Belle of the Yukon," and it's to be in technicolor. Gypsy, meanwhile, is working with Mike Todd on her play, "The Naked Genius." This will be her second story to reach the movies. Her first, "G-String Murders," made its screen appearance as the controversial "Lady of Burlesque."

When I called Universal last week to check the story that the sequence made by Alan Curtis and Gloria Jean was "out" of "Flesh and Fantasy," they were as concerned as if I had rattled the skeleton in the closet. Now it comes to light this particular episode is so good—and "Flesh and Fantasy" is so long—it has been lifted and will be developed into a full-length feature on its own. Even with Gloria Jean and Alan missing, the "U" bosses are doing handsprings over Charles Boyer's first production that has Charles, Barbara Stanwyck, Edward G. Robinson, Betty Field, Robert Benchley, Thomas Mitchell and Robert Cummings in the spotlight.

I was talking with Dorothy Lamour at Wynn Rocamora's cocktail party when she met Pola Negri for the first time. Grasping Pola's hand, Dorothy said: "I'm so thrilled at meeting you. I used to be the first in line at all your pictures. You were my favorite." Pola, who looks barely 30 and more than anyone I know has kept her looks and youth, replied: "I can return the compliment. When I was in Europe before the war, you were the favorite, and I'm just as thrilled at meeting you." Then, turning to me, Pola said: "I will have a secret to tell you soon." Another affair of the heart, Pola?" I asked, but she only looked mysterious.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The blister on Martha Raye's foot has turned out to be an infection, and she's been out of "Pin-Up Girl" for five days; Gordon Oliver, Hollywood actor, will marry Ethel Lambert, New York socialite, very soon; I like the title of the song Judy Garland has written with Kay Thompson, her gal arranger. It's "I Fell and Broke My Heart;" Mrs. Ernest Lubitsch, who has been on a dude ranch, arrived in town when word reached her of her former husband's illness. It's doubtful if she will be permitted to see him for a few days; Raymond Massey refuses to be tempted by any movie contract and will remain in New York to do a play with Katherine Cornell; Ginny Simms and Johnny Green in a quiet corner at the Savoy. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Brady's Health Quiz

Iron Ammonium Citrate.

Answer—I'm sorry the druggists in your community take that attitude. Good druggists everywhere can and do sell any one who asks for it—iron and ammonium citrate (garnet red or brownish scales)—by the ounce or pound. I think it is unwise to take it in capsule or pill.

Scar.

Will allo or olive oil heal an X-ray scar? If not, please advise what will. (Mrs. E. G.)

Answer—I know of nothing that will heal scar from any cause. You should have the advice of your physician.

Is it wise to have a 7-year-old child's tonsils and adenoids removed during hot weather, before school reopens? (K. A. S.)

Answer—The weather has nothing to do with it. Tonsils and-or adenoids should be removed only if it is evident that the child's hearing is affected or that there is serious obstruction of breathing. A few X-ray treatments will take care of many cases where the hearing is affected. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for pamphlet "Tonsils and

School Dress Has Flared Skirt

By Lillian Mae.

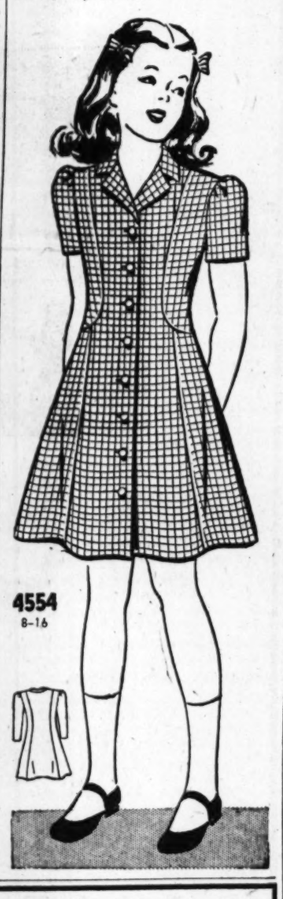

With its cutely shaped waist and slightly flaring skirt, Pattern 4554 has "oomph" away out of proportion to the youthful simplicity of its design. It's no fuss or bother to make, and so wearable in a good tubbable rayon fabric or gingham. You'll enjoy the way it spreads out for jiffy ironing.

Pattern 4554 is available in girls' sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16. Size 10 takes 2 3-4 yards 35-inch fabric.

Jo Ann Carter models a very warm and practical coat for the school girl. It is a simulated camel's hair in beige, the fabric 40 per cent wool, the remaining 60 per cent rayon and cotton. The raglan shoulders afford comfort even though a suit or woolen dress is worn beneath, and the coat closes with four leather-covered buttons. In a 12-year size, this coat is priced at $14.95. For further information call the Fashion Department of The Constitution, or write Winifred Ware, Fashion Editor.

Physical Health Necessary For Flawless Complexion

By Ida Jean Kain.

There is nothing that makes a woman more miserably unhappy than skin trouble. This doesn't mean an occasional pimple, which is just a nuisance, but a skin that never really clears up.

If your skin is never clear that is an indication that your system is not functioning as it should, for a smoothly functioning system is the base of a flawless complexion.

Your trouble may be nervousness, indigestion, faulty elimination, or poor general condition. In these hectic times, anyone with the slightest inclination to nervousness has to make herself slow down. Try to do everything at a slower pace, but especially eating. Make it a rule to chew all food so slowly and thoroughly that you are not conscious of the act of swallowing. When you are angry, excited or upset, don't try to eat. Wait until you have calmed down. One skin specialist suggested that when you are eating alone and inclined to rush through the meal, you read at the table. Take a forkful of food and read a paragraph.

You may prefer beverages as hot as you can get them but that may be another reason your skin breaks out. This specialist says it is best to avoid all scalding hot foods and particularly hot liquids. He also puts stimulants, such as coffee, tea and alcohol, on the taboo list. You don't need a kick for your nervous system. Instead of speeding yourself up, take a rest after each meal. Lie down for 15 minutes if you can manage it.

There are certain foods that are looked on as trouble-makers. These are the very spicy or highly seasoned foods and foods high in fat like fat meat and pastries.

To clear up your skin you may have to take them out of your menus.

It might be that you are allergic to certain foods. But most seasonal allergies like the kind that shows up in hives are usually brought on by nervousness.

Regular elimination is one of the most important factors in clearing up your skin and it may call for further changes in your diet. Start the day with a whole grain cereal, with all the bran, every morning. Have 100 per cent whole grain bread and during the day have three glasses of milk, three fresh fruits and three vegetables. Spinach, chard, kale and cooked greens of all kinds are excellent.

You can't get along without exercise. You need a good long walk or outdoor sports every day plus a few special calisthenics, including a couple for the abdominal muscles.

If you can't clear up your skin by these improvements in your living habits, by all means go to a skin specialist. He may prescribe X-ray or some other treatment along with better living habits.

Exercises to strengthen the abdominal girdle will be mailed on request. Please inclose large stamped return envelope and three cents in coin or stamps to cover cost of handling.

Wasteful

As much as 50 per cent of the light is wasted when dirt and dust are allowed to accumulate on reflector bowls of floor and table lamps and on glass globes of ceiling fixtures, say lighting experts. To clean, remove glass parts and wash in warm, soapy water, rinse and dry thoroughlyinside and out.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—New work, secret ambitions, personal matters and financial affairs should progress today, for you will have the determination to put such things through.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—Previous to 10:23 a. m. favors work that requiries shrewd judgment. Give your attention to finances. After 10:23 a. m. favors social, recreational and sports activities.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—You can appeal to others previous to 12:24 p. m., so push matters involving friendships, seek favors and attend to personal interests. In the afternoon hours, it will be well to take a calm view of matters, and you may not be sure what you want.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—Through persistent effort, you can attain benefits in affairs that pertain to your home, personal interests and in work that calls for organizing ability.

July 23-August 22 (LEO)—The morning hours, previous to noon, are your best hours of the day. Go after what you want then. After noon, your judgment and foresight are unreliable, and you may lack caution.

August 23-September 22 (VIRGO)—Stick to routine, especially before noon. It will be well to guard your health and avoid worry. The afternoon and evening hours are the best portion of the day for you.

Sept. 23-Oct. 22 (LIBRA)—While others around you may seem to be getting the lion's share of luck today, you should be able to make fine opportunities for your self through their friendship.

Oct. 23-Nov. 21 (SCORPIO)—This will be a fine day for you to pay some duty calls, return obligations, or working quietly in association with others.

Nov. 22-Dec. 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Seek and make opportunities for yourself. You should be capable of doing some fine reasoning, which can be used to your good.

Dec. 22-Jan. 19 (CAPRICORN)—Start things now. Be active in personal matters, advance your ambitions and push any special undertakings you may have.

Jan. 20-Feb. 18 (AQUARIUS)—You may still encounter opposition in your work or ambitions. Stick to routine and relax, for little or nothing will be gained if you try to force issues.

Feb. 19-March 20 (PISCES)—Contacts with friends may prove advantageous. This is a favorable day for dealings with friends, social work, and matters or art.

New Books of the Week:

SURVIVAL. By Phyllis Bottome. (Little, Brown, $2.50.)

Phyllis Bottome, who has "Private Worlds" and "The Mortal Storm" to her credit, has written another novel, one which deals with the emotional crises created by the present world conflict.

Told by an Austrian refugee, who was an eminent psychiatrist and happy husband and father in his native Vienna, it is essentially an account of the reactions, both heroic and selfish, of the people of Britain during the severest of the German raids, and incidentally, of his slow reawakening to normal life.

The Nazi occupation of his home is treated with simplicity, and is consequently all the more dramatic. He voices yet another estimate of Hitler's personality . . . "Hitler has always disliked mankind; not intermittently with one of his faculties as most human beings dislike their enemies, but continuously with all the faculties he possesses." He tells of the disintegration of all that had meant civilization and humanity: "There was no security of soul, mind or body that was left to them."

He finds refuge in England with two quietly understanding friends, James and Eunice Wendover. His growing affection in them and for their three-year-old Rosemary, and subsequently his professional interest in James' brother, Lord Wendover, and his neurotic wife form the basis of the plot.

He goes to Silver Fountains, the Wendover home, and there amid the increasing tempo of war and the nightly air attacks, he works to heal the wounded and to help lessen the mental confusion and strain in the unhappy Wendover household.

The book helps to explain the British slowness in comprehending the Nazi menace and paints their national courage under fire. It is capably written, and is highly entertaining reading. —J. B.

FOOD PLANNING FOR VICTORY. By Madeline Fess Mehlig. Grosset & Dunlap. $1.29.

Never in the history of our country have more persons thought so earnestly about food. It is a weapon of war, and we have learned that it must be employed as strategically as other weapons if we are to win without serious consequences to health and vitality. A small and concise handbook for the homemaker or anyone responsible for buying food and preparing menus is just published. The title, "Food Planning for Victory," is a pretty good description of its contents. It deals with food preservation by home canning, has a chapter on vegetable cookery that every woman should memorize, another on how to keep points down and nutrition up, and a chapter devoted to wartime cookery. The author is director of the School of Domestic Arts and Science, Chicago.

If you've ever wanted to buy an island or a lighthouse, you'll find this soothing book gives you answers to what happens when a white collar, city-folks family does so.

The purchase, problems of moving and soforth are detailed. At times these recitals impart a precious nostalgia, but proved for this reviewer to be a little on the trivial side.

MY DAY: A Busy Day In Canberra

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

CANBERRA, Australia.—(Delayed)—Saturday morning we left Government House at 9:45 o'clock and I had the pleasure of driving first with our minister, Mr. Nelson Johnson, to see the new legation which we are building here. It is made of the same kind of brick used in Williamsburg, Va., in duplicating the old buildings which were restored there.

I like the plan of the house and I have only one criticism; namely, that the fireplace in the room which is to be the library may be architecturally perfect, but it looks too small ever to give one the sense of space and hospitality that an open fire should convey. The house stands on a hill and has a lovely view. I planted a little oak, which starts the landscaping.

On leaving here, Mrs. Evatt, wife of the attorney general and minister for external affairs, and I drove together for the rest of the morning, which was a pleasant arrangement as it gave us a chance for a little conversation between stops. Our first visit was to the radio school for United States naval personnel. Some 80 sailors are being trained for work at sea or at shore stations.

At the Y. W. C. A. we saw a hut operated for service girls. They can get a bed and bath for two shillings. Meals are very inexpensive and they may have their friends visit them there. I found that some of our men were enjoying their hospitality.

Next we visited the War Memorial built after the last war. This is a dignified and beautiful building and one could spend several days looking at the paintings, sculpture and exhibits. I had so little time that I could only see how much there was of interest and hope for an opportunity at some future date to see it more satisfactorily. A short stop was then made at a service club where there were Australians and Americans and where I signed many autographs, and could have signed many more if I had not had an appointment with the Prime Minister at his home. I had an opportunity to talk to Mrs. Curtin, and then Mr. Curtin and I had a quiet talk. It was both interesting and restful after a rather active morning.

At 1 o'clock we arrived at Parliament House, where the Prime Minister had arranged a luncheon at which he welcomed me very cordially to Australia. His remarks were seconded by Mr. William Hughes, of the opposition party, and then I was given a precious gift to bring back to my country. It is a photographic copy—the only one ever made—of Captain Cook's own diary, kept in his own hand, of his first voyage when he discovered Australia. For 50 years after his death it remained in his wife's possession and now it is a most treasured possession of the public library here. It is a gift from the people of Australia to the people of America and is so inscribed.

During the afternoon I spent a little while with the staff of the American legation and was glad to see my cousin, Mrs. Kidder, and her husband.

Our minister and his wife gave a reception in the afternoon, and after dinner at Government House another reception was held there in the evening. I had an opportunity to talk with the heads of the various women's services. Heads of the Army and Navy nursing services are called "matron," but they are given military rank just as ours are.

The Australian nurses served in Greece and Crete, so these women know at first hand all the dangers of war.

I was given some very good photographs of American boys taken here and I am taking them home and will send them to the home towns of the boys. I have also been promised some movies of women's war activities, which have been made.

FDR Will Be on All Stations

Hearlding the Third War Loan Drive, which opens tomorrow, a full-hour show featuring the nation's favorite entertainers and including an address by President Roosevelt, will be heard from all Atlanta stations beginning at 8 p. m. today.

Originating from Hollywood, with pickups of President Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau from Washington, the talent for the gala broadcast will include such popular entertainers as Bing Crosby, Robert Young, Jimmy Durante, Bergen and McCarthy, Burns and Allen, Charles Boyer, Ronald Colman, Alfim Tamiroff, Dianh Shore and Gordon Jenkins' orchestra.

Script for the War Bond curtain raiser has been prepared by radio's top writers, including Norman Corwin, Ranald MacDougall, Glenn Wheaton, Manny Manheim, Harry Bailey, and the team of Lipscott and Davis.

"The Battle of Sexes" begins a new weekly series today from WAGA at 7:30 p. m. With J. C. Flippen as quizmaster, the show will present a team of ladies versus a team of men each week in competition for cash prizes. "Flip" a native of Arkansas, broke into the entertainment world as an end men with the old Al. G. Fields minstrel show.

The "Bandwagon," whose debut today on WAGA has been cancelled because of the War Bond show, will being on that station next Wednesday at 8:00 p. m.

Alexander Kipnis, noted Russian bass of the Metropolitan, will be the soloist with Howard Barlow's orchestra during today's "Invitation to Music," from WGST at 10:30 p. m. Originally a conductor, Kipnis scored vocal triumphs in Europe before becoming a member of the Metropolitan in 1940. He will be heard in a Mozart-Verdi program.

Night Club Comedian Lenny Kent and Dr. Nimphias, zoo director, will be among the contestants on Wally Butterworth's "Take a Card," show from WATL, today at 7:30 p. m. Other contestants include a WAVE, a man who pronounces words backwards and a USO hostess.

SPARKS.

"Problems of the Merchant Marine" will be discussed by Rear Admiral Emory Land during today's "Radio Forum" (WAGA at 9:30 p. m.) . . . "Good Soldier" stars Jean Hersholt as "Dr. Christian" (WGST at 7:30 p. m.) . . . Betty Russell will be on Bob Crosby's guest singer (WSB at 9:30 p. m.) . . .

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

On the Air Before burying the carcass of Cracker baseball, 1943, there was an impression gained that I hasten to correct. It's a personal thing and if not straightened out might cause irreparable damage to the ministerial profession.

Jimmy Davenport, personable manager of radio station WATL, invited me to broadcast a Cracker game. I accepted. Listeners who were not tuned in at the start of the game didn't know who was at the microphone, and so the guessing began.

Some guessed Dr. Louie Newton. Others tossed in with the Rev. Henley. In fact, everybody but Chubby Turner was involved. One caller said to tell Dr Pierce Harris he had never preached a better sermon.

Press Huddleston's wife was sitting in another room and when the baseball broadcast got well under way she began to take notice of the unfamiliar ring and cadence.

So she called in to Press, "Who is preaching tonight?"

It really was a great experience. I am indebted to Jimmy Davenport for the invitation. And, no fooling, the mistaken impression so many fans got may lead to something good next season.

I personally would like to hear some of our ministerial leaders who know a lot about baseball appear as guest stars and broadcast a game.

Louie Newton and Pierce Harris are two I know would do a great job.

Davenport Balks In going over broadcast details beforehand, Davenport suddenly decided he would do the commercials. I had innocently mentioned one I wanted to use.

Claude Bond, Tech's fine trainer, called in to report that the broadcast had burned out all the tubes in his radio, and he promptly was lined up for the next night.

Bond and I ran a dead heat. Whereas I sounded like a man conducting a revival, Bond went to the other extreme and gave a white face rendition of Stepenfetchit.

Baseball fans probably gave the United States Marines a pretty fair lambasting those two night.

Sergeant Ernie Harwell had done a splendid job on road and home games, and he was giving all the money he made to the Red Cross. Suddenly some sort of Leatherneck red tape came up and Ernie had to quit.

I'll say for him that he has a brilliant future in the broadcasting field. He has just about everything, including voice and a solid background.

I speak freely about Ernie. He worked his way through Emory working for us. He deserves anything good that comes his way.

What It Takes There is no connection between this and the foregoing, but once a smart city editor—like Lee Fuhrman of our own paper—said to a know-it-all cub reporter, "Yes, you put words together—and I have to take them apart!"

One little word after another—that's what it takes in any kind of writing. And then they probably won't stick. They will come out in print as something else because of careful editing.

The unsung heroes of the newspaper game are the fine boys who sit on the copy desk and make colorful copy out of stuff that sometimes is out of this world.

But going back a bit to the field of radio, I would like to say, in connection with putting one little word after another, that it becomes relatively simple to a man sitting behind a typewriter—unless there is a quick deadline staring him in the face.

To the man behind the mike it's different, however. I think of Harry Wismer, keen, brilliant-minded sports ace of the Blue Network. He has nothing in front of him to read—unless it's an occasional commercial—and he has to keep it going in the king's English for hour on hour . . . football, baseball, tennis, etc.

That, my friends, requires ability of terrific quality.

JONES BOGEY

Meyer Balser was the only golfer to hit the winning number of 71 in the blind bogey play at the Bobby Jones course Monday. Bill Middleton came in second with a 72 score.

Rough Variety Of Wrestling Billed Friday

Some mighty rough milling is expected in Promoter Sammy Friedman's wrestling show Friday night, for another tag match, the most popular form the grappling sport, will be the feature, and some tough hombres are pitted against one another.

Ralph Garibaldi, of St. Louis, and Al Mills, the Kansas City toughie, are going to match gouges and tackles against Babe Zaharias, Pueblo, Col., and Roland Kirchmeyer, the Tennessee farmer.

Jack Dillon and Joe (Red) Vitale come to grips in the semi-windup in what stacks up as something of a grudge match. The 30-minute opener pits John Mauldin, Atlanta favorite, against Carlos Rodreguez.

Promoter Friedman announces a real treat may be in store for fans next week when he expects to bring the Swedish Angel here. The following week he hopes to pit the Angel against Champion Bobby Longston.

Glenn McNair's Blues Victors at Druid Hills

Glenn McNair's Blue team won the Labor Day losers pay dinner tourney Monday at the Druid Hills Golf Club, Club Professional Gene Cook has announced. Professor Black's Red team went down by a 30-to-20 score.

THE LAST BIG SPLASH—The boys and girls get a fast start here in the final event of the three-day swim Monday at East Lake by the Atlanta Athletic Club. Some of the keenest competition of the year was encountered in the highly successful affair which marked the end of the swimming season at East Lake.

Crackers Win From Barons In Final Game

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 7.—(AP)—The Atlanta Crackers broke an 11-game losing streak and wound up the season here last night by trimming the Birmingham Barons, 3 to 2, in the seven-inning first game of a scheduled double-header.

The second game was canceled due to weather conditions with the Barons leading, 6-1, in the four innings played. In the game that counted, Cracker Pitcher Stanley Todd bested Howard Fox in a mound duel. Both allowed only six hits.

Bond-Bowling Tourney Starts Officially Tonight

Mayor Hartsfield To Roll First Ball at 7:30 P. M. in $10,000,000 Meet.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

The Constitution-sponsored bond-bowling meet, a tremendous affair which essays to promote the sale of $10,000,000 worth of war bonds during the five weeks it will run, will be opened officially at 7:30 o'clock tonight when Mayor Bill Hartsfield will toe the line to roll the first ball down the alley at Blick's Downtown Bowling Center.

The meet has been under way for two days unofficially, awaiting "Hizzoner's" return from Washington, and during that time $257,650 worth of bonds already has been sold by John Blick, bowling impressario here, but tonight the official christening of the event will herald the selling of bonds in earnest.

One friend of bowling purchased a $50,000 bond yesterday and bonds of the $50 denomination were purchased by Beverly Ann Blick, John S. Blick III and Fred Huckaby; $207,500 worth of bonds were sold the first day by Blick.

The contest is the biggest thing of its kind yet attempted in any city in the nation, and Atlanta is undertaking it as she should, for in two previous Constitution-sponsored meets last year over $1,700,000 was raised, and that figure far surpasses anything bowlers in other cities have been able to match.

The Constitution and John Blick are offering top prizes of $1,000 in war bonds, and an unprecedented prize list of trophies and medals also have been listed.

A fleet of bombers, all named the "Atlanta Bowler," will be purchased with the money raised in the meet.

Bowlers must purchase a war bond of the $25 denomination or more to enter the bowling competition which will get under way immediately.

Appling, Musial Still Setting Pace

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Stan Musial, of the St. Louis Cardinals and Luke Appling, of the Chicago White Sox, still are setting the batting race in the major leagues with little change in the competition during the last week.

Musial's average remained exactly what it was last Tuesday, .353, and Billy Herman, of Brooklyn, holding persistently to second place, slipped just two points to .332.

In the American League Appling's average skidded six points to .331 but his only dangerous challenger, Dick Wakefield, of Detroit, also subsided five points to .321 to preserve their same relative positions.

Pete Tinsley, Former Bulldog, Gets Discharge

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Sept. 7. (AP)—Pete Tinsley, veteran guard of the Green Bay Packers professional football team, has received a medical discharge from the Army Air Corps and plans to leave tomorrow or Thursday for Green Bay, Wis., for a conference on a 1943 contract, the former University of Georgia star said tonight.

MAYBERRY MISSING.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 7.—(AP)—First Lieutenant Walter Mayberry, U. S. M. C. R., former University of Florida football star, is missing in action "in performance of his duty and in the service of his country," his father, Thomas Mayberry, has been informed. Mayberry, who recently was credited with downing three Japanese planes, was captain of the Daytona Beach grid squad before going to the University of Florida.

Black Yankees To Play Crackers At Ponce de Leon

The Atlanta Black Crackers will meet the powerful New York Black Yankees Sunday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park in a double-header at 2:30 o'clock, and will play the New Yorkers a single game Monday night at 8:30 o'clock.

The Atlanta club, now playing in Jacksonville, will return Saturday. Manager Lewis is planning a big surprise for the National League club that defeated him in New York when his young team showed stage fright.

This will be the first time in history that this club has played in Atlanta, and several added attractions are being arranged.

A special section will be reserved for white fans with a special ticket booth and entrance. Lonnie Barkley, the clown umpire, will be on hand.

North Carolina Ten Captures Softball Meet

By BERT PRATHER.

Burtner Furniture Company, of Greensboro, N. C., defeated the Charleston, S. C., Port of Embarkation softball team, 7 to 3, last night at Marietta to capture the southeastern regional softball championship. The victory, their 25th straight without a loss this season, entitles Burtner to play in the national tournament at Detroit starting September 16.

A wild first inning gave the winners six runs and the ball game. Burtner and Wheeler singled and both scored on Bursard's error. Oakley was safe on Dlugo's error and Daniely was safe on a fielder's choice. Kivett and Wall walked, forcing in Oakley. Ballinger hit to short and Daniely and Kivett scored when Guerrieri missed the throw at the plate, with Ballinger safe at first. Wall scored on Stoker's fly.

Charleston got three runs back in the sixth, but it was too late and too little. Guerrieri and Krocker walked. Both advanced on Racimas' fly and scored when Fred Vitale socked a homer to center.

Greensboro and Charleston moved into the finals of the men's southeastern regional softball tournament Monday night. Greensboro, the tournament favorite, got by the easy way—on a forfeit—when Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was unable to make the trip here at the last minute. The scrappy Charleston boys gained their place in the title bracket the hard way with a 4-to-0 win over the Herbert Smart Field Smokies, of Macon.

Dudish Commissioned Lieutenant in Infantry

FORT BENNING, Ga., Sept. 7. (AP)—Andrew Jackson Dudish, former backfield star for the University of Georgia, has been commissioned as second lieutenant in the Infantry upon graduation from officer candidate school, the public relations office announced today.

Hiles, Vaughan Star in A. A. C. Swim Meet

The closing of the swimming season for the boys and girls of the Atlanta Athletic Club was climaxed with a three-day meet which ended Monday at East Lake.

Sunday John Hiles and Alvin Vaughan gave an exhibition of high and lofty acrobatics on the trampolin which would have done credit to professionals, and the boys drew round after round of applause. Hiles won the event with 47 points, with Vaughan a close second with 42.

Hiles also shaded Vaughan, 52 points to 50, in the diving competition in which Paul Bergdoll had 38 counters. Conklin and Don Brogdon, with 36 points each, tied for honors in B division and Barnett had 35. Bobby Porter won in Class C with 33 points to 28 for Charles Harrison and 27 for Tom Tidmore.

Sam Cole won over Conklin by inches in the 50-yard breast stroke for junior boys. Brogdon was third. Winning time was 45.7 seconds.

The long swim among the boys was close and exciting. Hiles was the Class A victor with Bill and Jim Ridley second and third. Conklin came in first in Class B with Bobby Hodgson and Scrappy O'Sullivan next in order. Tommie Mahone triumphed in Class C with Bob Ridley and Welborn Cole following in order.

Prison Nine Nips Georgia Power, 1-0

Pitcher Helms, Federal Prison drop ball artist, limited Georgia Power's strong nine to one hit Sunday and won a 1-to-0 decision over Lefty Frank Bennett in the tightest hurling duel of the year at the prison.

No Fed runner reached second base until the eighth inning when a double, a ground out and a squeeze play bunt sent the only tally of the game across. A sensational catch by the Fed right fielder with two men on and two out in the ninth robbed the Powermen of a tie or win.

Georgia Power, Baggers Vie Today

Joe Jenkins' Georgia Power nine and Marvin Sargent's Fulton Bag club, which tied for first-half honors in the Scott League, will battle it out for the title in a single game starting at 4:15 p. m. today, at Dixisteel's Glenn Field.

Bulldogs Lose Three More Of Tiny Squad

By F. M. WILLIAMS.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 7.—Twenty-nine out of Georgia's first 32 football players this year will be below the draft age, Coach Wallace Butts revealed today.

Of that number, 24 are 17 years of age, five have just passed their 18th anniversary. The other four are 4-Fs.

Coach Butts has arranged a schedule which in ordinary years would be ruled worse than a set-up. But when one stops to consider that the "weaklings" such as Presbyterian College, Newberry and Wake Forest have been considerably strengthened by wartime conditions, the Bulldogs are taking on a man-size job.

Georgia coaches are used to tough blows, but they still rock on their heels when news comes that such outstanding boys as Dave Hart, a left halfback; Vince Dragotta, end, and Bill McCauley, blocking back and fullback, will not be available. This news came all at once today.

Coach Butts rates Hart far above any other ball-carrier on the squad. The stocky Bulldog mentor even went so far as to rate him one of the best running backs Georgia has had since he has been here. Hart left a week ago for the Army. And so did Dragotta.

McCauley, a product of (Atlanta) Boys' High school, is suffering from a bad knee, which will be operated on soon. He will probably never play for Georgia, at least until the war is over, for when he reaches 18 next January he'll be called for duty by the Air Corps. Bill had been looking good in practice sessions, too.

The Bulldogs open this campaign on September 27, against Presbyterian College, in Athens. On September 26 they journey to Baton Rouge to play L. S. U.; October 2 is open, but on October 8 Wake Forest comes to Athens. A game is pending with a service team on October 16, either in Augusta or Jacksonville, Fla. L. S. U. will be played the second time on October 23, this time in Columbus. Newberry in Athens is slated for October 18, and the Georgia Preflight School will be played November 5; V. M. I. on November 13, and Georgia Tech on November 27, both in Atlanta, will close out the schedule.

Pels and Vols Begin Pennant Series Tonight

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7.—(AP) The New Orleans Pelicans take up where they left off 10 years ago in Nashville tomorrow—meeting the Nashville Vols in a playoff series for the Southern Association pennant.

The Pelicans last won the pennant in 1934, with Larry Gilbert, now manager of Nashville, directing their play. New Orleans won the playoff. It was Gilbert's last season as manager of New Orleans.

Managed by Ray Blades, the 1943 Pelicans won the second half of the split season after finishing third in the first half. Nashville made a runaway of the first half.

Despite inroads made on player talent by the armed services, both teams boast some of the outstanding stars in the history of the league.

Southpaw Jesse Danna, the league's leading pitcher in number of games won with 22, and Bill Hart, all-star third baseman who has been sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers, are key men in the Pelican machine. New Orleans has the league's best keystone combination in Pat Ankenman, shortstop, and George Hausman, second baseman.

The records show that the 1934-43 stretch is the longest a New Orleans team has had to wait to win a pennant since the league was organized. The Pelicans won their first championship in 1901, won again in 1905 and repeated in 1910, 1911, 1915, 1918, 1923, 1926, 1927, 1933 and 1934.

An empty house is more expensive than a Want Ad in The Constitution that will rent it.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Selected stocks moved up moderately in today's market but buyers returning to Wall Street from their lengthy holiday still were inclined to step carefully pending more definite trend clues.

Talk of big war developments being imminent in Europe was one reason for keeping speculative and investment commitments at a minimum. In addition, many customers showed a disposition to stand aside to await completion of the record government bond drive and indications as to how much selling of securities might be inspired by the September 15 tax payment date.

Secondary rail loans worked toward higher levels in a slow bond market today. Trading interest tapered as Wall Street's bond selling machinery was tuned up for the 15 billion dollar third war loan drive.

MEN NEEDED
In Vital and Super-essential War Work

TO LEARN to become a Marine Wireman. Laying the communication cables in a submarine destroyer is one of the highest skilled trades offered since the War started. This light, clean, interesting and most essential war work is one of the most vital war needs.

FATHERS that go into this work will be classified as superessential war workers and will get deferment.

FOR THIS type of skill you are paid the following hourly rate as a beginner with opportunities for advancement. This work will be good after the war.

$0.94 to $1.01 Week Day.

WHEN you work 7 full days, time and a half for over time.

THE Carolina Training School was called on to train men for this work, and in two weeks, working 8½ hours a day 6 days a week, we guarantee to qualify you for a job as Marine Wireman. There are jobs waiting for you.

WE CAN place boys 16½ to 17½ years of age, men in class 3A-4F and up to 50 years of age, if not now in essential war work or agriculture.

J. C. Tart Made Business Head At Agnes Scott

J. C. Tart, for the past 29 years treasurer of Agnes Scott College, has been named business manager-treasurer of the institution, it was announced yesterday by Dr. James R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott.

J. C. Tart

Tart will be assisted by Howard M. MacGregor, former business manager of Queens College, Charlotte, N. C., who will be assistant business manager-treasurer.

Tart, a native Georgian, takes over the duties of R. B. Cunningham, who retired this summer. MacGregor is a graduate of the Johns Hopkins School of Business Administration. Prior to serving at Queens, he was with banks in Maryland and Virginia.

DeKalb Names Scott Head of WarFundDrive

Walter H. Scott has been named chairman, with Frank G. Thomas and A. Farnell Blair as assistants for DeKalb county in the Greater Atlanta United Community and War Fund campaign to be conducted in October, according to announcement made yesterday.

The same announcement said that Guy W. Rutland Sr. would be chairman of the initial gifts committee in DeKalb county, which will join Cobb, Fulton and Rockdale counties in the effort.

The campaign executive committee in DeKalb county will be composed of the chairmen named, Clyde Walker, Claude H. Blount, Fred L. Cannon, Alton Hollis, Julius A. McCurdy and Mrs. W. Guy Hudson.

"This is a great cause and worthy of our most generous support," said Scott. "We are confident that DeKalb county will rally enthusiastically to this appeal and will give a good account of itself by wholehearted support of this, the greatest campaign of its kind ever projected in the Atlanta area."

Jap Rail Yards Hit In French Indo-China

CHUNGKING, Sept. 7.—(AP)—American P-40 fighter planes attacked the important Japanese railway yards near Laokay in French Indo-China Sunday, starting many fires and causing extensive damage, Lieutenant General Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

They confirmed the destruction of four Japanese fighters not previously reported, bringing the total shot down in that day's action to 57.

MILL POSITION.

ROCHELLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—S. Y. A. Ball, of Rochelle, has accepted a position as doorkeeper for the Vickers-Fitzgerald Lumber Co. The mill will be ready for operation this week, when completed will be a three-boiler plant. The mill site is a portion of the Wilcox county fair grounds.

AUNT HET

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"I know women buy some funny hats, but when I see one that's simply awful, I know the poor woman's husband picked it out."

JUST NUTS

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

Bugs Baer Says:

Churchill's Canada talk indicates the invasion of Europe will be along the Old Tourist Route from Dover to Calais.

Fortress Europe is a bird's nest on the ground for a short, straight attack. With the Yanks putting another watch on the Rhine it will be a question whether it's a river or a hock-shop.

His passive resistance may be the egg that hatched Adolf's elastic defense. By the bay, since they dropped the Fascist salute in Italy, manicurists don't have to work on stepladders any more.

2 More Reported Dead In Belfast Air Crash

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Eighth U. S. Air Force headquarters announced today that James Grimes, vice president in charge of engineering of the Philco Radio Corporation, and U. S. Army Air Force Pilot Loren L. Nyles, 44, of Los Angeles, Cal., were killed in the plane crash near Belfast last weekend in which Commodore James A. Logan lost his life.

The death of Logan, commandant of the U. S. Naval operating base at Londonderry, Northern Ireland, was announced yesterday.

Marine Flyer Awarded Congressional Medal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Captain James E. Sweatt, 23-year-old Marine flyer who shot down seven Japanese bombers in a single flight in the Solomon Islands area last April 7, has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor by President Roosevelt, the Navy disclosed today.
